Bates Wharf

Samuel Bates, a leader of the town's fishing industry, was first taxed for his stone wharf at the Cove in 1754. Although fishing boats had been sailing out of the town for the previous fifty years, no earlier wharf is known. Samuel lived at 67 North Main Street in the house which his grandfather, Joseph Bates, built in 1713.

Upon his death about 1780, the business was inherited by his namesake son. This Samuel was drowned offshore on Nov. 1, 1801 when his sloop, loaded with firewood for Boston, cut too close to Brush Island and its bottom ripped out on a sunken ledge.

Samuel Stockbridge purchased the business in 1803 but he died in 1810.

John Bates, a nephew of Samuel Bates, Jr., then took over the business at the wharf. Upon his death in 1842, it passed to his nephew, John. When this John died in 1886, the fishing industry was just about dead.

Clarence Barron purchased the buildings and land from the Bates estate to keep the old flavor of the town and it was in the Barron family until 1976, passing to his daughter Jane W. Bancroft, and to her daughter, Jessie Cox.

John Bates was Cohasset's second leading shipowner. Number one was Abraham H. Tower, his neighbor and rival, whose business was founded around 1790. His wharf is now under Hugo's lighthouse restaurant.

A store or chandlery which was built about 1760 across the street from the wharf was removed in 1957 to the village to become the Maritime Museum, a gift of Jessie Cox in memory of her mother.

Another building in the Bates complex is the Salt House, which remains on its old site at the foot of the wharf. This building was built about 1760 and was a coopers or barrel shop. The barrels were used to store the fish, which were packed in brine. The salt to make the brine was then imported from Europe and was very expensive.

Accordingly, an attempt was made during the War of 1812 to make salt from the ocean all along the New England coast. In Cohasset, the first serious attempt to make salt from the ocean began in 1831. However, this industry lasted only twenty years as the great Minot's Light storm of 1851 completely destroyed the salt works.

deposits underground were discovered in upper New York State which proved better in quality and cheaper to harvest. But during those twenty years, the salt of the Cohasset salt works was stored in the Bates Barrel Shop and the place was thereafter known as the Salt House.

After 1851 the Salt House may or may not have been used for salt storage. The salt, of course, was used to cure and preserve fish.

A third building, long gone, was the packing shed The slat works were never rebuilt as rich salt on the wharf. This is where the fish were salted and packed into barrels, being unloaded directly from the fishing boats into bins via a wooden chute.

The fish caught by the 60 foot schooners out of Cohasset was primarily mackerel. It being the cheapest foodstuff, most of it went to feed the black slaves of the South. The Civil War ended this trade but our fishing industry was so rich that it continued by its own momentum for the next 20 years . . . and it continues still!

Obituary

Edwin Young

He was a pro...the type of person friends, loved ones and town government officials could count upon. When there was no money available for the town to pay an engineer to lay out a grade, Ed Young was available. No more.

Sunday, at the age of 64, Edwin A. Young died at his home of a massive heart attack...the last of several previous heart attacks which had accounted for his early retirement a few years ago.

A retired engineer with Penn Central Railroad, Ed had done private engineering and surveying work for the town both on a paid and no-charge basis. He was "A tremendous help to the town of Cohasset. He had a lot of common sense. I know we'll miss him," Cohasset Selectman Chairman Arthur Clark said of his death.

Born May 30, 1916, Ed Young graduated from Franklin Institute and Lowell Institute at MIT. From 1940-71 he was an engineer for the New York-New Haven Railroad. He was also surveying supervisor and manager for a real estate firm.

And from 1971-76 he was Vice President of Boston Survey Consultants, and Chairman of the Hyannis Land Development Co. on the Cape and inland.

During World War II he was a Captain in the U.S. Air Force in the European Theater. He was a past president of the Eastern Mass. Association of Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors, and a member of the same Massachusetts Association and Cape Cod Society.

He served as chairman of the Town's Government Island Study Committee and more recently he served as chairman of the Town's Citizen's Committee on Sewerage Site Selection.

Gerard Stanton, a member of the Cohasset Sewer Commission, said he has known Ed for over 40 years. "He was an ardent boatsman. He was a good fisherman, a gardener. He had a lot going for him. Mostly I'll remember him as an honorable guy and a real gentleman...a real fine gentleman."

He leaves his wife, Mary (O'Connell) Young and sons, Edwin A. Jr., of Swampscott and David H. of Saudi Arabia. Also daughters, Sarah Young of Boston and Jane Y. Rainville of Illinois. And a brother, John, of South Carolina and William, of Georgia. Also a sister, Marie Weathers of Florida.

He was also the brother of the late Charles Young of Canton and the late Madeline Vona of Braintree.

He leaves five grandchildren.

Visiting hours at Sparrell Funeral Home were Tuesday, and Wednesday from 2-4 p.m. and 7-9 p.m. The funeral will be held Thursday at 10 a.m. from St. Anthony's Church.

Cohasset women

Robert J. O'Hayre of 103 North Main Street. Born in Boston, both women have lived most of their lives in Cohasset. Mary was a graduate of Cohasset High School, while Elizabeth graduated from Archbishop Williams High School in Braintree.

Mary, who lived in Buzzards Bay, worked as a veterinary assistant at the Cranberry Animal Hospital in Buzzards Bay. Elizabeth worked as a laboratory assistant at Boston City Hospital.

Mary's body was first taken to the Cape Cod Hospital in Falmouth, and later transferred to the Gaffey Funeral Home in North Scituate. As of Tuesday morning, funeral arrangements were still incomplete.

Parker gets parking ticket on Parker Ave.

Connie Parker

The headline's a tongue-twister...but the parking ticket Connie Parker got in front of her home on Parker Avenue is symbolic of what's happening in the Precinct I (ocean-side) part of Cohasset.

Parking and even driving for residents and out-of-towners continues to be a real problem in the summer months...with the police department continually being called to move someone from somewhere they shouldn't be.

Both in and out-of-towners vie for use of the town's one public boat launch on Parker Avenue. Connie Parker said she was well aware that she

Petitioners recruit support for candidate Stockbridge

By Tanna Kasperowicz

Police Chief Randolph Feola, Sr. is definitely retiring this week, but a new twist has been added to the continuing story of his yet-to-be-appointed successor.

Late last week Atty. Charles Humphreys of Brook Street and Donald E. Staszko of Beach Street, began circulating petitions throughout the town asking that Cohasset Lieut. Charles Stockbridge be added to the final list of candidates being considered for Cohasset Police Chief.

Selectmen have interviewed two candidates for the post — Pittsfield Police Capt. Stanley Sankiewicz and Brockton Police Sgt. John DeBassio. As of last Wednesday, they were still waiting for the results of a special investigation into both men's backgrounds. A third candidate, Wenham Police Chief Edward Haraden, rumored to be selectmen's first choice, withdrew shortly after his interview.

In an interview Monday morning, Humphreys said he, Staszko and a number of other Cohasset citizens were concerned that a man (Stockbridge) with some 28 years of service to the town was not included in the final selection of the candidates by the police chief selection committee.

Humphreys said he had personally worked with Stockbridge on a number of police cases — "And he did a great job as prosecutor. I think there was pressure on the selection committee and the selectmen to go outside the department for a chief. But I also feel selectmen are the ultimate appointing authority. There's no way they can delegate that ultimate authority."

Humphreys also said he felt a mistake had been made. "There are a lot of dedicated officers in the Cohasset Police Department. The purpose of this petition is not to tell selectmen what man to appoint. I feel they should have an opportunity to consider Charlie. If after looking at his qualifications, they say another man is more qualified...fine.

"Right now I think selectmen feel they really have to abide by the selection committee's decision. But many citizens are not accepting that final selection so easily. The truth is, the most probable candidate (for Chief) is Charlie. He's a known commodity."

As of this Friday, Stockbridge, senior ranking man in the department, will be acting police chief in the town until an appointment is made. When selectmen made the acting appointment last week, they mentioned no additional pay, but since then Selectman Rocco Laugelle said selectmen will certainly vote to reimburse Stockbridge for his additional duties.

Selectmen solicit game hall advice

Nancy O'Toole of Haystack Lane applied for an amusement license last week to open a computer game room for kids and other folk, and caused one of the biggest stirs to hit the village in a long while.

O'Toole's original idea was to lease the former news store at Stagecoach Way. But as it turned out, she's not "married" to that location.

At least among some merchants, the initial reaction to a computer game room was negative, as it was negative among selectmen. One merchant, who wishes to remain nameless, said, "The kids are already here, we might as well put them inside." Still another said an establishment of O'Toole's design would only attract more kids to the downtown area.

Most of the kids we talked to thought it sounded great...but seemed more interested in having a place to sit down and have a coke than a place to play computer games. Although computer games would certainly be an attraction, most admitted. A senior said he'd like a pool hall in town.

O'Toole told selectmen she planned to lease approximately 20 computer machines (all sit-down models) and had the decor pretty much planned. At Stagecoach Way she'd need another lavatory. And all refreshments would arrive via yet another machine which would dispense coffee, tea, cola, and crackers, etc.

The computer-amusements O'Toole is talking about are amusement bingo, Space Invaders Part II and others. While O'Toole likes kids and was prompted in this endeavor by recent articles in the newspapers about young people hanging around the village with no place to go, she admits she would have to meet a hefty rent at Stagecoach Way — along with utilities.

"If I got a license, I'd close at 11 p.m. and I wouldn't be open during school hours. Amazingly, in other parts of the country not only kids play computer games. I'd be surprised if we didn't attract senior citizens," O'Toole said.

Selectman Rocco Laugelle, who recently returned from Mississippi, where a friend operates a similar concern, said, "I don't feel this town needs something like this. Kids bring in beer. You're going to get outsiders. I don't feel parents would go for something like this." Laugelle added he felt kids would "gamble" with the machines..."among themselves."

O'Toole rebutted Laugelle, saying the smallness of the lounge in the village would preclude trouble. "A smaller lounge can be controlled."

Selectman Henry Ainslie said he felt a lounge for kids would create only more problems. And Selectman Chairman Arthur Clark said he felt kids had too much money to spend today.

Selectmen took the issue of the amusement license under advisement and were asking for comments from merchants and others this week. The Cohasset Village and Harbor Association scheduled an emergency meeting for this week to discuss the matter.

In an effort to help tabulate opinions on the same, a questionnaire has been printed in this week's Mariner. The selectmen's next regularly-scheduled meeting is August 6 — so try to get your opinions in to the Mariner before that date.

5th Graders find basics a breeze - officials may toughen them up!

School committeewoman Patricia Walsh registered the sole dissenting vote (4-1) against the Basic Skills Testing Program at Monday's meeting of the committee.

Mrs. Walsh mentioned interviews she had had with business and insurance men who claimed that high school graduates couldn't do the basic math necessary to do the job.

'What surprised me is that everybody passed the thing!'

Mathematics and money work together in simple matters like balancing a checkbook, and Mrs. Walsh claimed that in the 5th Grade test there were none of those kind of problems.

"They don't have any problems with dollars and cents," said Mrs. Walsh.

Mrs. Walsh said the testing committee should have solicited the advise and opinions of merchants and interested parties, but Steven Hart, who headed the testing committee said they had placed an ad in the newspaper asking for such assistance, but no one had come forth.

"We have gone much farther than what was required," said Hart, "and the test can be used as a model for other towns. Certainly it had flaws, but it is a beginning."

"What surprised me," said Kenneth Ekberg, principal of the Deer Hill School, "was that everybody passed the thing."

Hart said that he expected the number of failures to be low, but added that did not reflect on the quality of the test.

"It is not set in concrete," said Frank England, chairman of the school committee, adding that the test may be adjusted in future years.

The Basic Skills Testing Program, which took one year and 25 committee members to put together, must be submitted to the state Department of Education by August 1. The test will be administered next year to Cohasset grammar school students, as part of a state wide program to check illiteracy.

Cohasset's week

He's not a janitor

The board of health is in charge of custodial supplies for the Bates buildilng (Elm Street offices for the planning board, board of health and sewer department) but it has no money for labor.

Sewer Treatment Engineer Manny Salvador wrote a seathing letter to selectmen last week, saying he could not run the sewer plant and clean the Bates building simultaneously. "Do you want a clean building or a smelly sewer plant?"

For the past 10 years, Manny and his men have been accepting the responsibility for cleaning of the building, but no more. He added that he would consider grieving the issue if it is not resolved.

Selectman Henry Ainslie said he felt it was the sewer commissioners' responsibility to clean the building, and that's who selectmen referred the matter to.

Joint meeting

Sewer Commissioner Joseph Gwinn confirmed that the Cohasset Sewer Commissioners will meet with their counterparts in Hull at the Cohasset Water Treatment Plant 8 p.m. Tuesday, August 12 to discuss Cohasset's utilization of a portion of the Hull Sewerage Treatment Plant.

Water rate

Selectmen feel the Hingham Water Department is discriminating against Cohasset water users with its proposed 23.5 per cent water rate increase. Selectman Chairman Arthur Clark said approximately 15-18 per cent of Cohasset homeowners are serviced by Hingham.

Last week Hingham notified selectmen that its Cohasset users should expect a rate increase because of additional usage by summer residents. Selectman Chairman Arthur Clark said he didn't think there were any more than three summer residents on the line, the Cohasset Golf Club being one.

Hingham last increased its rates July 4, 1979.

Clark said: "They are the only utility allowed to set rates by boundary lines." He added that residents on the Cohasset side of Hull Street pay more than the residents who live on the Hingham side.

"I feel we should go against an increase on the grounds we don't have summer residents," Selectman Rocco Laugelle said.

Selectmen will check into the matter.

Selectmen chairs

Annual town meeting gave selectmen $450 to buy three new selectmen's chairs and Selectman Henry Ainslie has been put in charge of the investigation.

"Arthur's been talking to the Cadillac of the chair companies...I'm going to look at the cheapies," Ainslie said.

Softball game

The date has been confirmed. Sunday, Aug. 10 the Town of Cohasset will play the Town of Scituate to raise money for the Jimmy Fund at Central School, Scituate (across from Dreamworld).

Although it is being tooted as a "selectmen's" game, only Selectman Rocco Laugelle will play as a selectmen's representative. Selectman Chairman Arthur Clark said he would play if they need someone to make up the 400 years (at all times, the 10 players on the field must total 400 years in age). Selectman Henry Ainslie said he would play if someone ran bases for him.

Septic system

Under Title V regulations, the Board of Health said recently that the septic system on the grounds of the multi-unit dwelling owned by Walter Winchester on Sandy Beach Lane should be repaired to accomodate a maximum of eight bedrooms.

Two of the dwelling's 10 bedrooms must be converted to another use.

Tennis match

The board of appeals has opined that under the town bylaws, Diana Lowry Bell of Gammons Road can construct a 36' by 78' tennis court on their Gammons Road property — but they can't fence it in.

As a result of that opinion, the Bells and an abutter, Peter Mazza, also of Gammons Road — plan to take the matter before Norfolk Superior Court.

Recently, the planning board, asked for its opinion, said the tennis court is a structure and permission should not be granted to build one unless it meets requirements as cited by the zoning bylaws. At that session, planners said the appeals board was incorrectly attempting to treat each portion of the tennis court as a separate entity (fence, concrete and etc.).

The appeals board has backed up the building inspector, James Litchfield, by stating that he was correct in his decision to grant a permit for the court, but not the fence — and in his decision to not amend the permit.

Atty. Charles Humphreys, representing the Bells, said he plans to ask the court for permission to erect a 10 ft. fence around the court.

Atty. Michael Keating, lawyer for the abutters, who included Carl Hurtig and David Weltman, will ask the court to prevent the Bells from every expanding the court to a regulation size court which would be surrounded by a fence.

There are no public parking problems on top of the Second Congregational Church...only an occasional jet roars by. Jeff Walls, 20, and Pete Kurtz, 27 — employees of the famous Mark Swain Painting Co. are painting the steeple. It took four days to finish the assignment. [Derr photo]

Real estate marketing

Last week two local realtors were off at meetings and busily selling houses and were unavailable for comment before press deadliine for the Mariner's local housing market article.

Muriel Desmond, manager of Jack Conway's Cohasset office said Conway, as rumored, broke all records the first week in July. "We sold $1 million in real estate out of the Cohasset office." She added that the average Cohasset home being sold (seven Cohasset homes in two weeks) ranged in price from $30,000 to $305,000 — with the average home selling around $118,000.

As most of Conway's market consists of transferring executives, there is no financing problem. "We have our own bank and mortgage company.

"Cohasset's moving again — there's a great deal of transferring out of the area, too," Ms. Desmond said.

John Hobbs, owner of Cohasset Village Realty, Inc., said one of the reasons for home-selling/buying in the area is the comparatively good home buy. "In Fairfield, Connecticut, home prices are much higher. North of Boston home prices are much higher."

Hobbs said the amenities of the area, ocean access,, good schools, small town image have kept the demand up, against the tide of the economy.

Cohasset Village Realty, Inc. is seeing a surge in Cohasset homeowners buying single family (rental) homes as a hedge against inflation. "This is the last bastion of independent investments," Hobbs said. "It's mind-boggling — if you buy a home at $60,000 today — in three or four years you're looking at a $100,000 home."

Buyers are also showing creativity with financing of the purchases. "We're seeing a trend towards refinancing of homes in order to buy another. At the same time, we're not seeing a tremendous increase in rental rates...compared to the tremendous increase in home prices. In time, rentals will also be driven up," Hobbs said.

Parking

would be living in a home within feet of the public boat launch, and she expected traffic. But over 14 years the traffic has become heavier and heavier, the trash that somehow follows the public wherever it goes has worsened, and the great and growing popularity of Bassing Beach is adding to the traffic and the mess.

Connie is also angry that the Cohasset Police Department "pinched" (ticketed) her and said she will fight paying the ticket in court.

Other Cohasset residents complain that they have to use the whole swing at the end of Parker Avenue in order to turn their boat trailers around. It's difficult to not trespass on private land (a pier owned by a Marshfield resident) when launching a boat. Boaters either pay the private pier owner's fee, or drive their cars to Government Island, sometimes leaving their boats unattended.

Garbage pick-up, at least at this public launch, is poor. A contractor is paid to cart trash and debris away...but apparently he's not paid often enough.

Black Rock Beach: the Town really has only one "public" beach. But there's no public parking area at Black Rock. Instead, there's a triangle park called Wadleigh Park, which was left to the town in memory of a man by the same name.

Some residents feel it should be made into a parking lot for the public — taken by eminent domain. Several years ago the late Edwin Young drew a parking lot plan for Wadleigh Park which could have serviced several dozens of cars. But Town Counsel advised the Recreational Department that the park had been deeded to the town as a park and that it would be difficult to free it for public parking.

In recent years, several homes have been built in the area and it is felt those homeowners would strenuously object to the closeness or activity any proposed parking lot might engender.

Mill River Bridge: it's illegal to jump off Mill River Bridge, but try to tell a youngster that. Last summer two local weekly newspapers got heck for printing pictures of the youthful offenders. Residents said the newspapers were encouraging kids to jump. This year, without any pictures, a youngster broke a couple of ribs on Mill River Bridge. Parking is also a problem in this area.

Sandy Beach: if you park illegally at Sandy Beach you get a fine of $10. However, over the weekend Cohasset Police gave out over 100 tickets to violators who were glad to pay the fine in order to cool off for a few hours...perhaps for the entire day.

One police official said: "I can't really blame people who live away from the shore for parking illegally. If selectmen really want to stop illegal parking they should raise the fines from $10 to $25 or $50." He added that Scituate has begun towing vehicles and he thinks Cohasset should follow suit.

At Sandy Beach there are 300 parking spaces. The police department has issued 3,000 stickers to residents this year. The Sandy Beach Association also issues tickets (for a price) to a certain number of out-of-towners who join the association.

According to Marge Libby, an association member, every year the tickets sold to out-of-towners lessens in order that the association can provide the growing community access to the beach.

Presently, the police department gives out parking tickets only on weekends. But several officers feel parking tickets should be given on weekdays, too.

Lieut. Charles Stockbridge said so far this year residents of the town have been able to find parking spaces at Sandy Beach. "July 4th weekend it was pretty tight — but all cars legally registered found room."

The police department used to issue "temporary guest permits" to individuals visiting Cohasset residents. But in recent years they stopped doing that. According to Stockbridge, the 1,000 visitor tickets were difficult to keep track of and visitor cars added to parking problems at the beach.

Notes and comments

...What should we be doing about gypsy moths? One person told us we should burn them off the trees. We said how were we to reach them everywhere on the trees? They said — use a long torch. Another person said some (not all) of the moths would turn into beautiful butterflies in the Spring. And Felicia Bartow said call the Crehans.

So we did. Karen Crehan said yes, she had them on her trees and she wasn't sure what she was going to do. "Somebody said scrape them off with a twig and throw them into kerosene. But I'm not going any higher than a stepladder."

Then you won't get all of them, we said.

"No, I won't. Somebody else said you can have your trees sprayed in the Spring...you have to call an exterminator. And somebody else said the town would have to spray in the Spring.

"They've been in Connecticut for the past couple of years. When they had nothing else to eat in Connecticut they came here."

Sounds reasonable.

...We've been doing a little, not a whole lot, of investigation into Nancy O'Toole's proposal to open a computer game shop in the village (Old News Co. Store on South Main Street) or elsewhere in town. Basically, we've been getting a lot of yes-nos.

Some policemen say why not? Others say no, no never.

The Cohasset Village and Harbor Association has called an emergency meeting for this week and will presumably have a statement to make by next week's newspaper.

Please see this week's clip-out and mail questionnaire on the same and do answer it!

Bags Barracuda with Bang-O

(ED NOTE: Fran Johnston is the Mariner's Saudia Arabian correspondent. He's been religiously writing us letters about everything from camel soup to — in this letter — fishing. He'll be back home Tuesday for rest and relaxation. See you at the Log, Fran!)

Well, here I am into my second week of bachelorhood without the family being here. It is difficult to describe the feeling of being alone after 13 years of living together. I firmly believe the old saying that "Absence makes the heart grow fonder"...

Yesterday was the start of Ramadan. It is during this month that Moslems fast from sunrise till sunset (0330 to 1800), refrain from eating, drinking, smoking and sexual activity all day long.

Ramadan is a month of worship and devotion. Ramadan is the Arabic word meaning "sunbaked"; an apt description in this remote area of this vast country. The most devout even refrain from swallowing their own saliva during the fasting period.

Soon after sunset, the Moslems end their daily fast with a heavy meal known as "infitar" or literally breakfast. In many cases, merrymaking and endless visits to friends and relatives continue throughout the night, until shortly before sunrise when the families return to the table to eat "sohour" the last meal before fasting begins again.

The Moslems believe that during this month, the Prophet Mohammad received his message from God, the Qura- (Koran), and was ordered to deliver it to all the people.

Fasting is one of the important practices of the Moslem faith. It is one of the "Five Pillars" of belief. These pillars are: (1) to testify that there is only one God and Mohammad is the messenger of God, (2) prayer - to pray five times a day, (3) Zakat - to give 2.5 per cent of your income to the poor, (4) fasting and (5) Hajj - pilgrimage to Mecca once in a life time for those who are physically and financially able to do so.

At approximately 0200 hours, they are awaken, if asleep, by a cannon, and just before sunrise another cannon is sounded to advise them that the beginning of fasting has started.

The last day of fasting will be after 29 or 30 days of the first day of Ramadan, depending on the observance of the moon. The "Eid" will be the following day on which the Moslems celebrate the end of fasting. During Eid, people visit their relatives and friends to greet them and wish them each a happy year. The host usually offers the guest sweets and Arabic coffee or tea.

Ramadan being a lunar month in the Arabic calendar, moves from year to year. The fast is beneficial to the Moslems, both in spiritual and mental health; greater social cohesion is experienced by rich and poor alike. The fast is intended to be inner as well as outer, with a special effort made to abstain from expressing anger, criticism and any other negative feelings.

Well, the fishing season officially opened here at RAM. We now have Saudi Coast Guard approval to use our two 21' Boston Whalers. We started last Friday, (our day off) and I now have the record for the largest fish caught.

Using a Bagley's Diving Bang-O-B with a 40 pound test line, I caught a 4½ foot Barracuda weighing about 22 pounds. My new room-mate and our Port Expeditor, Everett Mappin (single and eligible, girls) caught two other Barracuda. We also caught a Sea Bass weighing about 12 pounds.

We troll at about 4 knots and just about have to fight the fish off from jumping into the boat. Since this is just about virgin waters as far as fishing, we look forward to bigger fish in the future.

We lost two sharks just as we were about to bring them into the boat. The fun starts though when you land the fish in the boat and he is thrashing around looking for toes, legs or arms to chew on. You ought to see us jump around before we administer the Coup de Gras with a very long piece of wood...very long.

That night, Everett cleaned (I don't volunteer for those jobs) and cooked the Barracuda. We breaded the fish and deep fried chunks and it was delicious. Tastes something like Halibut. We were a little apprehensive about side effects but we haven't grown any extra teeth and we are not snapping at each other. I do seem to be growing though...

We think we have gotten the fishing bug. We go out each day from 1100 to 1300 (our lunch hour). Even though the temperature is around 120 degrees F, the fish still are biting. We are also getting a great tan so that we will still put you to shame at Sandy Beach.

Only 20 days and a wake up till I return to Cohasset. Plan on taking the month of August off and just relaxing; but if I know Marie, she will have me hot-topping the driveway, painting the house and other small chores. Can hardly wait...

Hear that Op-Sail 80 was a tremendous success. Am really sorry that I missed it as I was so deeply involved in the 76 project. I'll bet that there wasn't a single boat in Cohasset Harbor that day. Hope you all got ring-side seats off Castle Island.

Our trips to Al Khobar have been reduced during Ramadan. The highways are extremely busy with people arriving from all over the Middle East on their way to Mecca for the pilgrimage. It is best to avoid driving as drivers usually drive straight through from Syria, Jordan or Lebanon. They come right past our facility. They camp out in the desert if need be and it is an ideal time to go out and barter with them for rugs, jewelry that they have brought to pay their way.

From what we hear, which is very little, the Mid East situation has cooled down. We listen to the English Arab news each night but there has been little mention of this situation. Hopefully, it will be resolved soon.

Time to sign off and get this on the camel caravan heading towards Dammam. Have been lucky in that last week I received four back issues of the Mariner. See the town survived the High School graduation parties and everyone had a good time.

The biggest hit on camp are the Police Logs. As soon as I get the paper, everyone wants to see them. They are Great...keep up the good work. Let me clarify the last. No one likes to see crime, etc. but the comical bits that are inserted are the ones I am talking about.

Have a happy and safe summer and see you all on 5 August 1980.

Fran Johnston

How do you feel about a computer hall?

If several members of your family wish to answer the questions differently, print the question numbers on a separate piece of paper and respond accordingly. We'll still count your response in our tally.

Three hundred additional copies of the questionnaire are being circulated throughout the town.

Please answer the questions only one time. You're on your honor!

Mail your results to: The Cohasset Mariner, Box 71, Cohasset, 02025. Or drop your answers off at the Cohasset Colonial Pharmacy Drop Box on South Main Street (please use an envelope).

Additional comments and letters on the subject are welcome.

Primary registration

August 19 is the deadline for registering to vote or changing political party affiliation before the September 16 state primary elections.

The League of Women Voters of Cohasset is participating in a statewide effort to encourage registration and to explain the special procedures for voting in a primary. Two important aspects of registration are being emphasized by the League.

First, there is no waiting period for voter registration in Massachusetts. Any U.S. citizen who takes up residence in the state can register immediately. Second, although the legal age for registration is 18, 17-year old residents who will be 18 by the date of the next election in his or her community may register. (That is, if you will be 18 by September 16, you can register now.)

Primaries are party elections held to choose candidates for office. They are often confusing because voters must select one party's ballot in order to vote. To choose a party's ballot, you must be enrolled in that party (enrollment takes place at the time of registration) or be unenrolled (independent).

Voters may change their party affiliation at any time until the August 19 deadline by notifying local election officials (Town Clerk) in person or by mail. Unenrolled (independent) voters may choose to vote

STAGNANT WATER

Arnold Weeks of Sandy Beach Lane wrote to selectmen last week regarding a pool of stagnant water on the lane he'd like removed. Weeks said the pool is caused by a broken drain pipe. A copy of his letter was also sent to the board of health. Selectmen said as far as they knew Sandy Beach Lane is a private way, but they will check into the matter.

POPE MEMORIAL CHURCH

Selectmen will check with the Hull Methodists (owners of Pope Memorial Church) before granting the S.S. Helenic Association a one-day liquor license for a "Taverna" from noon to 8 p.m. August 17. Selectmen Henry Ainslie said he had received a call from a person regarding the church's previous activities at which wine and beer were served. That unnamed person doesn't feel a church should serve alcoholic beverages, Ainslie said.

AUDITORIUM RENTAL

Per a recommendation from the advisory committee, selectmen said they will consider increasing rental rates for groups using the Town Hall auditorium.

MASSPORT COUNCIL

Persons interested in serving the town on the Massport coummunity advisory council should contact the selectmen's office at 383-0228.

BID AWARD

Selectmen voted Spensley Chevrolet the contract for a truck for the tree and park department at $11,000 per specifications.

REBID

Bids solicited for a new police cruiser failed to meet specifications which require that a new, 1980 vehicle be purchased. Accordingly, selectmen will readvertise for bids.

NOT INTERESTED

Donna McKinnon of Scituate petitioned selectmen last week for a taxi license to serve Cohasset. Selectmen decided they were not interested in any additional taxi service in the town.

$10 PARKING TICKETS

Parking violators nabbed at Sandy Beach have been paying $10 per fine for a while now. Last week selectmen voted to increase the fine for parking violations from $5 or $10 throughout the town. Watch it! The increase will be advertised before it goes into effect.

School committee briefs

COACHES NEEDED

The Junior/Senior High School still needs a varsity field hockey coach, a junior varsity field hockey coach, a junior varsity soccer coach and two assistant football coaches for the Fall term. "It's late in the game to be making these appointments," said Acting Superintendent Raftery. The school committee will advertise the positions in the Boston Globe.

FINAL INTERVIEWS

Final interviews for the three candidates for school superintendent are scheduled to be held on August 11, 13 and 15 in meetings that will be open to the public.

RESIGNATION

The school committee accepted the resignation of Thelma Burns "with deep regret" at a School Committee Meeting on July 28. Mrs. Burns, the METCO coordinator is moving into the Belmont school system.

APPOINTMENT

Dorothy Wondolowski was appointed as a social studies teacher in the Junior/Senior High School. Acting Superintendent John Raftery referred to Mrs. Wondolowski as an "exceptionally good candidate" for the job.

Bassing Beach: it's open to the public but you've got to have a boat to get there with a dry towel. That discourages the average boatless resident from catching Bassing's sun...unless a friend will row them over.

Out at sea: from a boat off White Head one can see a surprising number of beaches which are private... spots here and there. There's no public access to them. Recently, a local artist attempted to walk the shoreline of Cohasset, only to be shooed away by various persons with deeded beach rights...even though he was walking the tideline.

On a map of Cohasset you can see the beaches along the coast you can't get to: Pleasant Beach, Beach Island, Quarry Point, White Head, Whale Meadow.

But it's nice to know they're there.

August 30th celebrity auction items pouring in

New items for the celebrity auction are still arriving, but Drexel Gibson, Chairman of the Historical Commission is asking anyone who knows a celebrity to please give him a call at 383-9745.

A personal contact makes for a better connection and will speed the renovation of the Caleb Lothrop House on Summer Street, which is being rebuilt with the help of the proceeds from the auction. It will be held on August 30 at 10:00 a.m. at the South Shore Music Circus tent on Sohier Street, and so far the Historical Commission has received 120 items of the anticipated 200.

In the last week Lillian Gish has sent the commission a handkerchief embroidered with a Christmas Tree, also a handwritten card with a photo and "In remembrance Lillian Gish."

Jerry Vale delivered an autographed record album "La Vie En Rose" and nine other songs. Other autographed record albums came from Lily Tomlin "Lily Tomlin on Stage"; Chuck Mangione, "Fun & Games", which includes "Give It All You Got" and five other songs; Ella Fitzgerald, "Fine and Mellow" with nine of her greatest hits.

Even more albums come from Paul Anka and Wayne Newton and Steve Lawrence & Eydie Gorme sent their double album, "Our Love Is Here to Stay", featuring "The Gershwin Years", "Rhapsody in Blue", "Gershwin Medley" and a dozen or more of their best hits. Even Dennis Weaver sent a record album entitled "Walk Along with Me" along with an autographed photo.

Man-mountain Arnold Schwarzanegger sent an autographed copy of "Arnold — The Education of a Bodybuilder" profusely illustrated and Pearl Bailey sent her book "Duey's Tale".

Senator Edward M. Kennedy donated his recipes for 'Cape Cod Fish Chowder' and 'Yankee Fruit Cobbler', along with a signed picture and George Burns sent an autographed book of his called "Living It Up or They Still Like Me in Altoona."

O. J. Simpson's personal autograph on the pennant of San Francisco 49'ers is a real collector's item since The Juice's retirement.

Ellery Clark, lifetime resident of Cohasset and author of best selling books on the Red Sox, sent an autographed copy of his "Red Sox Fever" together with reprints from Sports Illustrated and the Boston Herald. Henry Beetle Hough, publisher of the Vineyard Gazette sent an autographed copy of his "Roosters Grow in Town".

And Shirley Jones and Marty Ingels sent the original script cover used for their sketch on The Tonight Show, the only time they appeared on TV together.

There is a beautiful color poster of Maxie Anderson and his son: a color photo of the Kitty Hawk over the Sierra Nevada. It was taken four days before they were to land on May 12 in Quebec in a record-breaking transcontinental balloon trip from West to East Coast of North America. It is signed both by father and son

A real hockey stick came from the Boston Bruins, personally autographed by all the players! Also, a Media Guide containing profiles and line-up from the San Diego Chargers, and an autographed "Charger Power" poster and three "Charger Power" decals. The Colorado Rockies sent their 1979-80 Yearbook autographed by Dan Cherry and his dog Blue, and a color picture of the team.

More record albums: A Maynard Ferguson two record album with themes from "Star Trek", "Star Wars", "Battlestar Galactica", "Stella by Starlight" and much more. Also two tee-shirts; "M.F.'S Tour of 1980" sizes 38-40 and 42-44.

Rise Stevens, star of the Metropolitan Opera in New York, sent a chiffon scarf with embroidered initial. And George Bush donated a beautiful Chinese rubbing acquired when he was U.S. Envoy to China. The Frame-Up of Cushing Plaza of Cohasset donated a black and gold bamboo style custom-made frame to hold it.

Lots of good stuff! More next week.

Fair as good as people make it

As is my habit I went to Marshfield Fair last year. I go annually because the fair draws thousands of people to town, has a history of more than a century there on Marshfield's Main Street, and also has a number of young people showing their animals.

I know full well there's a certain amount of snarling that goes on every year by a percentage of people. They challenge the value of the fair, its attraction for flies, the horse racing and some of the characters which don't miss a race, the vandalism which comes to town in the neighborhood with the fair week.

PATCHES

Some have challenged whether or not it's really a nonprofit organization and they've been told to check records and permits filed with the state if they choose.

But there are others who credit the fair with bringing thousands of dollars along with thousands of people to town. They point to the 4Hers who preen those animals for judging, the magnificent flower and vegetable arrangements, the fun all day from a kid's point of view and nighttime country entertainment, like the unforgettable Sleepy LaBeef.

That's the way with things, isn't it. Something was started a long time ago and today we could cherish it simply because its old. But in the transition, our progress, our laxity if that seems more applicable from your point of view, has allowed money games to get more billing and more of a red carpet than the origin for which it was founded, horticulture and agriculture.

Part of the strength of Marshfield's Fair is that such fairs, even if changed by racing and a racy carny atmosphere, is their age. We don't like to have anything become extinct, and as the 20th century grows older, we're getting more attached to the 19th. We may curse that which has served to change or even defile something, but we'll be likely to keep it simply because it's one of a few of its kinds left. We hang on to our old things on principle, except people, clothes and appliances.

I doubt Marshfield Fair is the only one to have undergone growing pains that aren't always savory. I saw Bangor (Maine) Fair a couple years ago. They had the same kind of hoopla, your horsepulling, your jams and jellies, your woman entwined with deadly snakes...and your races.

My favorite used to be the Blue Hill Fair. When the time came for that big fun day I thought my father moved through 'what had to be done' in slow motion. The fair has always had the same ingredients as I see here.

One thing I've noticed which gives me pause. Last year when I stopped by the exhibition hall I was just in time for the apple pie judging. I liked that and I watched with interest wondering how my pie would have held up under official scrutiny.

I assumed they'd whittled competition down to two pies. But instead I learned only two pies were entered. That's dreadful. Two pies for our fair!!!!! If it were a shortage of decent pie cooks, I'd go along with the shortage of entries. But that's not the case. I'd pit our apple pies against pastries from any part of the country. Our apple pies should be causing tough consternation for the judges. About 50 finalists should be watching the tasting, the lightness of the pastry check, the apple texture of competing pies with a sharp eye.

The exhibition hall has glass pastry cases in which to store the goods safely away from the offending flies. But somehow as time has passed, the intent behind those magnificent contests seems to have been tucked away like pies from flies. I guess the thing is, lest we throw out the baby with the bath water some day in self-righteous umbrage over some not-so-fair details, let us work to shine up the horticultural and agricultural part of the proceedings ourselves.

Enter your zinnias, display your jelly, proclaim your zucchini, earn yourself a blue ribbon for your afghan. We may be doing other things but we're also carrying on with crafts which are much older than that or any other fair.

People who care about the fair, one way or another, haven't really exercised all energies to make sure that it's mostly memorable for its animals, flowers, (three swell rides), favorite food booths, vegetables, delicious fattening junk food (cotton candy among them)...and your apple pie.

THE HONORABLE John W. McCormack, former U.S. Speaker of the U.S. House, endorses James E. Carroll of Cohasset for Governor's Council in the Fourth District.

TED FORD
STATE REPRESENTATIVE
DEMOCRAT HINGHAM — HULL — COHASSET

There are less than two months left before the September primary and I'm hoofing through Hingham, Hull, and Cohasset introducing myself to voters. I bought some rubber sole shoes. I am satisfied with the progress of the campaign and am receiving good response to its major themes:

—the need for fiscal restraint
—improved commuter boat and road transportation
—tax breaks for senior citizens
—efforts to improve Hull's economy

Don't be surprised if I come knocking on your door or drop a brochure. I plan to visit each house and hope to meet as many of you as possible.

Incidentally, for anyone who would like to contribute to my campaign, there is a 50% federal tax credit, and I would appreciate it.

Cohasset's Gjesteby-Outward Bound soloist

By Bernie Quigley

At the end of June, Nils Gjesteby, 18, of 81 Old Pasture Road, spent four days alone in the woods on Little Penobscot Island, off the coast of Maine.

Without food, without friends, without a toothbrush or a radio to break up the silence and the night noises, he sang the same song over and over. A thousand times he sang it, he said. Since food was scarce and foraging would have taken up most of his energy, he thought the correct decision was to fast, rest and wait, and watch the sun go up and down seven times.

Describing the experience as a whole, Nils said, "It was fun." He was not lost in the woods, he was there on a solo expedition as part of Outward Bound School's 26-day expedition in sailing and survival, with a long measure of solitude put in for good measure.

Nils is not the kind of young man to be lost in the woods, on the sea or in town. What he missed most after his 26 days in the wilderness of Hurricane Island, the land base for Outward Bound 12 miles off the coast of Rockland, Maine, was a newspaper. As solitude was the agenda for only four days in the "solo," he was isolated for the rest of the 26 with only the other nine people in his "watch." That's the code name for Outward Bound's primary grouping.

It sounds like a yin-yang version of basic training and includes rock climbing, rope workouts 50 to 70 feet off the ground and sailing in a 30-ft., double-mast rig that looks like an old double-ended whaling boat.

On an average day it was up at 5 a.m. for a three-mile run and off a 20-ft. dock for a morning swim. Water temperature at 40 degrees.

"It was cold," said Nils, but it was always cold. He said he wore three layers of clothing all the time, except for night sailing, when he wore six layers.

Outward Bound's catalogue touts this summer vacation as ". . . being cold, hungry, wet, tired, aching, hurting, frustrated, and alone." But there comes a time in a young man's life when this sort of thing seems like just the right stuff. And as Outward Bound has proved, you need not be a young man to want it. Their students are men and women that range to age 65.

After breakfast, you begin with the rocks; they are four grades of difficulty, the third being the hardest. The third comes before your four days alone in the woods, and after five days at sea. That is four nights sailing, in the cold, with each member of the "watch" (ten students plus two instructors in this 30 ft. skiff without toilet or television) exchanging position at the tiller, switching the watch at night, and when the wind is dead, rowing in unison.

"...and there is nothing to do at night but go to sleep."

Nils Gjesteby

On a 'normal' day, you eat lunch and then go back to the grind. No meat for lunch, soup. And after lunch it might be rope climbing. These ropes are tied to logs that appear to float freely between the tops of trees; the idea being to walk from one to the other without falling off.

It's not as bad as it seems, said Nils; you have a rope tied to your waist as a safety harness, and if you fall you won't fall far. "Safety is the main thing there," said Nils, "believe it or not."

By the end of a day like this you would be ready for a big meal, and this is where the similarity to basic training ends. As the Army specializes in gruel, Outward Bound is heavily into grain.

"It was a different style of food," said Nils, describing suppertime, a Rick Perry's "A Collection of Recipes," a cookbook of sorts for Hurricane Island fare, bears him out. The menu includes miso tahini sauce, kasha bulghar, taboulie, sesame wheat stew, humus and peanut butter cookies.

This is a hard regimen, and there is nothing to do at night but go to sleep. Once in a while there would be a lecture on the weather, maybe by 'Altitude Lou,' a newscaster from Bangor, or a talk on food (where Nils learned from the yin-yang chef that Twinkies have a 12-year shelf life), but usually you would be too tired to do anything but sleep.

After 26 days, Nils was ten pounds lighter and well tanned. When he came back to Cohasset the other members of Outward Bound went back to the Bronx, the South, or points West.

Had it changed his life? Did he feel any different? No, said Nils. "But I think I've become more patient."

Obituaries

Mary and Elizabeth O'Hayre

Mary C. and Elizabeth M. O'Hayre died July 20, by accident. They are the daughters of Robert J. and Genevieve (Knight) O'Hayre of Cohasset. They also leave sisters, Mrs. Kathleen Kester of Scituate and Mrs. Jane Hamilton of Cohasset, and a brother, Robert J. Jr. of Cohasset.

Expressions of sympathy may be made in their memory to the Boston College Alumni Fund, 74 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston.

Elizabeth Reed

Elizabeth Lee (MacLeod) Reed, 62, died July 26. She leaves her husband, Richard Leslie Reed of 500 Jerusalem Road, a son, Walter J. of Hingham, and daughters Helen C. Garvey of Scituate and Gertrude Ann Trent of Billerica. She was also mother of the late Robert Leslie Reed of Cohasset.

She also leaves seven grandchildren. The funeral was from Sparrell Funeral Home, followed by a Mass of Christian Burial in St. Anthony's Church. She will be buried in the Pepperell Cemetery, Pepperell.

Marion James

Marion Fuller James, 85, died July 19. She leaves two brothers, Paul Ripley James of North Scituate, Robert B. James of Cohasset, and a sister, Mrs. Leon (Myra E.) Sheman, of Plymouth, New Hampshire.

She also leaves several nieces and nephews.

Burial was in Beechwood Cemetery.

Engagements

Taylor - Adams

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Mello of Cohasset are pleased to announce the engagement of Mrs. Mello's daughter, Elizabeth Dianne Taylor, of Boston, to Richard F. Adams, son of Major (Ret.) and Mrs. Francis C. Adams, of Burlington.

Miss Taylor is a graduate of Cohasset High School and Burdett School and is currently employed by Argent Capital Corporation of Boston.

Mr. Adams is a graduate of Burlington High School and Wentworth Institute of Technology and is currently employed by Executone of Boston.

An October wedding is planned.

Walsh - Dillon

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Walsh of Cohasset announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Teresa, to Peter Mark Dillon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Dillon. The couple and their parents are Cohasset residents. An August 30th wedding is planned.

These 12-year old Cohasset All-Stars beat the Plymouth All-Stars by 11-1 two weeks ago in the first round of the All-Star League playoffs. Unfortunately, they didn't stick around long enough for us to get their names. [Derr photo]

Planning Board endorses 19-lot subdivision

Forest Ave. subdivision wins initial approval

By Karin Bartow

The planning board approved, subject to one final detail and conditions agreed to by its members Monday night, to endorse a 19-lot subdivision off Forest Avenue by Robert Hawker and the HMS Development Corporation.

The proposed development, located on Heather Drive adjacent to Cedar Acres Lane, also received approval from water commissioners the same evening. Two hydrants and an 8-inch pipe were requested by the commissioners.

Concern over future development of Forest Avenue and accompanying drainage problems in the area has been expressed at past meetings by both boards. Revised plans submitted by Hawker and his engineer, Neal Murphy, have satisfied the planning board now that conditions have been attached.

A cross-section of the entire length of the swale (a drainage ditch dug on the back lots by HMS to straighten out the flow of existing drainage), showing the slope of the ditch will be required before final endorsement by the board.

The conditions include: any culvert constructed in the development must have a 12 cfs (cubic feet/second) capacity; the developer must come back to the planning board with calculations for approval of any pipe, other than a culvert, that is to be installed in the existing swale in lots #9, 10 and 11; the drainage pipe must be extended 12' southerly from lot #12 with 18'' reinforced concrete pipe; and realignment of the last length of existing concrete pipe at Cedar Acres Lane, provision of a headwall at inlet of existing 24'' CMP, and re-grading of a ditch in this area to meet pipe inlet.

At the last meeting, planning board engineer John Modzelewski, requested a legal ruling by town counsel on putting an easement over the drainage ditch on two of the lots at the end of the cul-de-sac. He feels an easement would provide for future access to the abutting back land by allowing a place for drainage to enter and exit.

Town counsel Blake Thaxter was not present at the meeting, but Planning Board Chairman Pat Facey and Hawker's attorney, Ted Welburn, conveyed his opinion from conversations they both had had with attorney Richard Henderson of Thaxter's office.

In Henderson's opinion, the planning board has control over future development of the area and legally, there is no basis for requiring an easement of HMS.

A motion was still made to require a drainage easement across lots #9, 10 and 11, but it failed to carry by a vote of 2-2.

Questions pertaining to drainage and development in the area dealt as much with HMS's land on Heather Drive as with the adjacent back 30 acres, which Hawker has an option to buy. He said the option was not indefinite.

Cedar Acres Lane residents at the meeting expressed their concerns about drainage and the safety of the ditch. Planning board members told them that both engineers have done drainage calculations that show Cedar Acres Lane can deal with the flow capacity. Drainage from Heather Drive would flow through the Cedar Acres Lane system.

However, indications are that if the area is fully developed without enough retention area to keep the flow at 12 cfs, residents might expect the need to change pipes on Cedar Acres Lane.

Hawker stated that he has been granted an easement from Joseph Kealey (initial developer of Cedar Acres Lane) on a 20' section of pipe on Cedar Acres Lane and to expand or modify drainage for the whole street, if need be.

The safety of the existing drainage ditch will be ensured by the sloping and grading requested in conditions by the board. Facey was satisfied that there will be safe access to Heather Drive and sight distances at Forest Avenue are adequate.

The board granted waivers to HMS on sidewalks for one side (rather than two) and for granite on the radius of the cul-de-sac (but not on two filler curves out front) on Heather Drive.

The planning board will meet, as regularly scheduled, on Wednesday, August 6 at 8 p.m. to reconsider the Humphreys Atlantic Avenue property and review proposed new Board of Health rules and regulations for stabling horses.

Increased Logan traffic irks Cohasset

By Tanna Kasperowicz

The FAA (Federal Aviation Administration) monitored the noise levels of jets passing over South Shore skies in Hull in October 1979 and February 1980. However, as of May this year Massport began flying 60 per cent of its 300 incoming and 600 departing flights over South Shore towns.

In addition, there's been a 30 per cent increase in air traffic over South Shore towns from 10 years ago, according to one FAA official.

Residents of Cohasset, Scituate, Hull, Hingham, South Boston and Squantum met with FAA and Massport officials last Wednesday at the Cohasset Town Hall to discuss their mutual noise grievances in a public meeting called by State Representative Mary Jeanette Murray (R) - Cohasset, Hingham and Hull.

All indications for the increase in noise levels in additional flights passing over this area are that it's political. Or at least that's what Rep. Murray was told. This immediate area has, the FAA computer says, the least number of people bothered by air traffic.

If the number of complaints Massport and the FAA have been receiving over a three-month period are a true indication of irate people — than Cohasset and Scituate residents, at least, are taking increased air traffic pretty calmly.

In that period of time 27 Cohasset residents and 62 Scituate residents have complained...along with Johnny Mathis who was performing at the South Shore Music Circus.

In Hull, 519 residents complained of planes swooping down over the beaches and the homes — so closely residents could see the windows on the planes.

A member of the Scituate Steering Committee commented that FAA and Massport noise impact studies "don't address the issue. The impact study said there would be little or no impact on the area."

The FAA said there will be a July and August follow-up noise study, taken by people stationed in area towns. Massport officials said there are plans to do continuous noise monitoring in Hull and Squantum, with mikes.

Delta Airlines Pilot Bill Becker, from Cohasset, said all airlines are experiencing greater costs by flying noise abatement routes, which add 20 minutes to all flights and chalk up untold millions of dollars in additional fuel. He confirmed that all planes are monitored and tracked almost continuously, rebutting statements from residents that planes weren't staying on course.

Environmental conditions also affect a pilot's course, Becker said. "It might be unsafe to make a turn more quickly, the wind has an effect. We do things now, with noise abatement, that if it were my choice, I wouldn't do; i.e. we land down-wind, take long routes, cause delays. The only time I deviate from a course is in the interest of safety. We can violate all kinds of rules, if in our judgment, it's not safe."

FAA officials admitted that every airplane can't follow a narrow tract. The best we can do is take them roughly north and they hit within that as much as possible."

Selectman Claudette Fitzsimmons of Hull, said: "Ultimately, gentlemen, your ultimate route stinks."

Scituate Selectman Jerry Dwight said he didn't feel Logan Airport could effectively handle its traffic. "Maybe the problem is in the number of aircraft allowed to take-off and land at Logan."

Massport officials said: "Noise is very subjective."

Pam Wolfe of State Senator Allan McKinnon's office said she felt the problem would ultimately have to be fought legislatively. Ms. Wolfe suggested that residents keep logs of times air traffic has been a nuisance, call FAA Controller Gary Tucker at 567-6622 to register complaints, call your local board of selectmen, or the Massport at 567-3333.

George Richardson, a prominent New England artist who is best know in this area for his "American Landmark Collection" is now continuing his work in Cohasset.

Although a great deal of time is required for the research and drawing of each new landmark, Richardson likes to allot much of his energy to marine paintings. "I like working in Cohasset" he says, "and I plan to start here painting interesting people, rugged boats and the beautiful scenery that make up today's life along the New England coastlilne."

One of his favorite landmarks "Minot Light" which he has depicted at daybreak, has recently been completed in oil and is being shown at the David Sharpe Gallery in Cohasset.

His "American Landmark Collection" continues to grow and is being used for study by many New England schools. It is also in use as far away as Athens, Greece where the collection is available to children of American military personnel stationed in Europe. The school series has a written text in which Richardson evaluates each landmark.

Feola testimonial

STEPPING DOWN — On his last day at the helm, Police Chief Randolph Feola (R) shares a joke with Chief Ray Campbell of Hingham.

A testimonial dinner will be held for retired police chief Randolph A. Feola, Sr., Friday, Sept. 19 — cocktails from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. and dinner at 8 p.m. sharp — at Hugos.

Gerard Keating is roastmaster. Tickets are available. Persons wishing to reserve seats for the roast should call 383-6700 or 383-9115.

David Sweeney, Clark Chatterton, and Doris Golden will also be selling tickets. More on the same next week.

Orthodox Parish holds fundraiser

The Golden Rooster Restaurant in North Scituate was again the host for another fundraiser for the purchase of the Pope Memorial Church by the Greek Orthodox Parish.

Head table guests included the Honorable Consul of Greece at Boston, Mr. Michael Coubatis and Mrs. Coubatis, the Director of the Maliotis Cultural Center, Rev. Nicholas M. Marinos, Peter Agris, publisher of the Hellenic Chronicle, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Zervas, owners of the Golden Rooster Restaurant, Mrs. Eugenia Syrmopoulos, one of the founders of the Association, and Ernest Sofis, Toastmaster.

With the theme "It is in your hands" now, Rev. Marinos, in a brief talk, said that the establishment of a Greek Orthodox Parish in Cohasset will become a reality through the hard work, patience, and enthusiasm of all the many people that accept the challenge.

George and Faye Papadopoulos were the Co-chairpersons for this dinner and should be congratulated for the fine job they did.

Cohasset officialdom in softball showdown

Sunday, August 10, the town officials of Scituate will play the Cohasset Town Officials in a softball game designed to raise money for the Jimmy Fund.

Local merchants of Cohasset and Scituate will be sponsoring players. The $25 fee entitles the business to a team T-shirt with the business name on the back, and a donation to the Jimmy Fund.

Ron Goodwin of Fat City has offered to donate the shirts for the Cohasset team.

Any business, or individual for that matter, wishing to sponsor a player, (i.e. Contribute to the Jimmy Fund), may call Jack Worley at the Cohasset Recreation Department, 383-6791, for further details. This should be done immediately.

While sponsorship provides some capital for the Jimmy Fund, it is the attendance at the game that will provide the main source of revenue. The admission is free, however, a 'hat' will be passed for donations of any amounts.

Cohasset management is still scouting for the Jim Lonborg "equalizer." Jim will be playing for the Scituate team and while there is no confirmation of the fact, it is suspected he will be pitching.

Rules for the ball game are specific and include such items as:

1. Players must be either elected or appointed Town Officials, Department heads, or supervisors.
2. Ten players will be on the field at all times, with the cumulative age of 400 years or more.
3. Free substitution will be allowed.
4. Professional and ex-professional athletes may be considered 'honorary' Town Officials for that day.

The Jimmy Fund and both Teams need your support — so keep Sunday afternoon, Aug. 10 open, and come over to the Central School Field in Scituate, at 1 p.m. to help out the Jimmy Fund and some overly optimistic middle aged men.

Rock scene returns to Winter Gardens

Cohasset Winter Gardens, which introduced disco ice skating to New England last August, celebrates the first anniversary of the event with a spectacular Super Hits of the Seventies Night, spotlighting the top Rock 'n Roll hits of the decade.

Scheduled for Friday, August 8, Super Hits night will feature all the top records from 1970 to 1980. Spinning the records at the Route 3A, Cohasset, ice skating rink will be WVBF-105 disc jockey Pete Falcone. He'll also be giving away free record albums, compliments of the radio station.

Admission for the two-and-a-half-hour session is $3. All age groups are welcome and rental skates are available. Non-skaters will be able to dance and enjoy the festivities on a special non-slip surface which will be installed at center ice.

The now traditional "disco" lights will add to the special effect for the night.

Meeting clarifies game room proposal

To the Editor:

On Wednesday, July 31, I (Nancy O'Toole) met with the Cohasset Village and Harbor Association at the Red Lion Inn. The purpose of the meeting was to clarify any misconceptions in its minds of a proposal for a computer game room. One of the most important explanations is that in no way was it to be an arcade-type game room. And in no way would rowdiness be allowed.

The game room would have a responsible individual present at all times and have strict rules and regulations.

The intent is to give the kids of Cohasset a place to go and be welcome to have a coke, play a mind-challenging game and perhaps have a "rave" with their peers.

Cohasset, as a town, does not welcome over 50 per cent of the town's population — kids (statistically, more than 4,000).

We as adults should set examples, but more than that, we should stop treating Cohasset Youth as second class citizens in their own home town. Grown-ups can have lounges, of which there are many of in town, and thank the Lord now the youth have at least a place to have an ice cream cone at the Strawberry Parfait.

Larry Fone of Cookworks is of the opinion, as the other merchants, that the old newspaper store is not the right location. Merchants from the village are looking for businesses that will draw more adult customers to the center of town.

Bobbie Cox, owner of Wee Spinnaker, feels a place such as a game room for kids is desperately needed and feels there is a tremendous void in Cohasset of such places. She suggested locations such as Cushing Plaza or Jonathan Livingston Square.

Erwin Cone of the Red Lion Inn thought, as did other merchants, that hours for adults and senior citizens should be scheduled at the game room. Mr. Price stated that an enterprise like a game room is quite expensive and wondered why I was taking the big risk. The risks of course are leasing games, renting a place, paying heat, electricity and personnel.

Connie Parker, secretary of the merchants' association, believes that adults would also enjoy themselves at such a game room.

Suggestions and ideas will be gratefully accepted. Let's us, as adults, make the youth of Cohasset feel welcome. Give them a chance and the challenge to prove they can handle themselves respectfully when they are not discriminated against.

Thanks to the merchants' association for the opportunity to amplify what this is all about.

Nancy O'Toole
Haystack Lane

Notes & Comments

. . .Remark overheard in front of Curtis Compact: "School starts when Dennis Jones gets back from Cape Cod."

So that's how it's decided! (Only 26 more days until school starts, mothers.)

. . .Yes, Frank England . . . under the open meeting law the school committee must provide space for the press at its upcoming dinner meetings with the school superintendent finalists . . . and not at a table across the dining hall! Please post your dinner menus at the Town Hall by Friday, this week. I'm not sure what rights the public has in this regard — probably the same rights as the press.

. . .Cruel blow to frazzled mothers and kids — playground ends August 15 at 3 p.m. To Jack Whorley and all recreational workers: your program was fantastic again this year and you really don't go unappreciated.

. . .Contrary to popular belief, the Mariner is not against Little League. And we hope Little League is not against the Mariner. We sometimes, all of us, tend to view every problem as a nail . . . and we strike with sledgehammers. But even that's better than scurrying around town with internal wounds and ventilating in private.

. . .Now retired (that sounds so strange) Police Chief Randolph Feola, Sr. is missed at the station (and around town). A testimonial is being planned for Chief Feola at Hugo's on Friday, September 19 from 6:30 'til everybody's kicked out. Ticket sellers will be announced in next week's edition of the Mariner.

. . .It's hot. People everywhere are uptight about a lot of things. We're conflicting on the roadways of Cohasset, on the tennis courts, in the parking lots. At least in the summer months, we're living too closely together.

Computer Hall

As of Monday, 95 Cohasset residents had answered the above question, the results being that 69 out of 95 respondents were in favor of a computer game hall being located somewhere within the town limits.

Youngsters in the 7-14 age group specified that the computer hall be located within the village area — probably for accessability.

A majority of 66 individuals felt a kids' center was needed. While another 21 residents felt a kids' center is not needed.

On the Mariner chart it looks like a battle between residents aged 36 to 65 and their offspring, ages 7-21. The younger age group wants a computer game room with one exception. While out of 46 residents ages 36-65, 20 persons are against a computer game hall.

Citizen ordinaire favors game room

To the Editor:

Cohasset Selectmen have asked for local merchants' reactions to Nancy O'Toole's idea of a video game room for teenagers in Cohasset Village, in the former, now empty, News Company store. I am citizen-ordinaire, and solicited or not, here's my opinion.

I think selectmen and merchants, kids and grown-ups, should shake Nancy's hand and give her all the assistance they can to see that her proposed lounge-drop-in center for young people gets launched!

Her idea of giving teenagers a reason to stay in Cohasset, as well as diverting some, perhaps, from cruising and drinking, deserves applause.

No matter what a town offers teenagers, they will still find time and a place to have their beers. So be it. To refrain from trying something new to entertain the teenage segment, who obviously do not have enough to occupy them in the evenings, because it may not sound plausible, is inexcusable.

To suggest, as Chairman of Selectmen, Arthur Clark did, that O'Toole's proposed game center will provide a place for teenage drinking, is silly. A strictly supervised, interesting drop-in center, providing food and soft drink vending machines, video games (and perhaps even backgammon boards, etc.) is a sound idea worth trying.

The old Cohasset News Company store has been empty for almost one year. It is ugly and invites vandalism. Merchants and selectmen should favor giving this a shot. (After all, O'Toole has said she would give it up if it doesn't work.) There's nothing to lose, except a Village eyesore, and everything to gain.

Migratory birds depend on Little Harbor

To the Editor:

Many of us living around Little Harbor are unaware of the importance of this estuary to migratory birds during the Summer months.

Many different species of shore birds which include sandpipers and some of the larger wading birds, terns and egrets, depend on the flats that are uncovered at low tide as an important source of food and a place to rest during their long migration from Northern Canada to as far south as Argentina.

For many birds, the migration starts in late July. Most visit us in August and September.

Scientists who study these birds are becoming alarmed because there seem to be fewer and fewer feeding and resting areas remaining due to the increase in human population of the coastal regions of the country.

Plymouth Beach, and many of the beach and marsh areas in Scituate and Marshfield, fall into this category.

The purpose of this letter is to inform those of you who were not aware of the importance of our beautiful harbor to these birds who depend on finding food and rest here.

Something we can all do is to talk with our children about it and make sure we restrain any dog, particularly young exuberant ones, from chasing the birds on the flats.

This will allow all of us to enjoy the presence of these charming visitors for many years to come.

If you have any questions or comments on this subject, please feel free to call .

A moving tribute to a good friend

To the Editor:

Thank you for a moving tribute to a good friend.

For the past year, I have enjoyed reading the Mariner each week to follow the doings of my friends and family, and I have frequently almost written to commend you for publishing such a fine paper.

Sadly, it was your stirring tribute to one of those friends, Ed Young, which finally motivated me to pick up the pen.

His humor, warmth, and overriding good sense made Ed one of the people we looked forward to seeing during our annual pilgrimages to Cohasset.

Ed always seemed to have a word of encouragement, a helping hand, or even just a sympathetic ear for anyone who came his way.

With his transit, blue prints, and rhetorical skills he certainly helped shape the place we call Cohasset, and with an equally steady hand, clear eye, and strong voice, he touched and shaped the lives of those of us who were fortunate enough to have known him.

Thank you again for such a fond farewell.

The cover-ups: which is worse?

Commentary

By Eric Pearson [C] 1980

Let me ask you.

Which is worse? — a president who lied about when he knew of a political campaign break-in (Watergate) or a president who lies about when he knew his brother was an agent of a foreign government that has been historically hostile to the United States?

Carter not only knew that his brother was acting as an agent, but had discussed it with the Attorney General early in June. Some Attorney General Civiletti is. He admitted he knew of a violation of federal law and did nothing about it. (Jimmy appointed him, afterall).

Carter made a reference to Watergate when he was campaigning for president. He said: "If I ever tell a lie as president I expect to be removed from office."

And so, Congress, what are you going to do? You played political football with Nixon's screw-ups for almost a year, and spent millions of dollars of our tax money in the process. Are you going to play "cover-up" until November 4? You'd better not.

We've already made it clear that we won't tolerate any more lying. And don't waste any more of our tax money in the process. We're tired of political football.

I thought the "Bay of Pigs" cover-up was bad enough, then I was faced with the Chappaquidic cover-up, followed by the Nixon cover-up. This cover-up already has a name: Billygate.

Dwight Eisenhower didn't cover-up the Gary Powers incident. He went on radio and television and immediately told us the U-2 story was true and explained it fully and completely. That's the courage of a real American.

Eisenhower gave no excuses that it was a necessary action, didn't blame someone else; although he could have easily passed the buck as Commander-in-Chief. But he didn't.

I remember another president like that. His name was Harry Truman. The big "Pols" didn't run him, either.

Recreation Dept recognizes need for year-round facility

To the Editor:

During the past couple of years the Cohasset Recreation Department has recognized the need for a passive recreation facility, preferably a year round, indoor facility geared for use to the 14-18 year old age group. Various possibilities were investigated and discussed by the Recreation Commission.

The essential problems involved in finding such a facility were multifold, not the least of which being no available funds to rent or purchase a facility. All existing public facilities that were considered offered enough drawbacks that feasibility of use became marginal if not impossible. Hence, the obvious financial and logistical difficulties overcame the realities of such a facility.

A compromise was to place Recreation Department pool and ping-pong tables in the basement of the Swim Center so that seasonal use could at least be gained from the equipment. To date the equipment is still being used on a seasonal basis.

However, the apparent need for a games room or computer Hall, generally referred to as a 'passive recreation facility,' is evident, perhaps, mainly for youth, but not unlikely, for all aged residents to utilize. There are many individuals who shy away from structured, organized recreation programs and activities. These individuals represent more of a personality type than age group, however, it is generally associated with youth, who would rather have the freedom to partake in activities on their own, at their own pace. Often it is only an illusion of freedom as supervision is evident, and only instruction and or organization missing. For many, a facility of this nature is a place to go and talk, relax, or play table games.

Also, there are a large number of individuals who enjoy both active and passive, structured and non-structured recreation. A games room offers an entirely new dimension to the leisure time possibilities for all aged residents of Cohasset.

As with most projects, there are certain problems that must be isolated and solved. Specific guidelines must be established and followed, and continual evaluation as to the need and effectiveness of the project vs.the problems must be present. There is no satisfactory method to determine ultimate success or failure, need or lack of need, without trying it. When basic needs can be isolated and identified, attempts to meet those needs must be made or we are truly negligent in our actions.

'I am your child...I have all I want'

To the Editor:

I am a child of Cohasset.

I love my beautiful town and all the nice people I know here. As long as I live I will be grateful for all the opportunities I got here — good schools, nice housing, sandy beach, sailing, and all the other things that all of you know so well.

I am a drug addict. I started smoking cigarettes in junior high school — it was the neat thing to do. All my friends did it.

I first smoked pot in ninth grade. I guess sixth grade is where it starts now.

Lunch period on the back hill was a great place to get high. I helped the afternoon classes go better. I learned about cocaine, heroin, and speed on the back hill also.

What's that? Not in Cohasset, you say? Expensive drugs, children with expensive amounts of money. Money will buy anything — almost.

Sandy beach is a great place to party. Any weekend night I can have 400 friends. It's as easy as getting a six pack and going to the beach. People come from towns all around. They know where the action is at.

After school I go down town to hang out. So what if I have no money to spend. Someone will smoke a joint with me and then we can walk down to Curtis and swipe some munchie food. Everything tastes better when I'm stoned. That makes it worth the risk of getting caught.

Well, let's go back and hang out on the common. There's no place else to go. Besides, someone might have another joint. Then we could climb the hill to St. Stephens and get stoned again. What a nice way to spend the day.

Sometimes I think "maybe there's more to life?" What could be done around here to change this?

Don't chase me off the back hill at the high school — I'll just find someplace else to hide. Don't close the beach, the Common, or the bus box, I can go many other places to get stoned. There are few enough good places to go around here.

Remember, I am your child. I have all the affluence, class, and lifestyle I want. It is my birthright as a Child of Cohasset. All else I want is love. Beers and joints are a poor substitute.

I love you Mom and Dad.

First services celebrated at Orthodox Church

To the Editor:

The newest Orthodox Church community of the greater Boston area, the South Shore Hellenic Church and Cultural Association, is happy and proud to announce the celebration of the first services in its new home.

Vespers in honor of the Kimisis of the Panaghia will be held at 7 p.m. the evening of August 14.

The location will be the historic Pope Memorial Chapel on Jerusalem Rd., Cohasset, of which the group is currently negotiating the purchase.

Officiating will be the Rev. Nicholas Marinos of the Maliyotis Cultural Center. All the faithful are called to worship with us on this momentus occasion.

Horses without rights

To the Editor:

In response to Diane Sullivan's letter to the editor of July 24, "horses' rights take precedence over human rights" sounds like a serious matter until you realize there is no such thing.

Horses don't have any rights. (Any horse owner can tell you that.) All they enjoy is a little protection from the M.S.P.C.A.

Humans have rights, though, and that is what the issue is; the rights of people to pursue different types of "backyard" recreation.

The keeping of a backyard horse is not altogether different from the keeping of a backyard pool, tennis court, motorcycle, or barbecue pit. All are potential nuisances to their neighbors and this is why the Cohasset Riding Club (4-H) has stressed and taught good stable management, over and over again.

Telling this story is a mean thing to do. You are about to meet two ambitious, enterprising young girls who are talented chefs. Every summer for five years, they have baked and brewed up a storm of good cuisine and invited friends and neighbors in for a gourmet lunch. They serve it in the "Tree Top Restaurant" and unfortunately, you've missed it!

Laurie Steele and Vicky Keane, both age 15 and friends they say, from birth, always liked playing restaurant. Five years ago, Marilyn Keane suggested that they cook for their friends, and a tradition was launched that has grown and matured, as the girls have.

The first year they played real restaurant, the menu consisted of spinach salad, peanut butter sandwiches, blueberry squares, hermits, peanut butter cookies, homemade ice cream, iced tea, lemonade and watermelon juice.

This year, over a period of two days, the girls served 73 people a French menu including spinach salad, "pasta sensation," Quiche Lorraine, vichyssoise and gazpacho, lemonade and iced tea, homemade chocolate chip ice cream and selected pastries — New York cheese cake, peach tart, Viennese tart, keylime pie and blueberry supreme!

The dishwasher broke and one batch of vichyssoise went all over the kitchen, but other than that, things ran smoothly both days.

The girls prepared most of the food (Moms, Marilyn and Jeff helped with some of the cooking), planned and organized the menu, shopping, seating, and served and cleaned up too!

They have kept careful records of menus, who they've served and no doubt many tidbits, like the first year peach fiasco (they offered Mrs. Keane's $.25 peaches for sale at $.05, but luckily no one bought any!)

Both cooks are committed to the annual luncheon, but Laurie confesses that a real career in the business is not for her. "It's too hectic!"

In addition to cooking, Laurie likes to ski, plays the piano and is a photographer.

Laurie Steele

Vicky Keane

Vicky enjoys sailing and her volunteer work one day a week at the Deaconess Hospital; she also plays soccer and is taking a summer writing course at the high school with Mr. Kite.

Sorry to be so mean, but we didn't hear about this until after the dishes were washed!

When Pat and Peter O'Connor and their five children moved from 404 South Main St. to Woodland Drive last week, nobody from the Welcome Wagon brought them a basket of goodies. The rules say the Welcome Wagon Lady can't call on herself, and Pat plays by the rules!

The O'Connor's moved to Cohasset two years ago after Peter's retirement from the Navy as Lt. Commander. His career in the Civil Engineering Corps took them to many different states and overseas.

Pat, who became Cohasset's Welcome Wagon Lady in February, truely understands the needs of the newcomer.

Their children's birthplaces reflect the nomadic life they've led. Sean, 14, and Timothy, 13, were born in New London, Connecticut. Maggie, 11, and Patrick 10, were born in Bethesda, Maryland and Eileen, 8, was born in Okinawa, Japan. Commodore, the family dog, claims local birthright!

The family has also lived in Rhode Island, Philadelphia and Seattle, Washington, their last and favorite post.

A pro at moving, Pat observes that "people are the same everywhere. Everybody comes from someplace else!" The locations are what alter living, as in Seattle where there are only two seasons, and folks do a lot of skiing and snow shoeing and travel to Canada frequently.

Cohasset suits the O'Connor's fine. After living in all those communities, Pat feels the schools here are great. She shares her enthusiasm with other Cohasset newcomers anywhere from six to ten hours a week. She delivers gifts and coupons from local merchants who belong to Welcome Wagon and a civic pack, which includes important information on town services and facilities.

"It should only take a half hour to call on someone," but, Pat admits, "I always stay longer."

Encouraged by Jim Hoy's public announcement of August 4 as his "Quit Smoking Day," State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray has put it on the line for butts too. She quits on November 3rd, the day after her re-election!

Marycarol McNeill, daughter of Kay and Jim McNeill of Fairoaks Lane, was named captain of the 1981 Bates College varsity women's lacrosse team, after a well played season as goaltender.

She was the top Bobcat goalie in 1980 with a 63% save average in nine games and was also voted the team's Alumnae Award as the best defensive player.

A sociology and psychology major, Marycarol has been an honors student at Bates for three years. She was chosen to participate this summer in the "International Encounter Island" study program at Trinity College, Ireland. After completing the program covering Irish history and culture, Marycarol plans to tour the country.

The McNeill's family also includes Christine, who will be a junior next fall at Boston College in the nursing program and Jay, who will enter Villanova's school of engineering as a freshman in September.

Here is an Independence Day baby we missed . . . Mr. and Mrs. Roland J. Gaudreault, Jr. of 274a Beechwood St., became the parents of a daughter, Denise, on July 4th. Denise joins Paul J., "P.J.", age two at home. Grandparents are Mrs. Roland J. Gaudreault, Sr. of Quincy and Mr. and Mrs. Colin Bew, Braintree.

Hopefully, Gary and Monica Lee of San Francisco have lots of room in their home. On July 16 their son and first child, Gary Paul Lee (7 lbs, 3 ozs.), was born and he has ten grand, great grand and great, great grandparents in the East who are anxious to meet him!

They are: grandparents Andy and Lenny Davis of Cohasset (Lenny is a Cohasset firefighter) and Robert and Lorraine Lee of Quincy; great grandparents Arnold and Helen Brandt of Cohasset, Parker Davis of Richmond, Virginia, Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson of Quincy and Mrs. Gladys Lee of Merit Island, Florida; and great great grandmother, Mrs. John Brandt of Brighton!

The new father is an MP in the U.S. Army. Don't spoil that little fella now. . . .

Two weeks ago, Kay England and Connie Parker lugged their card tables and chairs, quilt and papers, into the Hanover Mall for the day. They weren't just trying to stay cool, they were getting started on raffle sales for the Community Garden Club of Cohasset. Club members of the Boutique Committee, made a hand-appliqued flower garden quilt which will be auctioned off on October 21 with proceeds to go to the Club. Chances are three for $1.00 or $.50 each. The quilt will be on display at In-Stitches.

SUGAR AND PLAQUE STRIKE BACK

Q. Can some types of food cause decay?

A. Sugar contained in some foods is a primary cause of tooth decay, but the combination of sugar and plaque is deadly. Plaque plus sugar equals acid which eats away at tooth enamel. The first 20 minutes after eating sugary food is when the greatest damage occurs, and the longer the sugar remains in the mouth the more likely decay. Some of the worst offenders are candy, cookies, ice cream, jams, and soft drinks. Good substitutes are cheese, nuts, sunflower seeds and fruit juices.

This column is presented in the interest of better dental health. From the office of

Enviable summer jobs at Music Circus

The most enviable summer jobs in Cohasset are at the South Shore Music Circus. Who wouldn't want to trade places with an usher or usherette for an evening's performance by a favorite star?

Who wouldn't be tempted to give away a Sandy Beach sticker for four ShaNaNa shows? Or a month's worth of babysitting for a backrow perch during Johnny Mathis', or Mitzi Gaynor's, or the "Ain't Misbehavin' " shows? A mooring in Cohasset harbor for a season of entertainment?!

The parking lot attendants and concession stand workers, as well, are more or less "back stage" for a glimpse of all that's new, popular and enduring in talent from Broadway and concert to movies and T.V.

The staff of 50 young men and women from Cohasset, Scituate, Hingham, Hull and Marshfield, get more than a peek at stardom. "It's a great job for the kids," says Clark Chatterton. "They really learn a lot about dealing with people." Chatterton knows. He's been at the Circus for 23 years and has managed the concession stand since 1964. He's proud of all of these kids — they're reliable, courteous and hard-working.

After one summer of serving hot dogs, popcorn and soft drinks; of showing people to their seats; escorting stars; herding cars; and occasional extras, like a softball game with Johnny Mathis and his band; they are hooked!

The kaleidoscope of performers under the tent, the variety of the audiences and comradery among their own ranks keeps the young Music Circus staff coming back year after year.

Cohasset in 1900...Gilbert Tower remembers

By Gilbert Tower

Doctor Oliver H.Howe was a Cohasset doctor for many years. He was very much interested in Cohasset history. In fact he started the Cohasset Historical Society. When some old-timer in Cohasset was getting pretty old, Dr. Howe would make it his business to interview the old person and obtain his reminiscenes for the Historical Society.

If Dr. Howe were living today he would get an interview from me. But he is not here so I will interview myself. Numerous people have asked me to write some reminiscences.

I was born on February 15, 1885 in the house at about 35 Beach St. I lived there until I was about ten years old when my parents moved to 35 North Main St. where I live now.

When a boy less than ten years old I remember being awakened by my father and getting up to go to a fire. It was Ned Elms' barn which stood where the Highway Department buildings are now, on James Lane. Ned Elms lived at about number 31 South Main St. He was a trader. He bought and sold horses.

Elms' meadow at the corner of James Lane and Cushing St. was where he pastured his horses. At the time of the fire Doctor Bridgeham lived in the house where Fessler used to sell cards and shards. In the rear of his stable he kept a pig. The sparks from Ned Elms' barn fire landed on the pig's back. Dr. Bridgeham's son, Paul Bridgeham, told me he had to pour water on the pig.

Sometime about then there was a presidential election. Money had been contributed for fire works. The wagon loaded with fire works was passing the Gross and Nichols store (now the Central Market) when it caught afire. I believe the horses stampeded and I never learned what happened after that.

On South Main St. walking towards the library there was a hill. In winter it was a favorite place for coasting. Every horse drawn vehicle on South Main St. had to go up and over that hill, also pedestrians on the side walk in front of Hope Warren's house had to go up and over when going to the library.

Dr. Oliver H. Howe was public spirited. He put an article in the town meeting warrant to cut down that hill. Now everyone driving on South Main St. can be grateful to Dr. Howe for having that hump in the road removed. Thousands now pass where the little hill used to be. The amount of gasoline that Dr. Howe saved for future generations is beyond calculation.

Today new-comers have no recollection of the Osgood School on Elm Street, where the police and fire station is now. That prominent building was built sometime about 1905. Its completion was a big event for Cohasset because it spelled the end to the numerous little school houses. A celebration included a little parade which I remember.

My uncle, Edward E. Tower, organized a band and I have a picture of it in my mind. Some years later, about 1900, the Rev. Milo Gates, rector of the Episcopal church employed Waldo Bates to start a band in Cohasset.

We used to rehearse in the second floor of the cove school house which is now the veterans building. At one rehearsal Mr. Bates complained to a horn blower that he was making some awful sounds. The reply was, "What difference does it make in a crowd?"

Town meetings were held in the Town Hall which was in the second floor of the present building. The steps and the vestibule are now the same, but a broad flight of stairs leads to the second floor.

It was heated by some large coal stoves. There was a coatroom in the southwest corner. No one objected to the presence of a small boy who added his voice to some votes.

The year 1900 was a turning point in the life of Cohasset. Prior to that year about four hundred horses were owned and there were blacksmith shops for shoeing the horses, and Tilden's shop at the cove for building carriages and wagons.

Philander Bates, patriarch of the selectmen, was moderator. He always cautioned the town to go slow on appropriations to keep the tax rate down. The moderator before him was Quin Lothrop (John Quincy Adams Lothrop). He was a famous dictator, who ran the business of the town.

I remember one meeting when there was an article for buying Whitehead. That little bit of ocean shore was owned by my uncle "Hobart" Tower. For years he had permitted picnic parties to be held there. He wanted the town to own it and he put a price on Whitehead which he thought was very reasonable. The motion to buy was killed by Cyrus Bates who made an empassioned speech complaining about the tax rate.

At another meeting there was an article to buy a pumping engine for the fire department. There were strong feelings for and against. At that time summer residents were paying a large share of the taxes. The town voted to buy the town's first motorized pumper after Harry H. Gay of Sandy Beach got up and said, "Well, why shouldn't they have it?"

At that time the High School was moving out from the first floor of the Town Hall. Then the public library occupied the first floor until the Paul Pratt building was built. A step forward was made when Ed Stevens was employed to be Town Accountant. He needed an office so George F. Newton, Architect, removed the Town Hall floor, put in some steel beams and trusses to raise the ceiling of the first floor about 4½ feet to make an auditorium in the first floor.

Many plays were given and also dances were held on the first floor. Cohasset was a different town then.

The year 1900 was a turning point in the life of Cohasset. Prior to that year about four hundred horses were owned and there were blacksmith shops for shoeing the horses, and Tilden's shop at the cove for building carriages and wagons. There was a harness maker, Mr. Sullivan, in the Masonic Building on Brook Street.

There was a bicycle period when everyone rode a bicycle. Beginning about 1900 automobiles began to appear and they have changed the life of the country.

I remember the first telephone in town. It was in Frank Brown's Drug Store where the Texaco station is now. In the middle of the square in front of the Cohasset Hardware Co. there was a granite watering trough and a hand pump to draw water from the well below.

On July fourth the boys would put a cannon cracker in the pump and John Willson, who lived in the little historic house would run out. It can be imagined that that well was the town's first public water supply.

On Margin Street opposite Sidney Park at the cove, there was an old well (now covered over) from which water used to be drawn to fill the water barrels of fishing vessels. Would you say that Cohasset has improved? Or was life pleasanter in those days?

The writer is sure that the town has improved. Young people today should appreciate their many blessings, for example: electric lights in houses and on streets. As a small boy, less than ten years old, I remember seeing the light appear on a street light for the first time.

Before then every house had kerosene lamps. In the evening all members of the family would sit around the table with the reading lamp. Candles were carried when going to bed. Feather beds preceded mattresses and box springs. Instead of box springs there were criss-crossed ropes which were wound up to be tightened. One source of drinking water was rainfall on the roof which was conducted to a cistern in the cellar. In the kitchen was a coal burning stove. Schooners from Norfolk, Virginia, would bring in loads of coal to Tower's Wharf where Hugo's Light House is now.

Life was simpler a hundred years ago. I would not know whether people are happier now. But there is no doubt that we have more comforts of life.

By Joan Pinkham

Tell yourself firmly it's your patriotic duty, grit your teeth and march up to the nearest fish counter. It's the only way I know of to comply with Rep. Gerry Studds' suggestion that it's everyone's duty to demand squid or monk fish, rather than the more expensive kinds of shellfish or imported fish. "Squid tastes like lobster and could be gotten for 99 cents per pound last week in Washington, D.C.," he said. "Where else can you get pure protein for that price? If you don't like to think of eating squid, call it Calamari, which sounds magnificent." Well, after all, what could be uglier than a lobster? So, here goes, with John Burchill's recipe for

SQUID

2 lb. squid, cut off the tentacles
2 T olive oil
3 to 4 T butter
2 oz. salt pork, diced
1/2 lb. onions, diced
Garlic to taste
12 sprigs of parsley, chopped
Salt and pepper to taste
Red pepper to taste
1/4 to 1/2 c. dry red wine
3 to 4 T parmesan cheese
1 large can Pastene tomato puree
Oregano and anchovies, if desired

Dice squid. Combine olive oil, butter, salt pork in skillet. Heat. Add onions and cook until onions are medium brown. Chop garlic and parsley. Add with hot pepper and other seasonings except salt. Cook several minutes. Pour in wine. Cover tightly. Simmer approximately 5 min. Add puree, salt and oregano. Stir. Cover and simmer approximately 1 hour. Serve with garlic bread and spoon over pasta.

There's great satisfaction in establishing a pattern of life that encourages a feeling of independence and thrift. A day spent fishing or gardening is one well spent and if the fish are "biting" and your garden is producing, the resulting meal is more nutritious and less expensive than packaged, processed market fare. Long before Vin Gilarde's chicken recipe appeared in our column recently, Eva had promised to share this vegetable casserole dish and if you don't have a garden, a farm stand is the next best thing for this

MIXED VEGETABLE CASSEROLE

3/4 lb. green beans, ends trimmed
1/2 lb. yellow wax beans, ends trimmed
2 large tomatoes, cut crosswise into 1/4" thick slices
1 tsp. salt, 1/2 tsp. fresh pepper
2 large carrots, pared, cut crosswise into thin slices
1 large green pepper, seeded, cut into strips
2 ribs celery, sliced diagonally
10 small white onions, ends trimmed
1/4 c. minced shallots
1/4 c. snipped fresh parsley
1 tsp. minced fresh basil
1/2 tsp. dried thyme leaves
1/4 c. olive oil
1/4 c. dry white wine

1. Parboil green beans and wax beans in water to cover in large saucepan for 5 min. Drain. Cut diagonally into 2" pieces. Reserve. Parboil sliced carrots also.

2. Heat oven to 375 degrees. Arrange tomato slices in greased 2 qt. baking dish. Sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper. Layer carrots, green pepper and celery over center of tomato layer, sprinkling each layer lightly with salt and pepper. Place reserved green beans and wax beans around sides of dish, sprinkling lightly with salt and pepper. Arrange onions over beans. Sprinkle with shallots, parsley, basil and thyme. Pour oil and wine over vegetables. Bake covered until vegetables are crisp-tender, about 40 min. Cool 5 min. before serving. Serves 8 to 10.

'Eyes forward' as you march by the lobster display, for the price of the meat was $14 a pound when last I checked, but if you should inherit a fortune, you might want to try Kristina O'Brien's recipe which only calls for a cup for this

LOBSTER CHEESE BAKE

1 c. (6 oz. can) chopped lobster
1/2 c. cubes Swiss cheese
2 T minced onion
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 c. mayonnaise
1 tsp. tarragon vinegar
4 hamburger buns

Add cheese, onion and salt to lobster. Mix mayonnaise and vinegar and add to lobster mixture. Toss lightly. Split buns and spread with butter. Spread lobster mix on bottom halves of buns and cover with tops. Wrap in aluminum foil and bake 350 degrees for 20 min. Cool 5 min. Unwrap and serve hot. Makes 4 sandwiches.

Angler's Corner

By Lindy Blaisdell

BRANT ROCK

Huntress Tackle reports blues back off Provincetown. They were located just out of the harbor and down as far as Corn Hill. Also a few stripers around 20 pounds have been caught off Corn Hill. Smaller stripers, 8 and 10-pounders, are making an appearance inside Billingsgate Shoals and around the mouth of Scorton Creek in Sandwich.

Mackerel are still along our shoreline, but schools have broken up and are scattered. Lots of bait fish around. Sand eels and small pogies have found sanctuary during the heat wave just outside the North and South River.

Blues are scarce but around, some stripers in Duxbury Bay.

Tuna fishing is slow but improving. Two 300-pounders were brought in last week. Signs of another year class that should provide us with good tuna fishing in future years.

Squid are beginning to show up in Scituate Harbor.

NORWELL

Charlie's Bait and Tackle in Assinippi reports a booming business in shiners and night crawlers over the last two weeks. Most of Charlie's customers are switching back to fresh water and doing very good. Jacob's Lake in Norwell has been giving up some good large mouth bass. Waters in the Norris Reservation also support a healthy population of bass and bluegills.

Worm fishermen have taken some nice hornpout (mostly at night) in local waters, also some good sized perch.

A few schools of bluefish remain off Scituate. Flounder still being caught from Peggotty Beach and Cowans Rock in Scituate. Use sea worms on the bottom.

Excellent clamming along the South River. Clam licences can be purchased at the Marshfield Town Hall.

PLYMOUTH

Anglers Den reports some stripers in Duxbury and Plymouth Bay. Squid seem to be attracting stripers attention in the area of Plymouth Beach and along Brown's Bank.

No reports of any fluke, don't know why.

Power plant in Manomet holds a few blues at high tide but no stripers lately.

Lots of silver dollar sized flounder from the piers and breakwater but no smelt yet.

Rocking chair review

By Lois Martin

Time for a midsummer rocking chair news review, an opportunity to put into perspective that which has been blown out of proportion by people who take themselves and events too seriously. In fact we in the outskirts of big city life have learned that our systems won't digest the hard core news unless it's amply dosed with salt.

The most heartwarming farm report in months comes from nearby Hanson where a horse gave birth to a colt not too long ago. Trouble was, the mother horse died, leaving behind a dependent newborn. The nice news is this: a fellow farm animal, a goat, has been assuming responsibility for the young colt's nourishment. The farmer's been busy. He's had to keep putting the goat on a higher platform to accommodate the colt, who keeps growing taller.

PATCHES

And you should know you have completed, safely I hope, Farm Safety Week, July 25-31, as proclaimed by your governor in time for our harvest in the Golden Rod and Queen Anne's Lace agricultural belt.

One of the worst ideas to come out of Washington, D.C. in a long while was espoused by an official who suggested we stop using the word "fraud" and substitute instead "management inefficiency." That's what I call abuse (decontrolled action) of our trust.

I offer an empathetic word and my bag of popcorn to Sam Hunt, a Patriots Linebacker and a kindred spirit. Sam and I know the misery of looking at someone else's fried chicken and gaining weight. What's worse our crowd doesn't lose weight when we get sick because we're always just well enough to get to the refrigerator.

Isn't it unsettling to read about that woman who's suing her husband because he did a sloppy job shoveling the sidewalk? If my husband starts reminiscing, he'll remember a haircut in '61 which left him with a partial Mohawk on one side of his head. I could be in court before fall.

Next week the Democrats convene in New York. Isn't it cute how the parties have hung on to the elephant and donkey symbols? Someone said they aren't allowed to refer to the donkey people as jackasses, because then no one would be able to tell the two parties apart.

For the record I protest the controls built into ladies washroom facilities. If you can get any soap on your hand, it's all you can do to push the water and get your hand under it fast enough to rinse off. Then try getting a piece of towel bigger than a gum wrapper to dry on.

Provocative that the officials in Rockland are now setting up dress codes for the teachers . . . makes you wonder what they were wearing at the time?

Someone told President Jimmy Carter he should be relieved First Brother Billy had been dealing with Libya. It could have been the First Mother, Miz Lillian and then there's no telling what would have been arranged by this time.

That man in Maine who regained powers after being struck by lightening gave someone a dreadful idea. He wondered if the Red Sox would regain their powers if they were to play on a wet field in metal sneakers?

Chapman, Clinton on top at Cohasset Sailing Club

By Mike Ellis

Sailing is an exciting water sport. It ranks along with water skiing and beach lounging as one of the three most popular pasttimes of Cohasset residents. For some, sailing brings the pleasure of leisurely hours on the water. For others, pushing their racing machine to the limit is all they can conceive of on a beautiful weekend.

Cohasset, being the seaside community that it is, naturally attracts many racers to its challenging open water sailboat races. Every Saturday and Sunday herds of skippers slide their way past Bassings Beach and Whitehead to await the start at mark K.

One of the two different classes of ocean going craft that race each weekend is the Flying Scot, which is based at the Cohasset Sailing Club. Peter Chapman and Jim Clinton, two enthusiastic skippers, are using their nautical prowess while dueling each other for the number one spot.

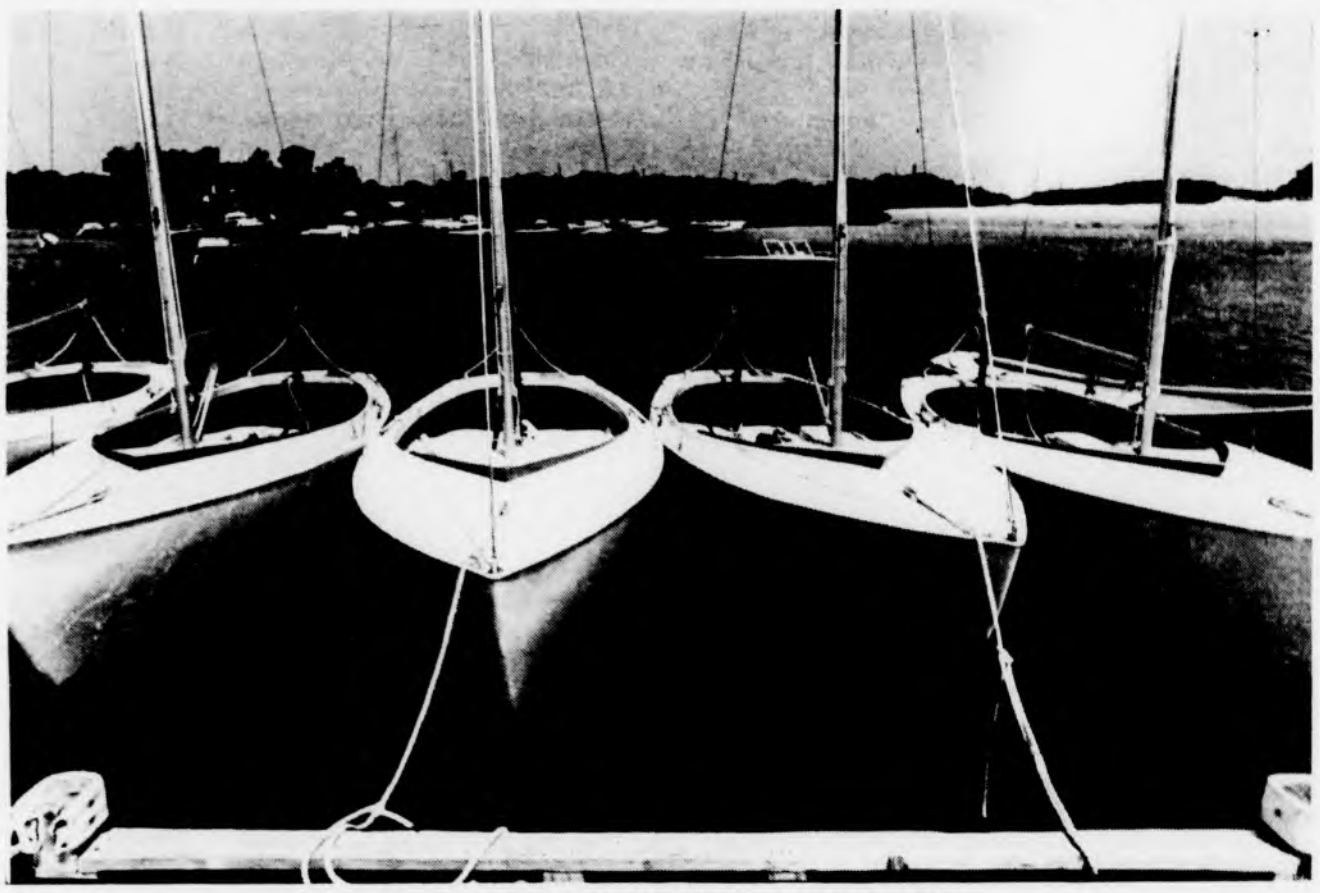
Chet Ellis, and the salty old sea dog, Roger Porter, have slipped into the third position. Terry Young and Ray Kasperowicz are two aspiring young skippers capable of snatching the third spot from the withering Ellis-Porter team.

The other group of dedicated veterans hail from the Cohasset Yacht Club. The International 210 is the craft these men use. John Keane and his sons, John Jr. and Brian, seem to have this fleet under wraps. Wachonda, a sleek 210 owned by the immortal Wakeman racing team, is the only boat within striking distance.

These two fleets, Scots and 210ers, race at different times during the weekend. Each fleet has its own winners, and trophies are given out at the end of the season.

Even during the weekdays, competitive races are being held at the Sailing and Yacht Clubs. Every weekday afternoon a group of feisty little competitors emerge from the Yacht Club for the July and August series.

If the older sailors cannot get enough competition, an open laser series is conducted every Tuesday and Thursday evening. Such ledgendary laser skippers as Steve Bobo, Brad White, Scott Ford and Mark Harrington can be found honing their racing skills during this series.



Meet part of the fleet at the Cohasset Sailing Club.

The Sailing Club boasts its own curriculum of competitive races. The Stanton series puts some family spirit back into sailboat races. One child and one adult take to the ocean in one of the Cohasset Sailing Club's new Cape Cod Mercuries. Such sailing phenomenons as Harry St. Onge and his daughter, Heather, the everpresent O'Laughlins, and the extra fast Trautwein family have participated in these races.

Although the Sailing Club's philosophy is geared toward training, instead of racing, sailing masters such as Janet Carlson, the Curran brothers, Maureen (the flash) Kelly, and Charlie (I'll get 'em next time) Tebbets, are sometimes found racing against clubs from other towns for keener competition.

How does all this competitive activity benefit the average sailor? First and foremost, it's a lot of fun. A little adrenalin in the right place never hurt anyone. Second, racing fine tunes your skills and makes one a better sailor, even for weekend or day sailing.

For those who have the skill and the desire, and who win in a regional or national competition, there is always the Olympics or maybe even the America's Cup. Anyone for sailing?

THURSDAY, AUGUST 7

BYE-BYE BIRDIE at the Town Hall Auditorium beginning at 7:30 p.m. and ending at 9:20 p.m. The free movies are sponsored by the Regional Library System, Cohasset Public Library and the Cohasset Recreation Department. Younger children should be accompanied by a parent, adult or older sibling.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 10

COHASSET/SCITUATE TOWN OFFICIALS SOFTBALL GAME at 1 p.m. at Central School Field, Scituate (across from Dreamwold). Jodi Sandblom, we need you!

MIDSUMMER COOKOUT for Cohasset Sailing Club members and friends, starting at 2 p.m., ferry service provided to Bassing Beach, bring your own food, grills and charcoal provided.

MONDAY, AUGUST 11

STORY HOUR AT PAUL PRATT beginning at 7:30 p.m. School-age children and parents invited. Joanne Norton, children's librarian at the Norwell Public Library is guest story-teller. She will tell "Half-a-Kingdom," an Icelandic folktale of a heroine princess; "Mr. Miacca," an English folktale and "Prinderella" (not Cinderella). The program will last 45 minutes.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 12

MAGICIAN AT TOWN HALL (so what, there are lots of magicians at town hall) AUDITORIUM at 10:15 a.m. This one's different. Joe Carota is a professional magician and has entertained millions of people in live shows and television appearances. He has also lectured on the art of magic. His act involves audience participation along with sleight of hand to music using live birds, cards, silks, balls, etc. The cost of admission is 50 cents per person. Playground program will not meet as usual this morning. Six - 12 year-olds will be walked back to the playground at the end of the show. Four and five year-olds should be picked up at 12 noon at the town hall. Parents can go too!

THURSDAY, AUGUST 14

PIPPI LONGSTOCKING FILM beginning at 7:30 p.m. at the Town Hall auditorium. Pippi is a Swedish girl who proclaims she is the strongest person in the world. The movie is based on the books of Astrid Lindgren. The film ends at 9:05 p.m.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 15

COOKOUT at the barnes Little League Field (it's the recreation department's annual end-of-playground season). Children should be dropped off at Barnes, rather than Osgood, at 10 a.m. Special activities are scheduled for the entire day. Children will also be picked up at 3 p.m. at the Barnes Field.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 16

TOWN CLERK'S OFFICE open from noon to 8 p.m. for primary registration.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 19

Field riddled with errors

Cohasset loses Minot Light to Scituate: 14-8

By Tanna Kasperowicz
Summer Sportswriter

It is somehow ironic that Cohasset Town Officials should have "gambled away" Minot Light this week...when just a week ago Cohasset Selectmen were making impassioned speeches against gambling in the town in all forms. They showed considerable anguish over a proposed computer game hall in the town.

Such is the world of politics. What politicians are against one week they're doing the next.

Both Cohasset and Scituate teams were polka-dotted with errors throughout all six and half innings...leaving one observer to remark: "If they ran town government like they play softball...but then they do!" The final score was 14-8 Scituate.

Thanks to a home-run by Dickie Ainslie in the top of the first, Cohasset officials held the lead 2-1 until the bottom of the third when Scituate broke forth with a rash of singles...followed with a home run by none other than Citizen (Ha) Jim (Lonborg) who brought in Frank Badger, Selectman Jerry Dwight and Building Inspector Bill Stone — and himself, of course. The score was now 7-2.

I don't know who was pitching for Cohasset at that time. Perhaps B. McAuliffe from the Water Department. Cohasset's special guest player, Dick Donovan, former pitcher for the Cleveland Indians, may have arrived later in the game.

At this point in the game I was talking to Planning Board Chairman Constantine Constantinides about mutual planning problems in Scituate and Cohasset. I also bought a coke.

Cohasset spectators gasped when they saw State Rep. MJM, wearing a Scituate uniform, take the field as a designated hitter in the bottom of the third.

Mariner readers behind town button hall in poll

As of this week exactly 100 responses were received in the Mariner poll which asked residents and children of the town to clip and mail a questionnaire form regarding their feelings about a computer game hall business (as proposed by resident Nancy O'Toole).

Exactly 69 persons were in favor of a computer game hall somewhere in town. Of those 69, 66 felt a game center of some type was needed for Cohasset youth.

Granted, the poll was hardly "scientific," in that it was not a phone poll at random. And the Mariner gathered by the small response (good in poll terms) that most residents really didn't care whether there was or wasn't a computer game hall or any game hall. In order to make sure responses came in, the Mariner printed 300 separate questionnaires which were given out by Mariner staff, recreational aides, merchants and others who we knew would certainly have an opinion.

Of those responding, youths and adults pretty well balanced one another. With only one exception, youths were in favor of a computer game hall and/or a kids' center in the town, while their parents were split down the middle on the issue.

Bear Hill gets refuse permit

Cohasset Heights, a 20-acre demolition dump located one third of a mile off Route 3A is for sale...and all indications are that the Town is very interested in its purchase.

James Tyeryar (pronounced Tire) received the unanimous approval of the board of health to include the dumping of refuse at his demolition dump. Realtor Wayne Sawchuk, of Century 21, accompanied Tyeryar to the public hearing Monday.

Last month William St. Hilaire of the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE) cited the dump for creating pollution and threatened to close it down. Since the middle of July dump manager Skinny Laugelle has been forced to "cone" the refuse high into the air...and cars are reportedly getting stuck at the dump.

Now that the health board has approved the permit, Tyeryar's engineers will design a plan for dumping refuse at Cohasset Heights, which requires a different packing and plan from demolition material.

Earlier this year, DEQE closed down the demolition for several months while it investigated alleged drainage into a watershed. Tyeryar told the health board that drainage maps have been approved by the state, and it was ultimately proven that Cohasset Heights did not drain into any watershed area. "The water is monitored at four points monthly and the results are sent to DEQE," Tyeryar said.

He added that the state has no concern about the area's ability to be used for refuse. After engineering designs are completed, DEQE must approve or reject the dumping of refuse.

According to Tyeryar, individual town officials recently approached him regarding the dumping of refuse and asked him to apply for a permit. "At the present time, the Town has the only option to purchase Cohasset Heights."

If the refuse dump is approved, Tyeryar said he would allow only outside private contractors to dump refuse, but not individuals. He suggested that refuse dumping could be made by a relay system, with

Brockton sergeant Cohasset police chief

By Laura Doherty

The long awaited decision has now been made — selectmen have unanimously chosen 49 year old Brockton Police Sergeant John DeBassio to be the town's next police chief.

On September 2, DeBassio will succeed Randolph Feola who retired as chief of the police department in July. According to the terms of the contract which is still being executed, his salary will be $27,000, the first year, $28,500, the next with no increase the third year. His current salary with the Brockton Police Department where he supervises approximately 50 officers is $26,000.

"He's someone the town will be proud of," selectmen noted in making their decision. "He was my first choice after the interviews, the investigation and especially as I got to know him better," observed selectman Henry Ainslie.

DeBassio whose expertise is in drug abuse and administration received a B.S. in Criminal Justice from Stonehill College in 1974 and a M.S. in Public Administration from Northeastern in 1978.

Having served as administrative assistant to former Brockton Police Chief Robert Galloti, he was, about three years ago, recommended by him as his successor. At that time, he says, he decided to stand by an earlier decision to relocate because he saw it as the most appropriate avenue for achieving his professional goals.

He was appointed to the Brockton force as patrolman in 1963 and was named sergeant in 1977.

As part of his police duties in Brockton, DeBassio formulated an anti-crime unit with responsibility for reducing violent street crimes. He also commanded detectives assigned to enforce drug related violations.

In addition, he served as a member of the mayors

Cohasset's week

Computer room

Nancy O'Toole of Haystack Lane has told selectmen that she is continuing to investigate the possibility of opening a computer game room for townspeople. Merchants, according to O'Toole have reacted negatively to her initial suggestion that the game room be located in the now vacant former news store at Stagecoach Way. They have suggested that she consider either Cushing Plaza or Jonathan Livingston Square as a location.

Once again, it was emphasized by O'Toole that the room would be "strictly controlled." She told selectmen that she plans to discuss the proposed locations with merchants in the two areas to find out how they would feel about such a facility.

Mill Bridge

Noting that the situation is "out of hand down there," selectmen have agreed to request that acting police chief Charles Stockbridge do "whatever is necessary" to control what has become a hazardous situation at Mill Bridge.

Selectmen have received a petition from residents in that area regarding the various hazards now existing at the bridge and asking why restrictions in that area were not being enforced. They noted that this is not the first petition on the matter that has been submitted to selectmen and that many of the cars now parking in the area had out of state license plates.

Council reps sought

The Communications Council of the Joseph Osgood School is looking ahead for new members for the 1980-1981 school year. Parent representatives to the council from grades kindergarten through third are needed. The council, which meets monthly throughout the school year, serves as an informational group for parents and also as a conduit between the schools and home.

The council also provides a volunteer program in the schools; a social event for staff and families (a square dance will be held on September 21) and strives to present topics of interest for parents at its monthly meetings.

Proposed topics for next year's meetings are discussion of the reading and math curriculum, child abuse, how to interpret report cards and how to talk to your child's teacher.

If you are interested in being a council representative from your child's grade level, please call either Judy Bronstein at 383-0908 or Mary Lou Studds at 383-6956.

Heating bids

Bids for renovation of the heating system at the police and fire station have been taken under advisement by selectmen. The two companies who submitted bids were Scott Bailey of King Street, Cohasset for $6800 and Harbor Mechanical Contractors, Inc., North Main Street, Cohasset for $5600.

Police cruiser

Two bids received for a new police cruiser have been taken under advisement by selectmen. The net delivered price submitted by Spensley Chevrolet of Cohasset is $8497 for a 1981 Impala. Framingham Auto Sales submitted a bid of $6833 for a 1980 LTD.

Liquor license approved

Selectmen have approved a one-day liquor license for a "Taverna" from noon until 8 p.m., Aug. 17 at the Pope Memorial Church which will be held as a fundraiser by the S.S. Helenic Association. Selectmen Chairman Arthur Clark noted that he had checked with the chairman of the trustees of the church who had no objection to the event.

Parker Ave. trash

Health Agent Kevin O'Brien has requested the Tree and Park Department to empty barrels on Parker Avenue at least twice a week.

Appts, resignations

Selectmen have accepted the resignation of Mrs. Joann Ford from the Conservation Commission.

Mrs. Debbie Cook of King St. has been appointed by selectmen to a Massport Citizens Committee on Airplane Noise.

Ariel photos

The planning board agreed last Wednesday that April 1, 1981 will be the date for aerial photographs of the town to be taken. The board's engineering consultant, John Modzelewski, will advise as to whether the flyover should take place at high or low tide. The topographical mapping project, to be completed by December 1, 1981, was approved by voters at the last annual town meeting. The board will advertise for proposals.

The sale of a small parcel of land belonging to Eleanor Humphreys of Atlantic Avenue, to her abutters, James and Sandra Therioult, was endorsed by the board.

Planners will "think about and read over" the board of health's new proposed regulations for stabling horses in Cohasset, which include specifications for zoning and sanitary requirements. The board will discuss them at a later meeting.

The planning board will meet again on Wednesday, August 20 at 8 p.m.

Stockbridge petition

Last week selectmen accepted, but took no action, on a petition requesting that Cohasset Police Lieutenant Charles Stockbridge be added to the final list of candidates for the position of police chief.

The petition containing 523 signatures was submitted to selectmen by Attorney Charles Humphreys just prior to their vote to name John DeBassio as the new police chief.

Selectmen objected to the timing of the petition. "Why did you wait so long," asked Selectman Henry Ainslie. To which Humphreys replied that petitioners felt that if Stockbridge is capable of serving the town as acting police chief as he is currently, then he should be considered as a candidate.

Dump repairs

William Montouri, Water Commission Chairman, told the health board this week that according to state regulations, all improper fill will have to be removed from the Town's sanitary landfill and replaced with impervious material at some point in time (see Cohasset Heights, page 1).

Montouri, a former member of the health board and an engineer, said "There's nothing wrong with the site if it's used properly. We (Montouri's Health Board) used to anticipate the need for f-11 each year to cover wetlands. Then wetlands became a watershed area."

The problem at the present time, according to Montouri, is that a lot of dumping has gone on in low areas which wasn't filled properly. And according to state regualtions, that material will have to be excavated. "Read the regulations, that's the procedure," he told the health board.

Health Chairman Marilyn Sweeney said she felt the state had not been helpful in the matter. "I feel it has turned its head. Presently, only two towns in Massachusetts can meet state sanitary landfill regulations."

Health Board says Cohasset roosters can crow

At a public hearing scheduled for September 15, the board of health will hear comments from the public regarding its now finalized, proposed regulations for horses (a separate category), livestock and domesticated animals.

At this week's hearing on livestock, the board agreed it should not attempt to over-regulate the keeping of animals for personal use. Board Chairman Marilyn Sweeney said she was convinced the economic situation might produce a need for people to keep livestock as a supplementary food source.

Accordingly, the board proposed requiring a $2 annual permit fee for livestock (several livestock could be included under the $2 fee, the rationale being that a permit would alert the board to the numbers of animals being kept in town).

Livestock facilities will be approved by the board of health, and when necessary, permits will be revoked. Larry Mitchell, in attendance at the hearing, suggested that a $50 fine for improper maintenance be enforced, and the board agreed to propose the same.

No permits will be required for cleff-hoofed animals, poultry, or foul up to six in number. After six, a $2 annual permit will be required. Evidence of appropriate innoculations will be required, along with a plan for property maintenance, and a rough plan showing the closeness of the pen(s) to streams, marshes, ponds. Pens must be 100 feet from a pond.

Rooster permits: roosters will require a special permit, with an assenting letter from all abutters. The board agreed roosters could retain their voice box, as roosters without a voice box tend to be less productive in the chicken coop.

Health board approval will have to be obtained for stable floors previous to obtaining a permit, and an adequate and safe water supply must be furnished.

Dianne Sullivan, also in attendance at the hearing, proposed stricter livestock regulations, submitting a lengthy researched paper on regulations required by neighboring towns.

She added that she was against pigs and roosters being kept in residential areas, adding that goats have a vile and disagreeable odor in May and June each year.

Ms. Sullivan noted that in Westwood and Dedham, the approval of all abutters is required in order for residents to keep livestock or horses.

Dr. Bliss said he was of the opinion that cows, pigs, goats and sheep require stricter management than horses. "You can have a horse on a smaller lot than a pig."

For example, Bliss said: "Cows in heat and cows which have not been milked can make an awful racket."

Ms. Sullivan responded that Health Inspector Kevin O'Brien had told her there are presently 20 pigs in town, "and the population is growing rapidly."

Ms. Sweeney said while the regulations will be loosely worded, "We will not permit variances from the rules and regulations once they are adopted. We could spend the rest of our lives doing this (hearing variances for the keeping of animals)."

Initially, Ms. Sweeney proposed holding the September 15 public hearing at Boston Gardens, but later decided the Rotary room at the Elm Street location would suffice.

Eleey running for governor's council

Attorney Peter Eleey, of 69 Forbes Hill Road, Quincy, announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor's Councillor in the Fourth District this week.

Eleey, a Quincy trial attorney, is the only attorney in the Fourth District race. In addressing what he considers the most important role of the Council, Eleey stated, "The approval or disapproval of judgeship nominees is a matter of great concern to me.

As a former Norfolk County Assistant District Attorney, and now as a practicing attorney, I have handled over 1500 cases before judges at the Superior Court, District Court and Probate Court levels. I have a deep appreciation for the incomparable impact these appointed men and women, by their decisions, have upon a person's life."

Talking in the dark

Did you know that children talk to their parents more easily in a darkened room, directly before bedtime? They feel safe in the dark.

Are you aware that many adults communicate their most sensitive feelings through unsigned poems and unsigned letters to newspapers? The Globe's Chatters page is a fine example of a newspaper reaching out to individuals who wouldn't have the nerve to sign their names to more personal commentaries...not even a recipe or a cleaning tip!

Columnist Ann Landers publishes the initials and states of her letter-writers. Many radio talk show hosts do not allow callers to identify themselves...or only by first name.

For centuries and centuries now, for as long as man has been able to write, authors and authoresses have hidden behind their more personal writings with pen names. Does that make their essays, poems, books or unsigned letters to the editor any less real or beautiful?

Many newspapers require that all letters to the editor be signed. There is a fine philosophy behind having such a policy. It is suspected that a person who signs his name to a letter will be a little more careful about what he's (she's) saying.

The Mariner requires letter-writers to sign every letter to the editor. We will withhold your name by request. But we wish to know your identity for the reasons given in the former paragraph. We think you'll be a little more careful about what you say.

The young man who wrote, "I am your child" last week not only signed his letter and asked that we withhold his signature...he personally introduced himself to us. But we do not know the identity of the respondant to his letter this week. We made an exception to our rule.

When you make rules that can't be broken, you (all of us) deny ourselves some very moving instances.

It is true that not all news articles are signed, nor are editorials. But if you want to find out who wrote any particular unsigned news article or editorial all you have to do is call the Mariner.

'If you really want to kick drugs you will.'

To the Editor:

This letter is addressed to you so you can publish it for the benefit of "I am your child...I have all I want," other kids like this one, and all of us parents. Thank you. We enjoy your paper.

A Mariner reader in Cohasset

Letters

Dear Friend:

I have just finished reading your letter in the Cohasset Mariner, and I cried for you. My message to you is don't despair. You are loved, but you won't realize this until you can love yourself.

Ask for ways to love yourself, and you will find them. Love others as best you can. You are surely a talented individual who needs to find outlets for your abilities. Look and you will find them.

I feel I could be writing this letter to myself. Most of my life I felt unloved. I had turned to alcohol and other escapes instead of drugs. My parents loved me as best they knew how, and yours are doing that also. Love them as best you can.

I am thirty seven years old, and I am just learning to love and appreciate who I really am. You can do this too. You couldn't be too far gone to have been able to write that letter. It was wonderful of you to do it. It was a giving, loving thing whether you realize it or not.

It may set a few parents and kids straight. It certainly reminded me of my responsibility to my four-year old and any other kids I will have. If you really want to kick drugs you will.

Strength and love to you,
A concerned reader who cares about you and all those kids

A victim of the Forest Ave. 'Speedway'

To the Editor:

He really was quite a handsome cat, only eight months old, but big for his age. He was shiny black with piercing yellow-green eyes and a head you knew he would grow into someday.

I like cats, I like dogs, I like all animals. I never knew a cat who would come when called, scramble to your feet and roll over waiting to be scratched, follow at your heels when you went to work in the garden . .

I buried him Tuesday morning. He was a victim of the Forest Ave. "speedway."

I remember my words, as I called the police in anger, they came back to me as the ones I used ten years ago when we came to the speedway and the dog was the victim.

They told me how difficult it is to patrol the "speedway," and how the rest of the town is also a racetrack. . .

Apathy is a rotten thing. I'm guilty of it.

Those Saturdays cutting the lawn — hearing and seeing them fly by, passing on the solid line on a blind hill, honking as I pull out of my driveway from 50 yards away since they can't realistically slow down or stop.

The night brings new sensations. The screech of brakes, streak of headlights and occasionally the sounds of metal and tree upon impact.

Must we wait for a total loss? Must we wait for the first child to fall victim to the Forest Ave. speedway...?

J. Stephan Hill

[Editors Note: This letter was addressed to Residents of the Forest Avenue "Speedway".]

Hull teen clinic to continue its services

To the Editor:

The Teen Clinic will remain open in Hull!

Due to the efforts of local citizens, elected officials and social service agencies, the Teen Clinic will be able to continue providing services to area young people.

In May, the Massachusetts Department of Public Health had announced that they would not refund the program as requested for $37,000. Without that funding, Family Planning Services of the South Shore, the Teen Clinic's parent organization, would have been forced to discontinue the services to over 600 young people and their families.

An active group of citizens and medical/social service providers began a fight to save one of the few programs for Hull community youth. A meeting was held on June 5, 1980 at the State House with legislators, the Director of the Office for Children, John Issacson and other OFC staff, John Silva and Robert Walker of the Hull Medical Center, representatives of Family Planning Services of the South Shore and Quincy Community Action Organization which sponsors the Family Planning Agency.

Drs. Frechette and Guyer of the Mass. Department of Public Health and members of their staff were called in to explain to the legislators what their reasoning was in funding programs in large cities while ignoring the isolated areas of Hull, Hingham, Cohasset and Scituate.

As a result of that meeting and many letters on behalf of the Teen Clinic the Public Health Dept. decided to give the clinic partial funding for one year.

A contract is being negotiated with DPH to pay for education and counseling services. Family Planning will then be able to support the clinical services with its federal funding.

Family Planning and the Quincy Community Action Organization are continuing their search for more funding for this vital service.

Job open at Paul Pratt

Due to the resignation of Helene Drummond, applications are now being accepted for the job of cataloging typist, at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library.

Mrs. Drummond has been with the library for two and a half years. Director Richard Hayes said, "She has been an excellent employee, and we are sorry to lose her."

The job requires skilled, accurate typing. The hours are 9-2, Monday through Friday. The starting pay is $3.97 per hour.

Half-way house for chronic repeaters

Senator Allan R. McKinnon (D-Norfolk and Plymouth) today announced final legislative approval of funds in the fiscal 1981 state budget to convert the South Shore Alcohol Rehabilitation Program (SHARP) to a Special Population Halfway House for the South Shore region, specializing in the treatment of "chronic repeaters."

Senator McKinnon amended the budget to include specific language requiring the Mass. Division of Alcoholism to expend $200,000 for SHARP.

SHARP is an innovative and highly effective alcohol treatment program administered by the South Shore Council on Alcoholism. SHARP specializes in serving those who have used the state's detoxification and halfway house systems repeatedly and need to be removed from an urban or "home" environment to a facility where there will be few distractions from the recovery process.

Archivist recommends permanent custodian

To the Editor:

As the end nears of the one and one half-year C.E.T.A. funded Public Records project in Cohasset, substantial improvement in the storage and organizing of the Town's Records has been achieved. I herein submit a report of the various areas of work in which the Town Archivist has been engaged; amplifying upon the subjects covered in my report on page 205 of the Annual Town Report of 1979.

Work of selectively indexing the Town's Record Books has continued; Town Meeting records have been indexed on cards up the mid-1920's, Selectmen's books of Board Meetings up to the end of 1955, two of the early books of School Committee meetings of the late 1800's and early 1900's have been indexed on a selective basis.

Approximately 4,500 individual index cards of durable library catalog quality contain typed information covering many topics or subjects of interest to researchers of Cohasset's historic past. A particular effort has been made to present a profile of each topic or subject as it emerges in the town records.

Some of the topics about which the Archive Index has produced detailed information to various individuals have included: history of the Town Hall, Town Common, the Old Meeting House, Town Clock, the Independence Museum (an old Fire Station), various other town buildings, Cohasset Harbor and Government Island, the history of the Portugese in Cohasset, and the old Beechwood granite quarry.

The archive file of town documents contains both historical and modern information ranging from reports and correspondence of the 16 and 1700's, to like information of the current years. Data and information has been provided from this file covering a large range of topics.

One of the most important parts of the archive project has been to transfer the town's non-current record books to the new vault facility in the high school, as was required by the Division of Public Records of the Office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth. In the new vault, record books are being organized by a system of "Archival Provenance" which means merely that each office, department and separate town, county, state and federal agency has its own individual section on the vault's bookshelves. A numbering system, derived from that of the Scituate Town Archives, has been devised to assist in proper placement of the various books in each section. The work of tagging or labeling each book goes on.

Copies of the archival numbering system have been given to the Board of Selectmen and the Town Clerk's office, and are available upon request.

As part of the organizing of the town's documentary records, the town's deeds of conveyance of lands being obtained by the town have been gathered together and indexed. The same has been done for town easements, agreements, and the orders of taking by both the Selectmen and the Norfolk County Commissioners.

It is hoped that this bringing together of the Town's legal instruments, admittedly not complete at present, will form the basis of a centralized file of these necessary permanent records. From this new file, information already has been provided to various town offices, boards and committees, and to individuals, upon request. One of the recent projects undertaken by the Archivist has been to organize the documentation and information file relating to the Beechwood Cemetery; a recent acquisition by the town.

The four antiquated vaults in the Town Hall are being reorganized to provide additional space for the storage of current records needed by the several town offices. It is apparent that these vaults, constructed in 1898, no longer have the capacity for storing the temporary and permanent records generated by the town government, as is required by the public record laws of the Commonwealth (Chapters 4 and 66 as well as diverse other statutes of the general laws of the Commonwealth.)

A centralized vault facility having continuous maintenance and careful attention is needed to permit Cohasset to conform to the requirements of the state's public record laws. Existing vaults in the Town Hall are being used to store the office records currently in use, and such temporary records as are required to be kept for a limited time, and are awaiting their disposal date. It appears essential that the town adhere to the disposal schedules for temporary records as they are issued by the Secretary of the Commonwealth, in order to avoid the building up of large amounts of unnecessary clutter which continues to threaten to overwhelm vault and storage space at both the Town Hall and the high school vault.

An additional project which the Archivist and others have helped to develop is the indexing on 3" x 5" cards of the Town's "Vital Records" of births, marriages and deaths, the books for which are maintained by the Town Clerk's office.

Much work remains to be done in order to provide an easily readable record file for this important information before the older original books disintegrate. Additionally, the indexing of modern town meeting and Selectmen's record books should be continued in the future. A comprehensive index of the votes and proceedings relating to important subjects saves a large amount of time when information is needed by either the town or private citizens.

A permanent vault custodian working with and for the appropriate town office, and having charge of all aspects of organizing and maintaining the town's records would go a long way in assuring that the public records of Cohasset remain organized and efficiently stored in conformity with the public record laws. Our public records project, having made substantial headway, should not be allowed to cease.

I would like to thank the Board of Selectmen, the public library (who supplied the index cards), the Historical Commission, and all others who have sponsored and assisted in this on-going project.

☐The second "match birthday" club luncheon took place on Friday at P.J.'s. Rachel White (September 10), Gert Parsons (February 24) and Brenda Tehranian (November 27) joined Trish Massa and Tanna Kasperowicz in celebration of Joanie Bravo's birthday (August 9).

Shop-lifting, the heat and diets were discussed. Louie Bravo phoned in a round of drinks (which Joanie paid for), P.J.'s gave her flowers and birthday cake was served. The ladies at the next table cheered.

A brief rules meeting was held and it was decided to try and have one luncheon a month (that means Rachel White gets treated next!) and the group wants to reassure other restaurants in town that they will eventually hit them all!

☐It was partly in honor of his 40th, and also, he had hoped, the final requirement for being classified a "townie," that drove Paul Corbett to jump TWICE from the Border Street bridge last Wednesday, at dusk on a rising tide.

Although Bob Beggan is married to a bona fide "townie," he jumped with Paul for good measure.

Unfortunately for Paul, Carol Beggan informed him that he still has one more thing he has to do...and that is to be recognized, by first name, by Moderator David Place at a town meeting...We understand that Paul has sent a life-size picture and resume to David Place! (Paul got the party he deserved on Thursday!)

☐If there was one thing that Dick Horn didn't need on his 40th birthday, t was more zucchini! Happy birthday anyway, Dick! (He got a party, too.)

☐John Dickson of 26 Fernway and Joseph Cotter, of 312 Forest Avenue are among the recently elected officials of the Boston Chapter of the Financial Executives Institute for 1980-1981.

Dickson, assistant treasurer and controller of The Badger Company, Inc., was elected first vice president and Cotter, executive vice president and comptroller The Sheraton Corporation, was named a director.

The Financial Executives Institute, as the financial spokesman for the business community, is a member organization of 11,000 senior financial officers representing more than 5,600 major worldwide companies.

The Institute prepares and issues positions affecting business and industry, presents testimony to government regulatory bodies and Congressional committees, maintains liaison with other organizations dealing with similar local, national and international problems and informs the membership of significant developments and trends.

☐Joan Curelli has been appointed to the position of store manager of the new Downtown Coop, scheduled to open the week of August 25 at One Federal Street, it was announced by the Harvard Cooperative Society.

Curelli has worked as an assistant store manager in both the Medical Center Coop and the M.I.T. Student Center, and was an assistant buyer and department store manager at Filene's in Boston before joining the Coop.

A graduate of Newton South High School and Vermont College, where she earned an A.A. degree, Curelli also completed the merchandising program at the Laboratory Institute of Fashion Merchandising in New York City.

A native of Newton, she now lives on Linden Drive with her husband, Rudolph, and family.

☐Bill Morgan's signing autographs! His performance in "Not Now Darling" has shot him into stardom! The show, presented at the Old Colony Theatre in Plymouth last month, was so successful, that Dunfey's in Hyannis has hired the cast to do it again for them during the month of October — Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights.

There is a possibility that the Charles Playhouse may sign them on too. Martha Gaffey is also a member of this talented cast. Congratulations to all of them!

☐The Community Chairman for Cohasset with the 1980 United Way of Massachusetts Bay fund-raising drive is Robert Magna, vice-president of the Cohasset Savings Bank.

Magna will manage the fund-raising efforts of local United Way volunteers during the Fall campaign. Their goal and the goal of thousands of volunteers throughout the Massachusetts Bay region is to raise $23.5 million in support of 167 United Way member agencies. These human care agencies deliver health, counseling, family, child care and youth services to approximately 750,000 people in 86 cities and towns in eastern Massachusetts.

Some of the United Way agencies serving Cohasset residents include the Cohasset Chapter of the Red Cross, the Patriot's Trail Girl Scout Council, the Old Colony Council of the Boy Scouts and the South Shore Council on Alcoholism.

☐Guess what, again! On the same day this time — August 6th — Jan Dimitt's cat and Tanna K.'s cat had nine kittens, total. They will be ready in five weeks.

Other pet news: the Slotnick puppies are ready. The Strawberry Parfait's new puppy, Jake, looks cute and cuddly, but he's really a fearsome watchdog-in-training; sharp little first teeth!

☐The guest artist for the carillon recital on Sunday, August 17, will be Frank Pechin Law, carillonneur at the Washington National Memorial Carillon in Valley Forge, Pennsylvania.

Law, who received a Master of Music degree from Temple University in Philadelphia, and is past president of the Guild of Carillonneurs in North America, has given recitals on many of the carillons of North America and Europe. He was the first North American to play the carillons in Cape Town, South Africa, and at the University of the Philippines in Quezon City.

His program on Sunday, from 4 to 5 p.m., will include many of his own arrangements of familiar music.

☐Horses like Sandy Beach too. Last Friday night one was sighted swimming up to its neck, after beach hours.

☐Cadet Richard McIntosh Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard McIntosh of 646 Jerusalem Road, was recently commissioned an Army second lieutenant upon completion of advanced ROTC training at Fort Bragg, North Carolina. McIntosh was enrolled in ROTC at Northeastern University.

The advanced camp provided practice of military skills learned in college with training designed to develop leadership capabilities in a field training environment.

Male call...

By Lois Martin

A gentleman slipped me a note during a public meeting several months ago with the following request..."To strengthen our egos, please write next 'Patches' column on the virtues of the male age 40-49."

It's taken me this long to come up with them...No, no, no, now don't get upset, fellas, I'm just joshing you!

The note was written after a group of men spent a good deal of time discussing the age limitation that should be set on a call firefighter. The town was to come up with rules for the call men and they didn't agree on when to send the average call firefighter out to pasture. Someone said 45 and someone else implied that was too dottering to hold the ladder let alone escape safely from the blaze.

PATCHES

Anyway from the point of view of listening males, the conversation wasn't too flattering. Some of them, snugly into their 40s, felt as if they put their teeth in a chipped cup by the side of the bed at night and forgot where they'd left the cup by the time their heads hit the pillows.

That was the reason for the note.

I'm tickled to death to speak highly of men between 40 and 49. (Let me add I've been known to say a few flattering things about those younger and older than those ages.)

The smart mouth in me, too often irrepressible, races to say off the top that shoe size of the 40 plus male has stabilized and he's as tall as he's going to get. But that's not of my compliments.

Long before I reached the 40s I noticed the attractive maturity of men that age, their comfortable confidence. True, not all of them are like Dan Rather. But then not all the female counterparts resemble Sophia either.

The sage man in the matured 40s still remembers why he winks. It's not merely an affliction that gets him in trouble. He nods sagely when his wife speaks highly of Robert Redford. He likes Clint Eastwood movies and could carry an unsheathed knife between his teeth if it were absolutely necessary.

He can jog as well as men twice or (sometimes) half his age. No one looks as good as he does in a nifty sport jacket or a business suit. Only a few are starting to look better than he does in tennis shorts and designer jeans. And he has aplomb.

Perhaps you thought I was going to say a plump. No, but that would be getting close to another reason I like men in their 40s. Women believe they have been backsliding physically since they were in their 20s. Men don't see themselves as deteriorating that early.

But, by George, come the 40s, there's no denying they don't keep everything in the same place they used to. Thank goodness. That makes me feel more equal. I appreciate it if the 40s men have a dight of a paunch, not a cumbersome amount of flesh, but the smallish half melon shaped protrusion inside his belt. I'm not sure I'd trust a man in his 40s whose waist hadn't reached out a bit toward new horizons. Jack LaLane's fine as a reminder of a need for exercise. But as a neighbor, trimming his bushes, the man passing the church collection plate, or the fellow presenting the town meeting article, I'd not find him inspiring.

I'm sorry about hair loss of 40-49 males if that upsets them. For some in the swift passage of those years, the desire for the perfect color hair is preempted by desire for more strands of it. And those who lose hair before losing interest in their looks, become adept at hairstyles which accommodate the remaining active hair follicles.

But there's Yul, of course. And there's every indication women haven't judge the appeal of a 40-49 year old man on his hair anyway. I like men for many of the same reasons I admired them in their 30s and will still compliment them in their 50s. They understand things we women still view through fog-like behavior of adolescent boys, stuff under the car hood, and insurance policies.

But that's the least of it. Men's virtues go beyond their contributions as surely as they go beyond the 40s with aptitudes in tact.

Officials decided it would be discriminatory to set an age limit on a call firefighter, though they did say (s)he'd have to be 18 to start being a call person.

Still we ought not be nervous about being put out to pasture if we live to earn a place there. From the doings I've seen and heard about, some of today's senior citizens have turned that pasture into an exciting place where they can still kick up their heels. So far as I'm concerned that's about 40-49 years from now.

Softball

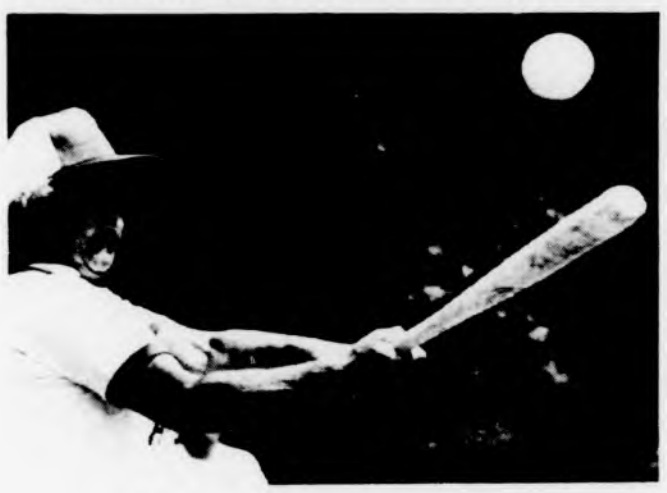
She flew out to Dickie Ainslie. When asked between innings why she was playing for Scituate she said: "Arthur Clark (Cohasset Selectman) said I was a has-been...not a real town official." After MJM flew out in the third, Scituate traded her back to Cohasset...where her luck changed. She was the only player in the top of the sixth to get to first base...Arthur Clark, Gordy Flint and Skinny Laugelle all contributed with outs.

Cohasset picked up another rbi in the top of the fourth...with remarkable work by sneaky School Committee Chairman Frank England...who bunted his way to first. Wouldn't you just know a Cohasset School Committeeman would bunt? Sgt. Dickie Barrow sacrificed to put England on second, after which Jim Gallagher hit a double to bring England home, for a score of 7-3.

Paul Pratt Librarian Dick Hayes made another sacrifice to bring Gallagher in for a score of 7-4...after which Recreational Director Jack Whorley made it to first...and now D. Donovan has definitely arrived because the former Cleveland Indians pitcher made an out.

In the bottom of the fourth, Scituate piled on the rbis...with Planning Board Chairman Constantine Constantinides (no relation to Selectman Reno Constantinides of Hull...everybody always asks him that) walked to first. School Committee Chairman Chris Bowker and Sheriff John Brady hit singles... loading the bases up nicely with no outs. And School Supt. John Kulevith brought in two rbis with a measly single. After which, Assessor Don Bates walked to first, loading up the bases again. Building Inspector Bill Stone went to first, bringing in another run (10-4). And with one out, the bases were loaded up again. Selectman Don Brown singled another run in, and "Booner" Cook singled to bring in two rbis for a score of 13-4, Scituate.



MJM's in hot water in Cohasset.

Protest filed: MJM doomed Cohasset

Cohasset's Jim Gallagher said Monday morning a rematch game will definitely be played at Beechwood — Cohasset. Time to be announced.

He is also formally protesting Rep. MJM's role in the game — as a player for both teams, and then as an umpire. "She was wearing a Scituate team shirt, with a Cohasset shirt pinned around her neck. When she got hit by a ball she ran out and punched the Cohasset pitcher. Our team's psyche was blown when it saw MJM playing for Scituate. But it looks like her ball-playing days are over...now nobody wants her."

Gallagher also said the Cohasset team was unprepared, had showed up at last Tuesday's practice without their hats, gloves..."Our long-ball hitters just weren't hitting, and the umps were rotten."

Jim Young then went to first. Joe Liberty (CZM) walked and (Lord, this is depressing). Finally Bowker and Selectman Bill McGowan struck out...leaving the score 14-4 at the bottom of the fourth.

In the top of the fifth David Wadsworth (injured archivist) and Ham Tewksbury made it to first, stealy-eyed Barrow flew out, the Personnel Board's Bob Tis fouled out. And then Selectman Rocco Laugelle, who showed surprising expertise in the field, even though he wore a muffin man's hat, got on first with a long fly to right field.

Sgt. Jack Rhodes brought in two runs with a fly to right field...bringing the score to 14-6, Scituate. Water Commission Chairman Bill Montouri brought in another run (14-7) with a single...and Ham Tewskbury drove in another tally (14-80.

Scituate never scored again after that Cohasset rally. But then it didn't have to. It was only one inning away from taking the game.

Scituate was so desperate, it sent in its "cheerleaders," Selectman Evelyn Ferreira, who was tagged out at first, and Judith Marden and Bobbie Maffucci :also cheerleaders). They were all out.

In the bottom of the fifth, only Scituate's Kulevith made it to first, Liberty, Stone and Brown accounting for the outs. Scituate was definitely tired.

Cohasset made another superb comeback in the top of the seventh, with Ainslie and sneaky England (another bunt) making it to first. But Rhodes was out on a high fly, O'Brien was out on a foul...and Montouri was out on a high fly.

This sportswriter feels the Cohasset loss was due to too much vertical thinking. Vertical thinking, although it is a powerful tool, rarely leads to breakthroughs in a softball game.

Athletic physicals slated

Athletic Director Clark Chatterton announced this week that Fall athletic physicals will be held Thursday, August 21 at CHS at 1 p.m. for boys' soccer, at 2:30 p.m. for football.

Friday, August 22 at 9 a.m. physicals will be given for field hockey, girls' soccer and cross-country.

By Joan Pinkham

Sitting on the side lawn on this sultry summer afternoon, I can't help thinking, "This is what they must mean by dog days," for I feel as limp as our Irish Setter looks. About the only energy I can summon is to rifle through the pages of the August issue of "Gourmet" while mulling over in my mind this week's column. Happily, I'm jolted out of my doldrums to find this issue has a section of "Dog-Day Dinners." "Cold" is the lead for their Vichyssoise, Poached Sole, Chicken Breasts with Herbed Yogurt and other dishes needed to "keep our cool." One of their recipes is "Summer Pudding with Blueberries" and thanks to Jean Peck, we are not to be outdone. Jean writes: "The credit for this fine little cake goes back to my husband, Paul's grandmother, with whom he spent summers in Noank, Conn. as a child. After preparing a dinner of lobster and home-grown corn and vegetables (Grandpa was a Noank lobsterman), Grandma Chesbro always served her fresh blueberry cake slightly warm, Paul tells me. I now do the same, primarily because Paul and our boys, Glenn and Brian, can't wait till it cools." So here's a delightful recipe called

BLUEBERRY CAKE

1¼ c. sifted all-purpose flour
2 tsp. baking powder
1/4 tsp. salt
1/4 c. shortening
1 c. granulated sugar
1 egg, well beaten
1/2 c. milk
2 tsp. vanilla extract
1½ c. fresh blueberries
4 tsp. all-purpose flour

Sift 1¾ c. flour, baking powder and salt together three times. Work shortening with a spoon until fluffy and creamy; gradually add sugar while continuing to work with spoon until light. Add egg. Beat thoroughly with spoon. Add dry ingredients alternately with combined milk and vanilla, in thirds, beating after each addition until smooth. Coat blueberries with 4 tsp. flour and fold into batter. Bake in greased and floured 8x8x2 cake pan in 350 degree oven for approximately 55 min.

Moving my lawn chair into the shade and positioning it to catch any breeze that might chance by, I find another surprise as I read on. James Bournazos sent in a recipe for Spinach Pie (Spanokopita), writing: "This was a best seller at the last Greek Taverna held in July in Cohasset." Hopefully it will be served again when the next Taverna is held on Aug. 17 on Jerusalem Road. On page 66 of "Gourmet" is a recipe for these hors d'oeuvres. Here is James' version of

SPANOKOPITA

1 lb. phyllo sheets
2 small pkg. frozen spinach, or 2 lbs. raw
1 lb. cottage cheese
1/4 lb. feta cheese
4 eggs
3 sticks butter or magarine
1 bunch scallions and approx. 12 sprigs parsley, chopped

Wash and drain spinach. Chop coarsely. Add 1 tsp. salt, crush and squeeze out all water. Add all ingredients except phyllo, plus 4 T dry bread crumbs to absorb moisture. Proceed to butter phyllo. Layer spinach and phyllo until spinach is used up. Stack phyllo after buttering and prick with toothpick, buttering top layer. Place in 9 x 13 pan and bake in 350 degree oven for one hour, or until brown.

Roberta Gutler was most kind in giving us a little pat on the back and next week we hope to have a surprise for her, as one of our readers has called to say he has the original recipe for Oysters Rockefeller. John Burchill shared his version of this famous recipe with us last week and I'm sure we all look forward to learning of the one served in the famous Antoine's Restaurant in New Orleans where it all began. This might be a good time to repeat my little routine for the benefit of our new readers, reminding new and old alike that your ideas, recipes and suggestions are always welcomed. Sharing is what this little column is all about.

Angler's Corner

By Lindy Blaisdell

POPULAR PASTTIME

Last year (fiscal 1979), a record number of anglers cast their lines into American waters. A record high totaling 27,947,397 paid dues and bought a fresh water license. This was an increase of over 1.5 million from 1978.

Not only have license sales increased, but so have the excise taxes collected from manufacturers risen to new heights. Monies raised in taxes created by the Dingell-Johnson Act are funneled back into the states wildlife agencies to help propogate fish.

CATCH AND RELEASE

Various state wildlife divisions are programming catch and release fun fishing as a management tool.

With today's angling pressure on game fish such as trout and tournament fishing for bass releasing game fish to be caught again is catching on.

Special sections of some streams (trout) are limited to catch and release, keeping only one trophy or keeping no fish over a certain size. After several years of study these programs have proven to improve the quality and quantity of fishing greatly.

Game fish, especially larger ones, are predators and keep pan fish and minnow populations down. This helps keep the pond or stream in balance resulting in a larger overall fish and not a stunted population of perch and sunfish.

Remember to recycle your catch. Bring those big ones home on film only. Lee Wulff once said, "A trout (or bass) is too valuable a resource to be caught only once."

BLUEFIN TUNA

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Aug. 14, 15, 16, the Greater Plymouth Tuna Club will hold its annual tuna tournament.

Over $3,500 in prize money and trophies will be awarded to 13 categories.

There will be a captains' meeting at the Plymouth Yacht Club on Aug. 13 at 8:30 p.m. The awards dinner will be Oct. 4.

For further information contact the Anglers Den in Plymouth or contact the Greater Plymouth Tuna Club, box 894, Plymouth, MA 02360.

You can follow the tournament on V.H.F. Ch. 68 or C.B. Ch. 11.

Legion post installs new officers

The women's auxiliary officers and officers of the men of the George H. Mealy Post 118 of the American Legion were installed on Sunday at Memorial Park. The Legion's state banners fluttered in the breeze at the park while the men and women who serve their fellow war veterans, community and country were officially sworn into office.

Dora Ballard, President of the Women's Auxiliary of Norfolk County thanked outgoing president, Judith Stover, who served two terms, and installed the incoming officers: president, Beryl Sullivan, who will serve her fourth term, senior vice president, Jill Pattison, junior vice president, Linda Pattison, secretary, Lisa Ann Cogill, treasurer, Brenda Litchfield, chaplain, Elizabeth Sullivan, historian, Kathleen Brennock, sergeant-at-arms, Flossie Cogill and members of the executive board, Judith Stover, Ruth Eaton, Shirley Laidlaw and Jackie Waymen.

The outgoing chaplain of the women's auxiliary, Blanche Figueiredo, age 86, was not able to attend, but members of her family accepted flowers in her behalf on her retirement from this position after twenty years service.

The Norfolk County Council of the American Legion installed the officers of Cohasset Post 118: commander, Frederick Huntwork, first vice commander, Robert Duncan, second vice commander, Edward Silvia, adjunct, Jerry Cogill, financial officer, Jeff Laughlan, chaplain, George Haley, historian, Maurice Foley, sargeant-at-arms, Joseph McLean, and the executive board, Rocco Laugelle, Ed Tower, John Burke, Bart Winn and Ralph Perrecello.

Steve Wigmore is the outgoing commander who served two years in that office.

How embarrassing!

She had to give her age under oath on national TV!

By Tanna Kasperowicz

What's the most embarrassing thing you could do to any woman? To a woman who plays tennis regularly, takes aerobic dancing classes...diets (smokes just a little)...but in general takes pretty good care of herself and as a result looks years younger than her actual age?

Ask her age on national television...that's what you could do. And it happened to Kay England of Old Coach Road, when she was selected as a sequestered juror for the much-publicized Bradford Pendergast trial.

The trial was precedent-setting in several respects. It was the first time TV cameras were allowed into the courtroom. The jury, has a result of recent legislation, had to decide whether to use the death penalty. And it was the first jury in Massachusetts required to decide this. Someday, after the appeals are over, books and movies will be written and filmed over this case.

But for now...this article is about Kay's experience as a sequestered juror...and how that experience affected her family, her tennis partner, Grace Donahue, and Kay — while she was holed up for a month in Dedham courtrooms and motels...in order that one man might receive a just and fair trial.

Kay was overwhelmed by her experience which she describes in such terms as "educational and provoking. You're completely taken into a new way of life."

The first tip-off Kay had that she had been selected for jury duty was when she read in the Mariner that she was one of two "lucky, lucky" people whose names had been drawn by selectmen for jury duty. Within two weeks she received a notice from Dedham Superior Court notifying her of the same.

"I reported to Dedham Superior Court June 9 and never came home again until July 3. Over 140 prospective jurors were congregated in the church across from the court house. It took a week to select 16 jurors for the case. That same afternoon I was selected as juror No. 2, after being interrogated by the attorneys. I was asked if I had any conviction about the death penalty and was I for it or against it.

"Then they asked me my age. It took me over a minute to respond to that question in front of the TV cameras. It was a struggle for me to give my age. Afterall, all my friends were watching. I couldn't believe they would ask our ages. But I really did hit a blank about how old I was. Everyone smiled. I think I hit a blank because I really just don't want to be this old."

After it had been agreed that she would be a fair and objective juror, a courtroom official led her out. "I started to say something to someone behind me, but I was quickly and politely informed that I couldn't talk now that I was a sequestered juror."

Someone called her husband, Frank (school committee chairman) for Kay's clothes. "Terry (Kay's daughter) had to drive out with my nightgown and toothbrush. I was never able to speak to my family or anyone again (for the duration of the trial).

"Terry gave Janet (another daughter) a crash course in cooking and homemaking...everything went well on the homefront. But I had to (through the court) make my requests for personal items such as the manicure scissors I hide from the family. And they had to find them."

Kay England

The jurors stayed at a motel in the Dedham area and were well-supplied with golf courses, tennis court, a swimming pool, and laundry services.

"Each juror had a separate room with no television or telephone. We were not allowed to talk about the case among each other.

"At 6 a.m. sharp we were woken up to go by bus to the courtroom. We were in the courtroom daily from 9 a.m. to 5 or 5:30 p.m. I think the recesses were more for the court stenographers than for us."

Kay saw one movie that month...The Empire Strikes Back. Another juror had suggested going to see Brubaker, but that request was denied as it was about prison reform.

Trips were planned for the jurors on weekends... but "We couldn't watch the news. The newspapers came to us with the news about us cut out. The newspapers looked like a patchwork quilt. We'd look at the Globe or the Ledger and the front page would be gone. Even our mail was censored.

"One court officer told me I looked good on television. But I never saw myself. Frank watched me on television...that's the only way he could see me. Although spectators were allowed in the courtroom and Terry came one day. Terry said although she was wearing a bright red jacket, her mother didn't recognize her.

"The days were long, involved days. Long, trying days. At first it was interesting, but many of us got a little homesick."

And Grace Donahue was deprived of her number one tennis partner for an entire month.

Last one in the pool's a fried egg...Cohasset youngsters never left the pool last week. The police report for the week shows lots of uninvited guests in private pools, too. [Derr photo]

Comments

Good idea — we finally have something to do.

Such a center would attract out-of-towners and cause more problems with the kids than we now have. There are many activities for kids in town if they wanted to take part in them.

I feel there are no places for kids to go and this would be "ideal."

If residents support the idea of some teen center, let them constructively help Nancy O'Toole get the right thing going — I would add backgammon tables and music.

(Do) Something else.

Any action such as the proposed hall would be a disservice to, not only our town, but to surrounding towns.

Doesn't Ms. O'Toole know where the profits from these games go? To organized crime — that's where! Helps put more drugs on the street. We don't need that.

I have made my feelings known to the board of selectmen as of this date. Folks who care should be supported in their efforts (this individual was in favor of a computer game hall).

I suggest Ms. O'Toole give her free time to the Cohasset Community Center in its efforts to help children. We have these things in Hull.

Maybe if the kids have somewhere to go there will be less vandalism around town.

Cohasset village and the town in general is admired, let us keep it that way.

Whether or not Cohasset has a pinball arcade has nothing to do with whether kids will stay out of trouble.

At the present time my teenage son wants to go all the way to Hyannis to play computer games. Having such a place in Cohasset would be great!

I do feel a center for kids is needed, but not this kind.

I feel this town definitely needs something to keep the local kids amused. I know when I was young I would have loved a place to play, see my friends, or just hang out. I feel it would cut down on a lot of problems with the kids.

It is unthinkable — tacky — disgusting. Keep it completely out of Cohasset.

The Cohasset Community Center has tried unsuccessfully to provide a kids meeting place, uncertain as to reasons for failure.

I feel very strongly against this type of establishment in Cohasset and will actively express my opinions.

I feel the children of Cohasset will benefit greatly from Nancy O'Toole's proposed computer game room. I also feel the center of town is the best location, because people tend to congregate in that area anyway. I am 23 years old.

In favor.

My 13-year old child presently rides his bike to Paragon Park to play games. I would rather have him downtown. Also, he frequents the Cohasset Pizza House to use the games there — I'm not sure how the owner likes this arrangement! This also requires bike-riding on Route 3-A which I am definitely not in favor of. The games are relatively harmless pasttime.

I am 69 and elderly and it sounds like fun for me! Wish we had one when I was young.

I would favor giving it a chance if it were well supervised by adults.

Think of something else.

I do not have children in town — but would like to go along with what a majority of children would like.

I cannot understand why anyone would be against such a beneficial idea for the children.

Go for it!

Beats going to the beach parking lot.

I think the computer game/room would give kids a place to go and keep us from wandering around town and causing trouble.

This would keep kids out of trouble and give them an honorable place to go.

I feel this is the first position (village) move to give our children a place to engage in clean recreation in our town center.

I've seen this type of recreation center in Japan and it was being used by all age groups.

A place for youngsters is desperately needed in Cohasset. A computer game hall would invite kids off the street to use games.

I hope it works — then my children would have a place to go.

Children are great. Let them have fun and games.

residents in cars taking refuse to a 30-yard roll-off box (dumpster) on Cedar Street. A truck would then transfer the material to the dump site. "That's a lot less expensive than compaction," Tyeryar said.

Neither the board of health or Tyeryar had any statistics regarding how much tonnage is presently dropped weekly at the Town's sanitary landfill.

Joseph Rosano, the nearest abutter to Cohasset Heights, said he would be in favor of a refuse permit if Tyeryar received refuse from the Town, only. "If outside refuse came in I would be opposed." He preceeded his comments by saying Tyeryar ran "the best demolition landfill in the state."

Tyeryar purchased 50 acres on Bear Hill in 1975. In a Mariner interview last October he told a reporter that it took three and a half years to get state and town approval and prepare the area for dumping. "I gambled with my life savings and more."

On Dec. 11, 1978 he opened for business. The operation utilizes 20 plus acres at a time and has a projected use of 35 years and is able to handle an average daily volume of 100 tons of demolition material.

Tyeryar constructed a pond with 280,000 gallons of water and a fire hydrant for firefighting. His equipment is all properly housed (according to state law). And he pays the town 50 cents for every ton of demolition material dumped at Cohasset Heights.

Cohasset Mariner

vol. II, no. 46 | thursday, august 21, 1980 | 2 sections | 25 cents

Danvers man named Cohasset School Supt.

In a field of three tough finalists, whittled down from 147 applicants for the position, 54 year-old Danvers School Superintendent Eugene Crowell came out on top...on the second ballot.

On the first ballot the school committee was split down the middle on Crowell and Nick Muto, Superintendent of the Nauset Regional School System. It was the pre-annual election split all over again: Patricia Walsh, Frank England and Martha Gjesteby voted for Cromwell. While Jack Langmaid, Irene Brown and Diana Kornet declared for Muto.

Diana Kornet gave in to Cromwell on the second ballot, giving him the necessary two thirds vote for the appoinment. The committee then made the vote unaminous.

Between ballots, Mrs. Kornet said she felt all three gentlemen (including finalist Philip Devaux, superintendent of the Tewksbury Township in New Jersey) would offer Cohasset Public Schools different kinds of leadership. While she preferred Muto on the first ballot, she said it was difficult to choose between Muto and Crowell.

Mrs. Walsh said she felt Crowell had more experience, and showed a willingness to impart information to school committee members. "In his present situation he was sometimes criticized by the press because he made school committee decisions look too easy...In addition, he made a point of saying it was important to treat all school committee people equally. I felt his responses were the best." Devaux was Mrs. Walsh's and Mrs. Gjesteby's second choice. All other committeemen chose Devaux as their third choice.

Mrs. Brown also expressed difficulty in choosing between Muto and Crowell. While Langmaid expressed a definite preference for Muto. "I spoke to one of Muto's former bosses, he said 'You can't go wrong wilth Nick Muto.' I also felt he was extremely bright and perceptive."

"I have a gut feeling Crowell would do a better job in Cohasset — he would fit in better. I think he understands some of the problems at the high school," England said.

The School committee voted for Crowell on the second ballot at 8:35 p.m. Monday, but it took another hour and a half to tell him the good news. He was at a school committee meeting.

Crowell was to meet to negotiate a contract with the school committee Tuesday, August 19.

Introducing the new man. . .

Eugene Crowell's not known as a 'mover.' He's been with the Danvers School System for 21 years...and he'd like to "finish up" here in Cohasset.

In a phone interview Tuesday morning, Crowell said he hoped to be in Cohasset by the end of September, but that he'd been working out those details with his chairman this week.

Crowell has two degrees from Tufts University, an MA and certification of advanced graduate study at Boston Univerwity. He has "one half of a doctorate" at the present time, and said maybe after a year or so of getting to know the Cohasset system, he might return to Boston College.

Danvers' system is three times the size of Cohasset's. And Crowell has the responsibility of 4,000 students. He's looking forward to a smaller system, and a more intimate relationship with the community.

At a luncheon last week Deer Hill Principal Ken Ekberg told Crowell he'd have to get at least a six-year contract with Cohasset...otherwise he wouldn't be here long enough to get a mooring. Crowell laughed when he related the story. Presently he has a power boat...for Blue fishing. But he might just return to a sailboat...perhaps a Scott — if it means getting a mooring a little more quickly.

The Crowell family has been getting a lot of attention from realtors on both ends..."They're really all quite nice, and helpful. And the Cohasset realtors are providing a lot of information about the community.

"My wife is also looking forward to the move. We have close relatives in Weymouth...and we summer in Falmouth. But Cohasset.. Cohasset is really a beautiful, beautiful community."

Price of dump is $5 Million

By Tanna Kasperowicz

Hull selectmen reportedly held an executive session Monday regarding the possibility of the Town of Hull's negotiating to purchase Cohasset Heights, a demolition dump (with a pending refuse permit for 20 assigned acres) off 3-A in Cohasset.

In the meantime, Jim Tyeryar, owner of Cohasset Heights, has received offers from eight other interested private parties in purchasing the 48-acre dump for the sum of $5 million.

Ironically, while the Town of Cohasset presently has the only option to buy the dump (option ends October 15), it doesn't appear to be a topic of discussion among town officials.

"It's too expensive," one official said.

"I hate to say it, but even if the Town bought it, it would mess up the operation," another anonymous official said.

In a phone interview Monday, Tyeryar said he would be willing to negotiate a 10-year installment mortage with the town, at one percent below bond rate.

The Town of Norwell is shipping out its refuse now. Scituate is set for awhile. Hull has been getting the same nasty notes from the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE) that Cohasset has.

Last week the Board of Health voted to allow the dumping of refuse at Tyeryar's demolition dump — with no conditions attached. Anyone who buys Cohasset Heights at the present time (assuming DEQU approved the refuse permit) could contract with any private contractors in the Commonwealth to dump refuse. The Town of Cohasset would collect 50 cents a ton on all outside refuse dumped.

Presently, the Cohasset Dump Study Committee is waiting to hear from the Attorney General's office to find out where the town stands with the DEQE and what the options are for the town dump. In the meantime, the study committee has ... at ... st one proposal for doing the work.

The Town's present sanitary landfill is in violation of state regulations. Last month the Town was advised to hire a registered sanitary engineer to do a

Blanche Figueiredo

The Legion 'sunshine'

By Karin Bartow

Blanche Figueiredo, who has lived in Cohasset for sixty years, would love nothing more than to be sitting on her front porch, seeing the family and friends she loves. Right now they're coming to her, often and gladly, while she recuperates from a recent illness, in the Cohasset Knoll Nursing Home.

Most of Blanche's sixty years here have been full of faithful service to Cohasset's Unit #118 of the American Legion Auxiliary. She has been an officer for the last twenty years and has served as chaplain for about ten.

Although unable to attend last weekend's installation ceremony, Blanche was remembered warmly by the Legion and received two awards that reflect her devotion to the auxiliary and its work of serving veterans.

Cohasset's week

School registration

The Cohasset Public Schools will hold registration for all new students entering the system from 9 a.m. to noon daily through Thursday, August 28. Phone for an appointment as follows: Grades K-3 Joseph Osgood School, 383-6117; Grades 4-6 Deer Hill School, 383-6115; Grades 7-12 CHS Guidance Dept., 383-6102.

Part-time positions

The Town Recreation Department needs instructors in various areas such as games leader, creative/dramatics teacher, sports program leader, camp craft instructor. If you are interested in part-time work, usually evenings or afternoons after school, call the Recreation Office at 383-6791 for an application.

Volunteer coaches needed

The Town Recreation Commission is making plans for this year's soccer league and adult volunteer coaches are needed. This year a special coaches clinic will be offered for those who will be coaching. Please contact the Recreation Office immediately for further details.

Horses have right-of-way

The horse population in Massachusetts is now in excess of 6,000 animals, Registrar Richard McLaughlin noted this week. McLaughlin has issued a warning to motorists that horses have the right-of-way over the motor vehicle.

"Every person operating a motor vehicle must bring the vehicle to a complete stop when approaching a horse if the animal appears to be frightened, or if the person in charge of the animal signals the motorist to do so," McLaughlin said.

The above law has been in existence for nearly three-quarters of a century. Offenders are subject to a fine of $25 for the first offense, up to $50 for the second, and up to $100 for the third, as well as having their license suspended.

Special sewer meeting

Jan Daggett, chairman of the Sewer Commission, said Cohasset Commissioners will meet with Hull Sewer Commissioners Tuesday, August 26, at 7:30 p.m. to further discuss the possibility of a joint sewer project by which North Cohasset sewerage would be piped to the Hull plant.

Board of Appeals approvals

In a recent, written opinion, the Cohasset Board of Appeals affirmed the decision of the building inspector to issue a permit for the construction of improvements for a 78 x 36 ft. tennis court proposed by Diana and Lowry Bell of Gammons Road.

The tennis court will have no fence and no net. Four lights will be placed along the perimeter of the court. The court will be set back 45.5 ft. from Gammons Road and there will be a distance of 20.5 ft. between the court and the Crampton's property line.

The appeals board decided that a tennis court is a structure under the bylaw and therefore must meet setback and yard requirements for the R.C. district in which it is located.

The appeals board also approved a special permit for Paula and Lee Kozol to add a room and a sundeck of wooden construction at 426 Atlantic Avenue.

A special permit was also approved for William B. Teg of 21 Pleasant Street for a 25 ft. dormer addition to his home at 20 Pleasant Street.

The Democratic Convention: four perspectives

By David A. Mittell Jr.

TED KENNEDY

The protagonist of the Democratic National Convention last week, by dint of his extraordinary speech on Tuesday night, was Senator Edward M. Kennedy. In 45 electrifying minutes he defined the liberal mythology as it has seldom been defined, even by the giants of the Democratic past. Manifold will be the consequences of that speech.

In practical terms Sen. Kennedy conquered what his failed candidacy could have cost him: the legacy of Democratic liberalism. The often fickle fealty of liberals, which belonged to Adlai Stevenson more than it belonged to John F. Kennedy, belonged to Eugene McCarthy more than it belonged to Robert Kennedy, and never belonged to Edward Kennedy except by default, now belongs to him with all its heart.

Secondly, Sen. Kennedy pricked the modular world of Ronald Reagan as no one had pricked it in 1980, and as President Carter in his inept speech two nights later could not prick it. Since the Republican convention the Reagan act had embraced on the one hand the old conservative Republican saw that Roosevelt Democrats and their successors are a neutered species of Marxist ("The graduated income tax is the work of Karl Marx.") On the other hand, Governor Reagan shrewdly identified himself in his acceptance speech with F.D.R. as a creator of jobs.

In sending the Reagan straddling act to the circus ("An elephant doing a cartwheel always ends flat on its back") with a superb mix of ridicule and indignation, Sen. Kennedy enormously helped himself for the future. But he also helped President Carter for the present (even while so upstaging him). For in the same fine baritone with which he had told the liberal constituency that Jimmy Carter is a clone of Ronald Reagan, he told them in his speech to the convention the extent of the inaccuracy of his earlier remark. He made it clear that politically those who were with him had no choice but to suck in air and be with Jimmy Carter in November.

Sen. Kennedy also helped President Carter by giving his own people a moment of high emotion, a feeling of accomplishment in this convention, and above all the feeling that the future of the Democratic Party is theirs. The Kennedy people had been vexed and subdued until Ted walked into the Garden and cut short their applause by beginning to speak to them. From that moment on they were euphoric — and no longer angry with President Carter.

There had been some talk of John Anderson before the speech, but I heard none whatever afterward. For the Kennedy people to support John Anderson now would be to risk losing what the Senator in his speech had given them: the moral control of the Democratic Party and the hope for political control in 1984. Sen. Kennedy may have obliterated the candidacy of John Anderson! It was, as I said, a speech manifold in its consequences.

"He [Carter] got his applause, not by elevating the content of his rhetoric, but by elevating his voice."

Not the least among the consequences are rhetorical. In making a speech that is bound to alter the way people think, speak, and act, Sen. Kennedy restored oratory to its proper place in politics. And I predict he will have abruptly ended the long pejoration of the word "liberal," a process which began with attacks by radicals in the middle sixties, and continued with attacks by conservatives in the seventies, until in 1976 Morris Udall, with his tail dauntlessly between his legs, announced that he was a "progressive." As the amelioration of the word "conservative" began with another remarkable speech, Sen. Goldwater's to the Republican convention in 1960, I believe the amelioration of "liberal" began last Tuesday night.

All of what Sen. Kennedy accomplished came in a speech that came at the end of a year in which high hopes turned into defeat after defeat. It was a year, let us not forget, in which old friends found the snug harbor of neutrality, a year in which reputable publications, among them the New York Times, found it fit to print trash they had stowed in their files for many years without finding an occasion to publish.

That Sen. Kennedy never bellyached (imagine President Nixon under the same circumstances), kept his good cheer, and the night after his year of defeat had been ratified, went before the majority of ratifiers and the minority of faithful and gave all of them the best speech any of them had ever heard, is some measure of his moral and political triumph Tuesday night.

Ted Kennedy may never be President. Perhaps he never should be President, for his speech did not show that he understands the complexity of issues or that he is anything but ignorant of economics. But I believe his speech may rank as a political oration with William Jennings Bryan's "Cross of Gold" speech at the Democratic convention in 1896 and with Andrew Jackson's toast, "Our union: it must be preserved" to his fellow Southerners at the Jefferson Day dinner in 1830.

What he has shown is that he is a man of courage, dignity, and grace; that he profoundly understands right and wrong and fairness; and that he is a spellbinding orator. Perhaps those things are enough to make him a future president and perhaps they aren't. For now it can be said, in paraphrase of William Allen White's famous tribute to F.D.R. ("we who hate your gaudy guts salute you"), that in Madison Square Garden last Tuesday night, those who hate Ted's gaudy guts had tears in their eyes... and those who love him were bawling.

JIMMY CARTER

As remarkable as the greatness of the Kennedy performance on Tuesday night was the ineptitude of the Carter performance on Thursday night. Whereas Sen. Kennedy strode in and silenced the applause of his friends by getting straight down to business, President Carter was introduced, not by a human being, but by a thirty minute puff piece, a film, at the end of which the voice in the film said, "Ladies and gentlemen, the President of the United States." The lights went on and presto, there was the President of the United States, or what passes for same.

The President then proceeded to silence his friends by boring them. For me in the rafters of Madison Square Garden, 37 years' living in the real world, its dishonesty and its cruelty, could not jade me to the thrill of being in the same room (even so big a room) with a President of the United States (even Jimmy Carter). But what the dark lady of my sonnets could not do, Jimmy Carter accomplished in about 20 minutes. I started noticing the heat, the pins and needles in my thigh, the hangover in my head, and the lady mumbling into my bad ear comments I couldn't understand.

Aside from tooting his own horn ("Before I was president there were no negotiations on the West Bank"), President Carter's speech was mostly a celebration of Ronald Reagan, a celebration by obsession. As James Michael Curley would have noted with contempt, President Carter got the name right over and over again. He got his applause, not by elevating the content of his rhetoric, but by elevating his voice.

The closest he came to making me forget my headache was by saying that as long as he is President, human rights will be the basis of our foreign policy. Had he not flip-flopped a thousand times during his Presidency, were he not backing the Algerians with petro-dollars and the Moroccans with

Dental Dialogue
FLOSSING FACTS
Q. I'm a little confused about the type of floss to use and how to use it.
A. You should clean your teeth with dental floss at least once a day. The best time is after brushing at the end of the day. Slip the floss gently between the teeth and floss up and down each side until the floss makes a squeaking noise. This motion removes the invisible buildup of plaque. Unwaxed floss, does the job best. Also be sure to slide the floss carefully under the gum margin in each tooth. If you need more help your dentist or hygienist can provide a step by step demonstration.

Legislators seek joint session

(ED'S. NOTE: Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, (R) Cohasset, Hingham and Hull, is one of 45 Representatives (and five Senators) who have notified the legislature that they are requesting a joint session in September for the purpose of acting on pending amendments to the Constitution. The legislature can call itself into session with a simple majority of 81 representatives and 21 senators.)

To the Editor:

The Massachusetts Legislature has apparently decided that your constitutional right to petition is not really yours — at least not this year.

59,000 Massachusetts residents signed an initiative petition to sponsor a tax limitation amendment to the Constitution. It is the right of any petitioners to have their proposal voted on by the House and Senate in the Constitutional Convention. The Legislature has ignored that right.

In July, the Legislature adjourned the Constitutional Convention after acting on only three of the twenty-five constitutional amendments before it.

This action is a direct breach of duty by the Legislature as defined under Amendment Article 48, "The Initiative" Part IV Section 2 of the Massachusetts Constitution. This section states, in part, "and if the two Houses...fail to continue (any Joint Session) from time to time until final action has been taken upon all amendments pending, the Governor shall call such Joint Session or continuance thereof."

I have formally requested that Governor King reconvene the session, as he is mandated to do under the Constitution. I have also asked all legislators to officially notify the Clerks of their intent to reconvene in September for the purpose of completing action on the amendments. If a majority of the House and Senate request it, the Legislature will be called into session.

To date neither a majority of the legislators, nor the Governor seem concerned about this abridgment of your rights.

I urge you to write to Governor King and to your Representative and Senator. They will be asking for your vote very soon. Let them know they won't have it until they cease this arrogant disregard for the Constitution. Please call me if you have any questions (617-727-2375). Numbers count. Let your elected officials know you are angry. Write today.

Republican Floor Leader

Thanks to all Jimmy Fund supporters

To the Editor:

Many thanks should go to the following businesses and individuals for their kind donations to the Jimmy Fund, via sponsorship of team players for Cohasset: Arrow Personnel, Inc., Charles J. Humphreys, Attorney, Cohasset Colonial Pharmacy, Cohasset Hardware, Dean and Hamilton Gallery of Homes, (2 sponsorships), DMB Hardware, Dot Perkins, Edward M. Fleming Hardware, Harbor Liquors, Hugo's Lighthouse, Pilgrim Cooperative Bank, Red Lion Inn, Rene Chiasson-Plumber, Scott Liquors, South Shore Music Circus, Thaxter, Beckwith and Henderson, The Linen Chest, and special thanks should to to Ron Goodwin of Fat City T-shirts for the donation of the team shirts, and Erwin Cone of the Red Lion for the donations of ballcaps.

Many thanks should be extended to the players and officials from both Cohasset and Scituate for their donation of time and effort on behalf of the Jimmy Fund. Special thanks to Dick Donovan former Cleveland Indians pitcher for his participation for the Cohasset squad.

A re-match between Scituate and Cohasset is being planned for early September — details to be announced.

Notes & comments

A town official, referring to the Bell's of Gammons Road proposed tennis court, recently said: "It's a shame it's become such a media event!"

Nothing could be further from the truth. "The media did not issue five different opinions on the matter. Nor did the media take the issue to court.

The shame is that the bylaws of the town are apparently so vaguely written that even the appeals board is confused by them. Looks like a matter for the bylaws study committee.

. . .A woman on South Main Street was asked by a neighbor if the airplanes were bothering her. She said: "Possibly, but I can't tell because of all the motorcycles."

. . .The Cohasset Swim Team did a fine job in the water and on the Old Town Hall stage this past week with its rendering of Mary Poppins — completely written and directed by Swim Team Coach Abbie White...the pied piper of Cohasset. Youngsters raised $450 with the production...one third the amount needed to purchase new lane markers.

. . . Yankee's August edition has a fine article entitled Who Owns The Beach? by Carol McCabe which should be required reading for residents of coastal towns.

In Massachusetts the rights of property owners are held to extend to the mean low water mark. Ms. McCabe reported a conversation at Old Saybrook: "A police officer explained to several black women that the Connecticut shore had a 300-year tradition of private beaches. One woman answered 'We had a slavery tradition that long, too, and it ended.' "

...A week or so ago a resident called the Boston Coast Guard to inform it that the light in Minot's Light had been out for over a week. "Where's Minot's Light?" an officer allegedly responded. The resident reported Monday that Minot's is glowing again..."But what if there had been a war or something?" she exclaimed.

Collecting sea glass on Sandy Beach

To the Editor:

Bag people are not just in New York or in Boston or any other large city. They exist in Cohasset, too. I'm one, and after enjoying an hour on Sandy Beach, bring out my four Stop 'n Shop bags . . . and fill them with beer bottles, cans and glass.

It's a sight to behold, for after I fill the bags and stack them neatly beside the Rotary Club barrels, I stand the other junk on top of the beautiful boulders.

This activity goes on while the "lifeguards" of Sandy Beach have their conferences. I really feel like a jerk picking up refuse while four young people walk and boo-shoo along the beach.

What the hell is going on down there at Sandy Beach? Maybe the association is so over-endowed that the lifeguards do little but fraternize!

In the meantime, I will pick up glass and bottles on my daily visit . . . and warn kids not to walk in the parking lot!

Larry Fone

P.S. Next time lifeguard jobs are up for grabs, I've got a few kids who might do more than chat!

MJM will play in return softball match

To the Editor:

Despite protests to the contrary, I shall be playing softball for the Cohasset softball team in the return match with Scituate at the Beechwood Ball Park.

I have participated in all sports, always playing for Cohasset and I was very disappointed that Arthur L. Clark, Chairman of the Board of Selectmen would not let me play in the Jimmy Fund Benefit softball game against Scituate.

Chairman Clark has informed me this week that he has agreed to let me play for Cohasset in the future.

As for Mr. James Gallagher, I hope that he will accept me as a team-mate in the rematch. I can assure Mr. Gallagher that I would have been on the Cohasset team if Arthur Clark had not been the manager.

Incidentally, Scituate had many "girls" on their team; Cohasset had none.

Sincerely,
Mary Jeanette Murray

P.S. To Arthur — I am not a has-been.

Together...wherever

To the Editor:

As it happened, I read the enclosed Boston Globe article just prior to reading the Mariner editorial comments . . . plus some of the proactions and reactions to a game center and life as a Cohasset youngster or oldster.

My question to you is, "Are we . . . "living too closely together?" or are we not living together closely enough?

Dick Avery
Surrey Drive

(Ed's. Note: We wrote our editorial directly after having typed the police report for the week.)

Nothing will work this year

I was walking to school and...
...a cat on Parker Avenue bit me.
...I broke my leg.
...the Cohasset police needed me to help solve a crime.
...my coat was stolen.
...I forgot my gym sneakers.
...I wasn't walking to school, my bus was late.

This year you won't be excused for any of the above. You will be declared tardy and you will have to stay 15 minutes after school in detention hall.

Not even your Mom or a relative on the police force can get you off this year. CHS Principal Richard Streeter is cracking down. Osgood School Principal Jack Creamer may be a little more lenient with first grade students, we don't know.

But you kids at CHS are just going to have to shape up. You will get three demerits (Streeter referred to this as the merit system, but it seems you can't earn merits, you can only earn demerits) if you are discovered to be illegally off the school grounds. You get five demerits the second time — and the second time your parents are notified.

Streeter said he was concerned about the number of CHS students who were suspended last year. This year the state has a new law — students can't be suspended for any more than seven days. So this year there will be an in-house suspension room complete with a supervisor.

And it won't be any fun to be there.

T.K.

The Globe's view of the Mariner's police report

By Susan Trausch

Looking at the big picture is all well and good, and maybe even necessary, but I'd rather not.

I'd rather read the weekly police report in the Cohasset Mariner.

Good stuff in the Mariner police report. Not cosmic stuff. Not vital to our nation and world stuff. Sometimes not even vital to Cohasset stuff. Just good, solid, weird and funny stuff.

For instance:

"Friday, Aug. 1, 12:48 a.m. — skinny dippers on Mill Bridge. Group from Weymouth dressed in underwear sent home."

"Wednesday, July 30, 9:11 a.m. — Sohier street resident reported two individuals involved at her pool apologized for the other night."

"Thursday, July 31, 3:36 p.m. — dump truck dropping stones all over N. Main, no cover on same."

"Monday, June 9, 7 p.m. — Westgate Lane resident in with marijuana plant found growing on his property, wished same logged."

And my favorite: "Sunday, June 8, 1 a.m. — unwanted guest at S. Main Street. Gone on arrival."

Whose arrival? The guests? And why was this guest unwanted if indeed he/she was classified as a guest in the first place? Was this the same person who later became involved with someone in the Sohier Street pool? How involved were they, and why did they apologize? Were they smoking something from Westgate Lane? Did they share it with the dump truck driver?

And who took the lawn chair?

"Tuesday, June 10, 11:40 a.m. — theft of lawn chair on Cedar Acres Lane. Officer reports lawn chair in yard of ex-wife is a civil problem."

Indeed it is. And I say the ex-wife didn't do it. No sir. Whoever took that lawn chair wanted to make it look as though the ex-wife did it. Oldest trick in the book.

You want to know who took the lawn chair? The same person who took the mower and the ladder: "Sunday, June 8, 10:32 a.m. — lawn mower found on railroad bed;" "Friday, Aug. 1, 8:30 a.m. — aluminum stepladder found on Jerusalem Road."

Figures, doesn't it?

And I think the big cat ate Fritz.

Fritz is (was?) the Hugo's restaurant dog who disappeared Saturday, June 14 at 1:22 a.m. Within the next couple of weeks several other animals disappeared, including a toy poodle, a brown dog, a dog described as having "a right eye that looks like a black eye" and a fox.

Then on July 30, came this report: "12:02 p.m. — Parker avenue resident bitten by large cat, treated at So. Shore Hospital." Who will be next?

These are the questions I like to ponder as America goes forward into the 1980's. These and others, particularly the ones in magazine classified sections.

Life is stranger than fiction back there among the ads for harpsichord kits and worm farms and instant body builder equipment and total mind power institutes and Virgin Island vacation homes and funny food.

What do they mean in this month's Atlantic by "Best beef jerky you ever will eat. Your oven."? Or "Frango mint pie from Seattle."? Or "Exotic seed cake."? Or "Kinga's Creative Couisine. Send $3 to Kinga."?

I've spent more time thinking about Kinga the Creative than the cover stories on the convention. Which could explain why I'm happy but uninformed.

It could also explain why I can spend several hours staring at maps, wondering about Spearfish, S.D., and Lake Okeechobee instead of where I'm going. And why another several hours can go on newspaper wedding pictures, wondering if the couple on the end is going to have trouble in a year and why the bride with the bizarre headgear selected it.

The mundane has always seemed more fascinating to me than what's supposed to be fascinating, which is usually boring. The things people do every day or forget to do, and what they call the police about in a small town crackles with an excitement that you can't hardly get no more in the important events of our time.

Retired Police Chief Randolph Feola, Sr., enjoys the police report for the week ever so much more now that he's reading and not living it. His testimonial dinner/roast will be held September 19 — make sure you get your ticket order in! [Derr photo]

So, keep the Mariner coming, Cohasset, and look out for that cat.

Modern-day Tom Sawyer, Janet England, puts some sunshine on the England home on Old Coach Road. She said she was helping Dad Frank England paint the house.

□Joan and Philip Shockman of Meadow Lane recently got in some early, last minute wedding practice. Joan's twin brother, John Hopkins Shockman of Sioux City, Iowa, telephoned to ask if he and Linda Gill, also of Sioux City,.could come for a visit in ten days, and by the way, he wanted to know if they might be married at their house!

Responding quickly in the affirmative, the Shockman's invited 25 of their friends, ordered a beautiful cake and flowers and asked Rev. John Benbow to officiate the wedding which took place last Sunday.

Linda's daughter, Chantel, 9, and two of the Shockman's three children, Susan, 13, and Jull, 11, were also there. Susan's twin brother, Carl, wasn't able to get home from France where he is spending the month of August visiting a Parisian friend.

It had been three-and-a-half years since Joan had seen her brother, so the newlyweds came back to Meadow Lane for more visiting after an overnight at Kimball's. Congratulations to everyone!

□Four new babies — two are Justins and both firsts in their respective families!

□Terry and John Green, of North Main Street, are the parents of their first child and son, Justin Louis, born on August 3 at Lying-In Hospital, Boston. He weighs 8 lbs. 6 ozs. and is "beautiful," according to his grandmother, Janet Figueiredo! His other grandmother is Mrs. Mary Green of North Main Street and great grandparents are Viola Racette, Blanche Figueiredo and Ann Signorelli, all of Cohasset, and Louis Figueiredo of Scituate.

□Walter and Karen Pauley are the parents of a son, Justin Warren, born on July 28 at South Shore Hospital. Justin's birth weight was 8 lbs. 13 ozs. His parents are probably gearing up for lots of visitors, evidence the locale of relatives: grandparents are Mrs. Betty Pauley of Lynwood, California and Mrs. Nancy Ames of Whittier, California; great grandparents are Mrs. William Dossinger of Hacienda Heights, California and Mr. Herbert Jackson of Las Vegas, Nevada and, Mrs. Edith Bird, 93, of Terre Haute, Indiana is Justin's great great grandmother!

□Last Saturday, August 9, was a hectic, but happy day for the Broadhursts. Janine planned a small birthday celebration with a few friends for her husband, "Chip" (Austin), but had to skip the party since she delivered their second child and first daughter, Lori, at 8:10 p.m. at the South Shore Hospital. Lori weighed 7 lbs. 12 ozs.

"R.J." (Robert James) who is almost four, has been helping his dad eat up two birthday cakes, one from Mom and the other from grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Broadhurst of Winchester. His other grandfather is Mr. Paul Boyajian of Mira Loma, California.

□Matthew Peter Basiliere, 6 lbs. 12 ozs., was born on July 31 at South Shore Hospital. His parents are Peter and Gail Basiliere of King Street. His brother Marc turns two on Wednesday — Happy Birthday Marc! Grandparents are Donald and Charlotte Virtue and Robert Basiliere, all of Hanover; and great grandparents are Katherine and Leland Anderson of Sandwich and Gladys Holton of West Moreland, New Hampshire.

□John Thompson surprised his wife, Adrianne, with a mermaid cake and family party on Saturday, August 9. Adrianne shared the celebration with Gilbert Noonan, a friend who was visiting with his wife, Peg, and family from the Cape. All we know is that Gilbert is older than Adrianne!

□Two Cohasset High School graduates are getting ready to enter Bates College as freshmen in September. Michael Duffy, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Michael Duffy of Fair Oaks Lane and Jodi Sandblom, daughter of Russell and Carol Sandblom of Rustic Drive will begin studying at the liberal arts college in Lewiston, Maine in a few weeks.

Duffy was active in athletics, participating in football, track and swimming and was a member of the Jazz Ensemble. He also has an interest in computer programming and plans to major in music at Bates.

Sandblom played varsity basketball and softball at CHS, served as sports editor for the yearbook and was senior class treasurer. She plans to major in sociology at Bates.

Good luck kids!

□Gary Hurlbut of 20 Forest Notch is eligible to win a free trip to Scotland and $1,000 as a result of scoring a hole-in-one at the Cohasset Golf Club. Hurlbut's ace qualified him for the 20th annual Rusty Nail Hole-in-One Sweepstakes, a national competition sponsored by the Drambuie Liqueur Company of Edinburgh, Scotland. The winner will be announced early next year.

□Calling all lobstermen and lobster-eaters! The South Shore Lobster Fishermen's Association will hold an old-fashioned New England clam bake, to "Celebrate the Lobster" on Saturday, September 13 at the Marshfield Fairgrounds.

Meals are by advance ticket only. Admission to the grounds, exhibit halls, and parking will be free. Music and entertainment are scheduled throughout the day. There really are some advantages to living in New England. In Pennsylvania, lobster's selling at $7 a pound. For further information and tickets, please call Bob Barlow at 834-4387.

School garb remembered

By Lois Martin

Raise your right hand if you remember what clothes we used to buy for high school 30 years ago. If you're downhill so far that you can't get your hand up, simply nod from your rocking chair with that look of boundless sagacity.

Oh, we know all right what it was like to be getting new finery for the first day of school. But our choices were far afield from what they're after this year.

I've been given to understand they're wearing kilts, the girls, that is. And what's more they're talking about Jazz Oxford shoes, with laces on them. Sounds to me a lot like the sensible Girl Scout shoes I once cursed as being suitable only for going out and getting the mail in March mud.

PATCHES

But they're voluntarily choosing those this year. In 1950 we went for saddle shoes, with rolled down white socks. We had our legs bare, natch, which were mostly covered by a long, long skirt. There were poodle haircuts and skirts (felt) with poodles on them. You could twirl and show your krinolin and you had ballerina shoes, baby dolls or Cuban heels. We too had cardigans but we buttoned them up backward. We were pre-polyester but we had nylon ingredients in our clothing. Things puckered but they were less wrinkled than they were in the 40s.

We didn't wear hose much, at least not in Ellsworth High School. We'd have had to go to the garter belt anyway so that look was worth procrastinating. But we did have plaids and pleats, bright red lipstick, page boy haircuts and we didn't hurl everything in the wash at the end of one day. The old wringer washing machine was the discipline behind hanging up your clothes after school for at least one more day's wear.

And have I got news for you. Girls didn't wear pants to school back then. Heaven forbid. It took three consecutive blizzard days before we could wear our ski pants under or over our skirts to get by the disapproving eye of Mrs. Fortier.

My first day of school dress in 1950 was lovely. It was purchased in Freese's in Bangor, Maine and it was appropriately special and duly modest. It was smoky rose with gathers around the waist, a back zipper, and white poplin cuffs on the round neck and short sleeves. Eat your heart out you purveyors of snazzy wools and designer jeans.

There was a trend too in some places to require, by virtue of peer pressure, that you wear winter clothes the first day of school. Never mind that it's still 87 degrees Sept. 3, you'd have to be officially into wool skirts and sweaters, sweating, but with the comfort of knowing you were in style and didn't look different.

That's the kicker, isn't it, not to look too different but to be certain you look different from what your mother wants. Then you'll be sure to look right. Some people say kids want to look weird, but only if that's the accepted way to look among their group. There's every indication generations have never approved of one another's wardrobes. You have to skip at least one whole generation before you start bringing back what was vogue before. For example the clothes of the 50s have returned as a lark but not in all seriousness. The clothes of the late 30s and 40s are back in earnest.

Still much is returning, the separate little Peter Pan collars, the natural fibers, and even ankle bracelets. All we need now are pop beads.

But I admire the taste of kids today. They have a little more change in their pockets than we did when Gen. MacArthur was fighting with President Truman. And automatic washing machines make jeans fade faster, the goal of the washing. I recently talked with someone who'd slept in new jeans in order to break them in so that he wouldn't have to walk through the school stiff legged on the first day.

Part of the right look means not looking as if you worked hard to have new clothes on. They've go to look used to make the wearer look cool.

These kids don't hanker after full (uncut) labels like their parents do. They're the only ones in the family that buy clothes that aren't irregular or discontinued.

Well, my smokey rose dress probably still has its label in it. It's a wonder that dear old thing isn't in my wardrobe files. Perhaps I've mistakenly used it as a nightie. Nowadays we parents are pretty swish ourselves when we get the chance. As soon as kids let us in on new style we're right with it. By next week at this time I'll have my new kilts, white walking stockings and jazz oxford shoes.

Actually parents are the pace setters responsible for new styles. Because just as soon as we try to take over their new fads in fashion, they change 'em. And before long I think my smokey rose dress will be just right again.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS

PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT
Norfolk,ss. No.98851

To all persons interested in the estate of RICHARD FAIRFAX BOLLES late of Cohasset, in said County, deceased.

You are hereby notified pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 72 that the thirty-second through the thirty-fourth accounts of STATE STREET BANK AND TRUST COMPANY, Barbara Bolles Hovey and John S. Howe as Trustees (the fiduciary) under Article ten of the will of said deceased for the benefit of Barbara Bolles Hovey et als have been presented to said Court for allowance.

If you desire to preserve your right to file an objection to said accounts, you or your attorney must file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before the tenth day of September, 1980, the return day of this citation. You may upon written request by registered or certified mail to the fiduciary, or to the attorney for the fiduciary, obtain without cost a copy of said accounts. If you desire to object to any item of said accounts, you must, in addition to filing a written appearance as aforesaid, file within thirty days after said return day or within such other time as the Court upon motion may order a written statement of each such item together with the grounds for each objection thereto, a copy to be served upon the fiduciary pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 5.

Witness, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this twenty-ninth day of July 1980.

Convention

arms in their secret war with each other in the former Spanish Sahara, had he not said too many times that he would never do precisely what he was about to do, I would have been more sympathetic than I was.

After a while I noticed people were leaving. Getting up and walking out. But it wasn't Kennedy people, or anybody else walking out in protest. People were walking out, some wearing Carter buttons, as they do in Wrigley Field in August when it gets to be the eighth inning.

When it was over Robert Strauss called up to the podium near every pol in the country up for election who had supported Carter. At length, the podium resembled an attempt to make the Guinness Book of Records. How many pols can you get on a podium? Fairly far down in the pecking order they called up John Y. Brown, Governor of Kentucky. This was the evening's highlight for me. I jumped to my feet and booed as loudly as I could until the next one was called up. The folks around me were surprised, because I hadn't moved or raised my voice in 90 minutes. As I sat down I said, "I'm a Celtics fan," and a few people applauded.

That was the highlight for me, the highlight of seeing a President of the United States appear before a Democratic National Convention. Booing John Y. Brown. An honorable exercise, to be sure. But sad commentary on the spectacle I was witnessing.

Finally, the man on my good ear's side said, "I'm from Arkansas and I don't think he's going to carry Arkansas." I said, "I don't think he's going to carry Massachusetts either, and not because Ted Kennedy lost." He was amazed. Democrats always carry Massachusetts. He asked me what states I expect Carter to carry. "Rhode Island, D.C. and Georgia," I told him.

Later, on television, a Georgia congressman stated that if the election were held today, President Carter would not carry Georgia.

WOMEN

The most distinguishing sociological characteristic of this convention was the presence and influence of women. By design half the delegates were women. Their influence manifested itself in several significant ways. On the floor, there was overwhelming support for the Equal Rights Amendment and for what is called "reproductive freedom," which in English means publicly funded abortions on demand for women on welfare. (The English language takes a beating at these conventions.)

More significantly in my view, women were an integral part of the delegations with which they came. These women are not professional political activists, they are something more important: amateur political activists. They are housewives and professional women and in some cases elected officials, who have an ongoing commitment to political activism. They are a permanent part of their local politics.

That is very important. The real division among local politicians in this country is neither ideological nor partisan, it is motivational. There are those who are in politics to serve and there are those who are in politics to make money. Since the death of President Kennedy, the pool of people going into politics to serve has been getting smaller and smaller. We war babies and post-war babies have never reached political maturity, and politics has increasingly been left to self-serving hacks.

The emergency of women — not radical women or media-star women, just intelligent women on the move in politics — is the first sign of hope I see that bright young people — Lodges and Saltonstalls and Kennedys for the future — are training in the trenches.

I suppose it is possible, but it is hard to imagine any woman going into politics to get rich. Among men it happens all the time. It is a system which has only strengthened itself as good people of my generation have shirked their political duty. If anyone can break the system in the next 20 years and make government to some degree clean and fair, women can. Anyone who has seen an all boys' school go coed knows that the behavior of the boys improves in the presence of girls.

At the McGovern convention eight years ago too many of the women had pot instead of brassieres in their luggage, and when they went home they went home to personal agenda. Last week I didn't smell any pot, and I didn't notice a lot of whoring either. (Perhaps that was because President Nixon is no longer paying for whores). There were plenty of parties with open bars, but generally this was a well-behaved and a businesslike convention, and I attribute that to the presence of a critical mass of serious-minded women.

The one indication (in my view) of the political immaturity of the women at this convention was the provision put into the party platform that any Democrat not supporting the Equal Rights Amendment will be denied party funds.

This was a political blunder because it takes the heat off Governor Reagan for his controversial opposition to ERA. The Democratic Platform is now as contentious on the issue as the Republican Platform, and the advantage is no one's. The opportunity to take advantage of Governor Reagan's one political blunder at the Republican convention has been tossed away.

Aside from politics, the action was plain wrong. ERA supporters who voted to deny party members party funds would coerce those with whom they disagree and deny them that which is most precious among our liberties: the exercise of conscience. No reasoned argument will convince them that honorable men and women may hold a different view of ERA. They will defend themselves by saying that only on this fundamental issue about which they feel so strongly do they forsake the light of reason for the darkness of coercion. But they do not understand the fragile history of liberty, and Justice Brandeis could have been speaking of them when he said:

"Experience should teach us to be most on our guard to protect our liberties when the...purposes are beneficent...The greatest dangers to liberty lurk in insidious encroachment of men of zeal, well-meaning, but without understanding."

The perpetrators of coercion in the platform have staked out the righteous ground and seem not the hand of God but the face of themselves, and they will have to live to see their action contribute to the ERA's defeat to understand that in our system the means are the end, and those who flirt with coercive means deserve to fail to gain their ends.

THE MISSING LINK

When one thinks of conventions past one thinks of a rich variety of local color — Teddy Roosevelt, John Nance Garner, and Strom Thurmond bolting the conventions of 1912, 1940, and 1948; Sam Rayburn saying "x,#$" when JFK offered the Vice Presidency to LBJ in 1960 — lovely things like that. The folks at the 1980 Democratic convention were nice people entirely; but except perhaps for Tip O'Neill and Mayor Koch eating bagels and talking blarney with each other at one of Tip's several "V.I.P." parties, they weren't colorful.

Perhaps that is why — or perhaps television is why, or perhaps Jimmy Carter is why — something was terribly missing for me at this convention:

Laughter.

There was no laughter. Not on the floor, not in the hotels, not at the parties, not on the chartered train.

There were lots of good things. There were no smoking areas on that train, there were new buses in New York just for the delegates, there were trips to see Picasso and Richard Burton in Camelot and Linda Ronstadt singing Gilbert and Sullivan.

But where was the laughter? There is no thing more uplifting than a big crowd of people really laughing. Our politicians used to make us laugh, but not even Ted made us really laugh last week. Where was the laughter? Where is our laughter, damn it?

I suggest that neither the election of Jimmy Carter, nor of Ronald Reagan, nor the passage of ERA, nor its defeat, will end the end of laughter in this land. I have a feeling that much has been lost to us since the death of President Kennedy, and that while the worst days may be behind us, we are not yet again a happy people.

I voted for McGovern and I think I'll vote for Reagan. My friends think that is important. I'd rather they find it funny. I hope in my lifetime I go to a convention and hear laughter. That is important.

Here's the laughter

By David Cutler

...Breakfast at the Biltmore: Part with $10.50 for two scrambled eggs, orange juice, milk and coffee, then pay the tip. It's a leisurely experience since it takes 20 minutes to hail a waiter who don't speaka the language too good.

. . .You can still meet your love under the famous Biltmore Clock, but don't keep her waiting. Otherwise she'll have to plunk down $1.95 for a coke or $3 for something stronger. At the Waldorf, cigarettes are $1.25 a pack and film, which Kodak suggests retail for $3, goes for $5.75.

. . .Everything is relative, however. Members of the Alaskan Delegation marveled at New York's cheap prices.

. . .Jaywalking in the Big Apple can be a capital offense. The cops don't care and neither do cabbies or bus drivers; none brake for people.

. . .That part of 42nd Street that slithers off Times Square makes Boston's Combat Zone look like Benson's Animal Farm.

. . .No one in New York cared to explain why Madison Square Garden is round or why Times Square is a triangle. But we think the omnipresence of bag ladies is aided by the magnitude and offerings of the trash.

. . .Hotel literature at the Statler is printed in English, French, German, Spanish and Japanese.

. . .Should you be unable to find a copy of the National Enquirer on your next trip to New York, don't worry. The New York Post, ever tacky, will fill the bill.

. . .Burger King and McDonald's have replaced the automat, but the muggers are still there. One Boston photographer went home after being robbed on the subway and at the Roosevelt Hotel, burglars had a field day while guests were at the Garden. Nevertheless, fear did not stalk the delegates.

. . .State Rep. Philip Johnston calls Tip O'Neil the best politician in America, and you would agree if you saw the hulking House Speaker in action. At a VIP reception on the West Side, he charmed one guest after another. "Hiya darling...Hellooo Lou, how's my favorite congressman from New Jersey?" "Best Speaker in the history of the House," beamed Mayor Ed Koch.

"You're full of Irish blarney," answered O'Neil. Then, with an annoyed glance at a bagpiper, he leaned into Koch's ear. "You know the Irish gave the bagpipe to the Scotch as a joke, but they took it seriously."

. . .Someone wondered if our B-52s had done some practice bombing on the South Bronx.

. . .Westinghouse, U.P.I. and A.P. had modest booths at the Convention. In comparison, the networks — NBC, CBS, ABC — had palaces that, if moved to Humarock Beach, would make fine summer cottages. In Rome, gladiators played to the emperor. In Madison Square Garden, they played to Mssrs. Cronkite, Chancellor and Reynolds.

. . .The auto workers had some punch at the Convention and so did the machinists union and perhaps the AFL-CIO. But the strongest lobby belonged to the National Education Association — the teachers — who sent more than 450 delegates to root for Jimmy Carter. They were so solidly in the Carter camp that Vice President Walter Mondale was moved to say "anyone running for President would be advised to get the NEA on their side." The teachers liked that.

The kook brigade included Jesus freaks, communists, nazis, klansmen and assorted other yahoos. All were boxed in and vastly outnumbered by New York Police who proved to be among the city's best ambassadors. When Susan Baush of Scituate asked one if it was safe for an unescorted woman to take a cab to the Biltmore, she received friendly assurances that there'd be no problem. One cop even offered his nightstick for the trip. 'T' was declined.

. . .On Thursday night after Carter's acceptance speech, Robert Strauss called up a long list of Carter loyalists to share the podium. Two were booed: Zbigniew Brzezinski and Gov. Edward King.

. . .Political buttons included these gems: "Reagan is Bush," "Reagan for Shah" and "The Republicans Killed J.R."

. . .Gavel to gavel coverage of conventions may end when the television ratings come in. Listening to a lieutenant governor from Wyoming prattle on about a minority plank in the platform is about as interesting as a T.V. test pattern.

. . .Lillian Carter doesn't deserve this, but she was accused of having the two biggest boobs in the Democratic Party: Billy and Jimmy.

. . .Is Carter in trouble? Well, the man behind the bar at McCann's grille is for Reagan, and on East 46th Street, the cabbie, on being apprised that we were attending the Democratic Convention, asked, "Oh yea, who's running?"

. . .Joan Kennedy looked radiant Monday morning when she appeared before the Massachusetts Delegation to win support for Sen. Kennedy's rules fight.

. . .We asked someone to describe Rosalyn Carter's smile to Kennedy when he finally appeared on the podium Thursday night. "Frozen," was the reply.

. . .On Friday morning as the Massachusetts Delegation trooped out of the Biltmore, a pretty girl appeared at the door to hand out campaign literature. She wore a John Anderson hat.

Obituaries

Alice Gibbons

Alice E. Gibbons, formerly of West Roxbury, died August 11. She was the sister of the late Theresa M. and James E. Gibbons. She leaves two nieces: Mrs. Robert F. (Ruth) Costello of Wellesley and Mrs. David J. (Nancy) Gaffey of Scituate, and a nephew, Robert E. Gibbons of Cohasset.

She also leaves several grandnieces and grandnephews. She was buried at St. Joseph's Cemetery, West Roxbury.

George McLay

George McLay, 76, of Cohasset, died Sunday at Queen Anne's Nursing Home in Hingham.

A retired chemical engineer, McLay was born in Scotland. He had lived in Cohasset for 21 years and formerly resided in Quincy. He attended schools in Quincy and was a graduate of Lowell Institute.

He had been employed by E.B. Badger and Son Company of Cambridge, now known as Badger Company, Inc. And he was a member of the Quincy Masonic Lodge for 50 years.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Elinor P. (Spear) McLay; two daughters; Mrs. Carolyn P. Holden of Avon, Conn., and Mrs. Virginia S. Dunmire of Glenwood Springs, Colorado. Also, a sister, Miss Ann C. McLay of Quincy, and four grandchildren.

A funeral service was conducted at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday at Sparrell Funeral Home by Rev. John M. Benbow of the Second Congregational Church. He will be buried in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Trask wins at Marshfield Fair

Mark Trask, a fireman in Cohasset and a farmer in Scituate, got First Place at the Marshfield Fair for Heaviest Pumpkin. His pumpkin weighed in at 68 pounds, a full 17 pounds heavier than last year's winner, which was 51 pounds.

Around Town

☐Four Leos and Don Trettis, who is actually a Virgo who celebrates "on the edge," got soaked on Bassing Beach during last Friday night's rainstorm and annual Leo birthday party.

Who are the Leos? Who else but party-people Jane and Chet Ellis, Jane Trettis, Marilyn and Mr. Marilyn Sweeney. The cook-out on Bassing got ruined, but the salt-water cake on Ellis' porch was delish.

Nice try, guys. You keep us all young, you know.

☐Anne Moore of Fair Oaks Lane has earned a bachelor of arts degree in sociology from the University of Hartford's College of Arts and Sciences. Considering the several moves she has made with her husband, Alfred, and the attendant chores required by their children, Christine, 13, Margaret, 7, and Chip, 3, she is to be heartily congratulated for this achievement!

Captain Frank Sequeira of North Main Street, commanding officer of the Naval Reserve Center Boston/Quincy, congratulates Hospital Corpsman First Class Jean Baynes, also of North Main Street, on her recent advancement. Baynes is one of seven shipmates from the Naval Reserve Center in Quincy who is a beneficiary of the Navy's new "frocking" policy which allows the newly promoted sailors to don their advanced rates without having to wait for their date of advancement to be set.

APPOINTMENTS

Melissa Haught was appointed as aide/instructor of the gifted/talented program at Deer Hill.

Phillip Burrows was appointed METCO coordinator at a salary of $16,500. The only male candidate for the position, Burrows is Assistant METCO coordinator in Braintree, and assistant director of admissions at Mass Bay Community College in Wellesley. He is a graduate of Boston University and a candidate for a masters degree at Suffolk University.

RESIGNATIONS

Accepted with regret were the following resignations: Elizabeth Ripley, part-time cafeteria bookkeeper; Sylvia Jean Bowman, teacher at Deer Hill; Ronna Bingham, school librarian — effective September 29.

SALAD BAR

School committeewoman Martha Gjesteby and Patricia Walsh both spoke in favor of the implementation of a salad bar at the CHS lunch room. No vote was taken on the matter.

COACHES NEEDED

Athletic Director Clark Chatterton said he is still looking for three football coaches and one varsity field hockey head.

OSGOOD SCHOOL

Osgood School starting time this year will be 8:40 a.m. Dismissal time will be 2:45 p.m.

CAFETERIA NEWS

The committee voted to award a $22,753.85 bid to Educational Installations Corporation of Nashua, New Hampshire Monday for 78 round tables and 600 stacking chairs which will be used throughout the building. An increase of equipment will also permit the administration to have three (as opposed to four) lunch sessions...giving students and teachers more time to eat. Hooray!

INSURANCE

A Salem agent was awarded the student and athletic insurance coverage over five bidders. Reliance Standard Life Insurance is the underwriter. The $1,170 contract will provide student insurance for $3.25; and 24-hour student coverage for $18.

Cohasset Dramatic Club elects Heineman

At a recent meeting of the Cohasset Dramatic Club, Harry Heineman of Scituate was elected as president of the club.

Other officers are as follows: Vice President Ron Massa of Cohasset, Treasurer Don Freiter of Scituate, Recording Secretary Roseanne Ring of Cohasset, and Corresponding Secretary Connie Tolman of Cohasset.

The board of directors is as follows: Florence Kelley of Cohasset, Betty Miessner of Scituate, Donna Williams of Cohasset, John Mallon of Scituate, Valerie Lester of Scituate, and Gari Glennon of Cohasset.

The plays for the upcoming season and tentative plays dates are as follows: "Sly Fox," to be directed by Harry Heineman, October 30, 31, and Nov. 1. "Uncle Vanya" to be directed by Judith Holmes, February 26, 27, 28. And "Night Must Fall" to be directed by Wayne Miessner, May 7, 8 and 9.

Miss Piggy, where are you? The auction's on the 30th!

Drexel Gibson lamented this week that he never has been able to catch up to "Miss Piggy" of The Muppets...in regard to any little momento she might have contributed to the Cohasset Historical Society's Celebrity Auction. An appeal to GOP Presidential Candidate Ronald Reagan came back marked: address unknown.

But Gibson, chairman of the auction, has caught up with a whole lot of other famous persons who have sent along momentos to be auctioned off Saturday, August 30 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the South Shore Music Circus.

Souvenir Album - $2

The Society has published a 36-page souvenir album which will give bidders a preview of the over 200 items to be auctioned off August 30. Along with advertising, there are also several articles tracing the history of the Society, the Lothrop House and other writings.

Send $2 to the Cohasset Historical Society, Box 324, Cohasset. Your album will be mailed postpaid. Only 1,000 albums are being printed, so get your order in early.

Since the Mariner last talked with Gibson, over 200 items have been received for the auction. Gibson pointed out that bidding will be done by numbers, and all bidders should arrive at the South Shore Music Circus early on August 30 in order to register for bidding.

The event is being advertised in various South Shore newspapers...so local bidders will have some stiff competition from collectors and dealers everywhere.

Last Friday Mary Gibson was busily pasting thousands of stars on the printed posters which were designed by a Gibson daughter. Mary remarked: "I never want to see a star again."

It is still unclear whether Cohasset selectmen will donate their historical selectmen chairs to the auction. But The Old Goats of Cohasset presented Drexel with a new Girard Perregaux watch to be included with the loot. And while The Old Goats historically never do anything for anybody else, according to a former president of that group... "Seven or eight Old Goats have been actively helping me with the auction," Drexel said.

NEW ARRIVALS

Senator Paul Tsongas has donated Art In The U.S. Capitol; from Margaret Whiting (4 Girls 4) a silk scarf and bead necklace; from Bill Rodgers, his new autographed book called Marathoning.

Paul McCarthy of "Carving Place," in Scituate: a custom-designed hand-carved street sign for the successful bidder's residence. "Stripper" Anne Corio is sending a mystery gift...it's on its way. What do you think it is? There is also a Charlie Tuna sweatshirt and button proclaiming Charlie for president. The sister of the chairman of the board of Star-Kist Tuna sent the items.

Former Massachusetts Governor Francis W. Sargent sent autographed pens, such as he used to sign legislation with while in office. Johnny Mathis sent his new record album: Different Kinda Different and a signed harpist's binder [illegible] his performance at the South Shore Music Circus this summer.

Clark Chatterton has promised an autographed hockey stick from Dave Silk, a member of the U.S. Olympic Team. From the Green Bay Packers, a sports cap/visor signed by Burt Starr [illegible] Welk donated a baton. And there's a hockey [illegible] from the Bruins, thanks to Resident Al Hunt [illegible] boarded the Boston Bus in 102 degree temperature to get the prized item.

The South Shore Music Circus has donated 40 x 60-ft. posters on masonite board, blow-ups of the Stars of '79 season at the Music Circus. Drexel said they would be perfect for decorating playrooms, dens, whole walls!

Janet Smith of Kingston will be the auctioneer.

McKinnon blasts Gov. King for failing to sign discrimination bill

Senator Allan R. McKinnon (D-Norfolk & Plymouth), Senate Chairman of the Legislature's Joint Committee on Insurance, today blasted Governor Edward J. King for failing to sign a major bill to prevent discrimination in the sale of insurance to blind and physically disabled persons.

Senator McKinnon said, "The bill would have applied to all types of insurance and was needed to halt the discriminatory practices of some companies which refuse to issue policies or charge higher rates and excessive premiums for policies they do issue to handicapped persons." The bill also applied to banks which sell insurance.

a real step backward for the Governor to have refused to sign this important legislation," said McKinnon. "I'm sorry that the wishes of some insurance companies have apparently been placed ahead of those who are suffering from these discriminatory practices," he said.

The bill was filed on behalf of the National Federation for the Blind, and Senator McKinnon had worked closely with representatives of the Federation and several insurance company officials to develop an effective and comprehensive bill.

If signed into law the measure would have required all companies to offer insurance policies to the blind and disabled at standard rates unless it could be objectively shown, through sound actuarial data, that special limitations or additional charges are justified.

Captain of 'Old Ironsides' relives sea experiences

By Karin Bartow

He has always been crazy about Naval history and Tyrone G. Martin knew in his early teens that he was going to have a Navy career. "I guess I was the wild hare of the family," he says. There weren't generations of relatives in the Navy to emulate, although he's been inspired by his parents' strong sense of patriotism.

His desire for a life at sea came as much from the legacies of the great captains he read about, as it did from himself.

Twenty-two years into a distinguished naval career, Commander Martin became the captain of the most famous U.S. warship, the U.S.S. Constitution. During his four year captaincy from 1974-1978, Martin brought a new direction to her restoration which has made solid her security and future well being.

He is the only skipper since Charles Stewart (1778-1869), and the fifth ever, to be decorated for outstanding performance as her captain.

Five weeks after his retirement from the Navy in 1978, Martin lined up a publisher and wrote a detailed narrative history of the ship that he, like all other men who served her, came to love.

A Most Fortunate Ship, published in January 1980, only took Martin four-and-a-half months to write. "The bulk of the manuscript had been written during my captaincy," he explains. During the first year of his command he began writing papers to clarify inconsistencies he uncovered in researching her history. His method of writing out bits of puzzling elements was a carry over from an earlier assignment in Navy intelligence.

A graduate of the University of Rochester where he enrolled in the NROTC (Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps) program, Martin's main concern was to enter the Navy with a commission. He did, and prior to his last assignment on the Constitution, had a varied career which included captaincy of two other ships and six years as a Sino-Soviet sea power specialist at the Naval Intelligence Office in Washington, D.C.

He also received six personal military decorations and five command commendations. He served at sea during the Korean and VietNam conflicts.

Duty aboard the 180 year old, wooden warship Constitution, no longer a sea-going vessel, was probably one of the greatest challenges of Martin's career. It certainly was an appropriate one for the lifelong maritime devotee.

Martin inherited command of Old Ironsides as she neared the end of a major restoration project, timed for completion for the 1976 Bicentennial. "What we did in 1975," he explains, "was to institute a long-term, open-ended program of returning her to her 1812 appearance (the height of her era), rather than continue to replace the rotted wood as it was found." The day after the long restoration project ended, the new perpetual care program employing twelve skilled artisans and two apprentices took over.

Additionally, a 25,000 acre white oak grove on Navy-owned land in Indiana is now dedicated for the sole use by the Constitution; her subordination is now under the director of Naval history; she has her own budget; her berth and buildings are secure within a thirty acre section of the National Park Service.

In 1976, the U.S.S. Constitution Museum, a facility dedicated exclusively to the ship, was opened. "She is well provided for and in better condition now than anytime in the past 150 years," Martin says with a deserved measure of pride.

Commander Tyrone G. Martin

His book is an exciting account of life aboard Old Ironsides: nicknamed by one of her crew as he watched British shot from the Frigate Guerriere "bounce" off her side!) through the Barbary Wars and the War of 1812 as well as during goodwill tours, long overhauls for repairs, and during her years as a Naval training ship. It chronicles the triumphant as well as mundane travels on the high seas and the legislative battles for repair monies and survival.

"The thing about the Constitution is that it represents the U.S. experience in microcosm — warts and all," Martin says. From almost being scuttled before completion, to a 260% cost overrun, to quashing slave trade off the coast of Africa in the 1850's, to a failed rescue mission in what is now DaNang, Vietnam, to her glories of the War of 1812, she is a fascinating combination of glories and mishaps.

Martin felt her mystique, like all her other sailors, as well as landlubbers who now troop aboard her every day of the week throughout the year. "She's a happy, lucky ship and serving on her seemed special," he says. One sailor told Martin that "if the Constitution ever caught fire he'd jump in because life wouldn't be worth living without her!"

The sentiments are not new. In 1846, one midshipman wrote at the end of an around the world cruise with her oldest skipper, Captain John "Mad Jack" Percival, "...she is now home like her aged Commander to lay her old bones up 'for a full due'...Every old plank, bolt, spar and rope yarn in her has a share of my love...I can scarcely bear the idea of leaving her, but I must..."

Martin has strong sentiments why she should never be sailed again. "She is a national treasure! She's the only ship in the U.S. Navy that's been there since the Navy started," he said. "Who's to say what might happen once the ship left the harbor?"

In what is characteristic humor, Martin exclaims, "If someone wants to sail the Constitution, I will give them a free set of plans and they can build their own — for $30 million!"

Research on his favorite ship continues. Since 1975 he has been working on a monograph of the changing appearance of the Constitution with Bill Bass from Florida. They will probably publish a book of 60-odd plates with drawings and text. He is also working with the Constitution Museum on an audio-visual film, a time/line, on the ship's history (1797-1855) to be ready in October. Another film segment, dealing with the life and times aboard is in the works.

With half the first printing of A Most Fortunate Ship sold, Martin has also been occupied with radio, T.V. and newspaper interviews. He takes the celebrity status in stride. It's just a new dimension in what's been a large part of his life — study, research, acute interest in things Naval.

The den in his Pond Street home contains important momentos from his last command — a photograph of Britain's royal couple signed "Elizabeth R. and Philip, 76" and a handsome watercolor of the Constitution by Barbara Cramer. Martin is especially proud of a limited edition copy of his book, which Boston Mayor Kevin White had printed for Operation Sail '80 skippers.

Commanding Constitution in time for the Bicentennial visit of Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip, conducting a 21-gun salute to Britannia in Boston Harbor and later in the summer of 1976, leading the Parade of Tall Ships, were undoubtedly very high points of Martin's career.

Yet, serving day in and day out with the crew of seventy men who look after Constitution's welfare and conduct visitors throughout her decks, and working towards her present safety and security, were equal to any pomp and ceremony he has ever experienced.

Dump

hydrology study. A hydrology study is needed because for at least the past several years the Town has been filling in the sanitary landfill with sand — sand does not shed water. It aids in the pollution of watershed areas. In this case, Rattlesnake Run. In addition, there is rubbish in the water table. Dump material is going in the water ...down Rattlesnake Run.

Should the Town of Cohasset, in cooperation with other needy towns, purchase Cohasset Heights? Collaborative funds are reportedly available.

"It might be a painful thing," one town official said. "Nobody likes another town to dump refuse in its sanitary landfill." Another official said the Board of Health could put dumping conditions on any owner, i.e. not allow outside refuse collections. The Mariner was unable to determine if this was true as of deadline this week.

One thing's for certain. Jim Tyeryar's dump has something else which could be very desirable to any town which may have to cap its dump in the forseeable future. He has covering fill...loads and loads of it.

When and if the Town of Cohasset needs to cap its dump, it will need two feet of appropriate fill on top of the rubbish, covered by four inches of loam. No cost has been estimated for either the former measure, or any corrective measures which may be mandatory. But it promises to be very expensive.

Mary Poppins — a 'remembering' musical

By Tanna Kasperowicz

If CHS director Ron Emmons didn't have a scout in the audience, he should have. The Old Town Hall auditorium was packed with grandparents who came from as far away as the North Shore, Marshfield residents...Cohasset parents, relatives, friends and youngsters...to see the Cohasset Swim Team's 70-member cast musical "Mary Poppins."

In lots of ways, it was Abbie White's play (Swim Team Coach) — she directed it, wrote it...and arranged all the dance numbers. She and the cast managed the jubilant production after spending all of Friday afternoon in swim team competition...and it was marvelous for that reason, too.

Abbie, when a youngster, used to produce neighborhood plays in Bemis' old barn. Now a junior at Boston College, majoring in special education, she said her intent was to produce a childhood play about a childhood fantasy...which is what "Mary Poppins" is all about. The stage curtain used for the MP production is the original curtain used by Abbie on Hobart Lane...ages and ages ago. And youngsters and parents alike appeared to be captivated by the two and a half hour musical...which just about did capture everything about Mary Poppins that is important.

Child-like renditions of fantasies which happened in the movie, for instance, were delightfully improvised. Remember that part where Mary, Jane and Michael are all picking up the playroom and all of a sudden Mary Poppins' magic makes the toys put themselves away? One of the most charming parts in the whole play was when somebody jerked a Raggedy Ann doll over the curtain with a rope.

Constable Janie DeLima was about two heads shorter than Jane (Kerry O'Brien)...and about the same size as Michael (Jonathan DeLima)...but then we know some short cops.

Tin Birmann did an outstanding job as Mary P., she was kinder and less severe than the book. But then there was so much singing and dancing in this musical...and so much scene changing...she didn't have the time or the script to create the character. Besides, it was obviously Ms. White's intention to create a remembering kind of play.

Michelle Shea (Mr. Banks) was our favorite character. And we loved the dance of the chimney sweeps over the rooftops of London, England...when Edward was on the throne. Saturday night's Bert (Linda Sheppard) wore pigtails...which was a little disconcerting until you realized Miss White planned for her to keep her pigtails.

Scene from Mary Poppins — the Cohasset Swim Team musical put on for two nights over the weekend.

And the scene one (Friday night) Abbie White's dog joined the cast briefly...but then there was a dog in Mary Poppins...so the audience didn't realize he was unwanted cast for quite a few minutes.

Once I remembered what they were, I loved the penguins, too. And Uncle Albert. Nancy Walls really did make everybody giggle on her (his) Topsy Turvey birthday on the ceiling. This scene was just adorable.

One eight-year old critic said: "This really has a lot more detail than the South Shore Music Circus' "Mary Poppins." And it probably did.

"Let's Go Fly A Kite" was the grande finale...and more kids should do more stuff like this all the time...but then we don't have a year-round Abbie White living in town.

Jeffrey Dodge named instrumental teacher

On a unanimous vote of the School Committee, Jeffrey Dodge, 23, was appointed instrumental music teacher at CHS at a salary of $11,575...contingent upon receipt of proper certification.

Dodge was chosen over a field of 24 applicants for the position, and was one of six finalists interviewed by CHS Acting Superintendent John Raftery and CHS Principal Richard Streeter.

He graduated from Eastern Nazarene College cum laude, in music education. And he has completed three semesters at Berklee College of Music. He did his student teaching in Rockland Public Schools where he was assistant to the band director. Dodge has also done varied private teaching, and has performance experience. He is certified to teach in Massachusetts, Grades K-12.

Although his primary instruction area is percussion, he has taught in all instrumental areas.

No. this is not Nancy O'Toole's new computer hall ... this is Cohasset Savings Bank's new pay-by-phone installation. [Derr photo]

Cohasset Swim Team makes inter-squad awards

Over 180 youngsters participated in Cohasset Swim Team events this year, under the direction of Coach Abbie White and her assistants, Kathy Corbett and Lance Trainor.

The large group of youngsters were divided up into blue, white and green teams, with inter-squad meets held every Wednesday, Abbie said. "And every week the top 50 swimmers were selected to swim in away matches."

The following swimmers were awarded trophies in their age category at an awards ceremony held Sunday evening:

Sixteen year-olds (boys and girls categories): First, Linda Sheppard and Mike Fiori; Second, Tina Birmann and Chriss Herbert; Third, Stephanie McAdams and Lance Trainor. Most improved was Stephen Bowen.

Fourteen year-olds: First, Stephanie Kearn and Stephen Camardo; Second, Nancy Walls and Mike Cunning; Third, Sarah Trask and Jay Santini. Most improved was Peggy Maynard.

Twelve year-olds: First, Cathleen Buckley and Danny Camardo; Second, Bridget Cox and Eric Karcher; Third, Laura Pompeo and John Jackson. Most improved was Vicky Spooner.

Ten year-olds: First, Emily Tague and Ian Knox; Second Alice Bowdoin and Jason Marsac; Third, Susie Camardo and Jamie Davenport. Most improved was Heather St. Onge.

Eight year-olds: First, Niffy Jackon and Jonathan DeLima; Second, Liz Buckley and Gregg Delaney; Third, Dawn Fitzgerald and Com Crocker. Most improved was Eric Theriault.

Coming home from school to the joys of cookies and milk is a memory that lingers down through the years. Mid-morning snacks, before-bed snacks, are children's treats, but the fragrance of cookies fresh from the oven make for a very special home-coming. While mother rummages through old banana peels and crampled wrappings in the lunch box for the day's school papers, youngsters chatter on about the day's happenings. It's a very special time of the day, particularly when you serve Peg White's

1 c. enriched flour
1/2 tsp. soda
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 c. shortening
1 c. brown sugar
1 egg
1 tsp. vanilla
1 c. quick-cooking oats
1/1 c. chopped pecans
1 c. shredded coconut

Sift together flour, soda and salt. Cream shortening; beat in sugar gradually. Add egg and vanilla and beat until light and fluffy. Stir in flour mixture, oats, pecans and coconut. Drop from teaspoon on greased cooky sheet. Flatten each cooky to 1/8" thickness with bottom of glass dipped in flour. Bake in 325 degree oven 12 to 15 min. Remove from pan immediately. Makes about 4 doz.

If we could perfect a delicious snack containing spinach, carrots, lean meat and eggs, we'd be rich and our children very healthy. If by some magic we could meld all of these nourishing foods into a tasty treat, children are so suspicious of anything different, we'd probably never get them to try them. Most children will eat peanut butter in or on anything and Curtis and Vincent Dude are youngsters who choose celery and peanut butter sticks above all else for a snack. Fruit, cheese and crackers are also favorites for their daily snacks. The Federal Food and Consumer Services ruled recently that "junk" foods such as candy are to be banned from schools until after the lunch period. But under the regulation, Sno Puffs or Twinkies, two cake-like foods, are acceptable because they are fortified with vitamins. The belief appears to be that, by preventing children from eating candy, one is eliminating sugar from their diet. Now what does the Agriculture Department suppose a Sno Puff or Twinkie is made from, whole grain rice? A chocolate raisin-nut candy bar contains less sugar than a peanut butter and jelly sandwich on white bread and is, in fact, 100 good calories of natural ingredients. Of course, the best snacks are fruits, natural cheeses, homemade breads and raw and roasted nuts. The Daniel Webster School Cook Book offers this favorite

ORANGE SMASH

1 c. orange juice
1 banana, cut into pieces
1 T honey
1/2 c. cracked ice

Blend all ingredients in blender until banana is liquified.

If you pack a school lunch and peanut butter is your child's favorite sandwich, don't fight it. If the peanut butter is a natural brand, or better still, home-made and is spread on stone-ground whole wheat bread, your child will have plenty of protein. An apple for dessert and all will be well. Now when our gardens are wild with zucchini squash, Mrs. Arthur Chandler's bread would be welcomed by all. It makes two loaves and is called

ZUCCHINI BREAD

In a bowl beat 3 eggs until frothy. Beat in 2 c. sugar, 1 c. liquid vegetable oil and 1 T vanilla. Beat until thick and lemon-colored. Stir in 2 c. flour sifted with 1 T cinnamon, 2 tsp. baking soda, 1/4 tsp. baking powder. Add 2 c. coarsely grated zucchini (unpeeled). Mix well and fold in 1 c. chopped walnuts. Pour into two oiled and floured bread pans. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour, or until cake tester comes out clean. Cool 10 min. before inverting loaves on rack. Can be used as a cake, or with cream cheese. Mrs. Chandler writes this recipe came from a friend in Florida and she has passed it on to many more here in New England.

Angler's Corner

WILD RICE

Usually during the first week in September, the wild rice ripens along the banks of the Indianhead River and Herring Brook. These two streams converge on a mud flat formulating the head waters of the North River at the Hanover-Pembroke line.

Wild rice added to a plate of fresh perch fillets will add nostalgia to your meal. Wild rice, once the staple grain of the Chippewa and Sioux Indian tribes, is free for the taking.

Wild rice is harvested by hand from a canoe at high tide. (High tide is four hours later at the head waters than at the mouth.)

The harvester bends the stocks over the canoe and knocks the loose grain off with a small flail. All the grain does not ripen at once necessitating several trips through the same area a few days apart.

The rice must be dried and the outer hulls removed before cooking. Drying can be done on racks over a small fire (Indian style) or placed on a pan and put in the oven for an hour or so. The drying loosens the hulls which must be removed by pounding with a wooden spoon or stick. The separated hulls are blown off leaving the rice which is ready to cook.

FLOUNDER

Although its early, some nice catches of large flounder have been caught up in Quincy Bay lately. Reports are fish hit on the incoming tides in the channels leading to and around Bumpkin Isl.

SEA TROUT

It's not too early to start thinking about sea-run browns, better known as salters. Salters should be coming into their parent stream starting in September. Best bait is a streamer fly tied to imitate a young herring. Fish the incoming tides to full.

The Jones River in Kingston along with several streams in Falmouth and Sandwich are good bets. More on salters later.

STRIPERS

Look for a four-part series on stripers leading up to their September arrival (we hope) starting next week.

The 'sunshine'

One award was a religious appreciation citation for her "active participation in the 'Back to God' movement by compiling a Unit Book of Prayers." The other was for chairing the coupon committee which did an exemplary job of raising money for veterans' services.

Judy Stover, last year's president of the auxiliary, also credits Blanche with the unit's award for membership beyond their quota. "Inspirationally-wise, she was responsible for this award," says Stover.

Her citations, an honorable mention ribbon, her grandson's professional card and other papers were neatly stacked in front of Blanche one day last week at Cohasset Knoll — she was ready and eager to talk about her life. A pretty woman, with lively blue eyes, she emanates a cheerful drive for living. The problems that put her into the hospital "are a thing of the past," she explains. Her warmth and optimism are infectious.

Blanche was born 82 years ago July 2 in Lawrence of Irish parents. She attended public schools there and studied to be a practical nurse in Chelsea. Her first case brought her to Scituate where she subsequently met her husband, Louis.

Of the six children she and Louis had, only three have survived. Blanche and Louis separated along the way. She has had serious illness before in her life, but as it is with her present situation, she doesn't dwell on the struggles or the sadness. "I'm a religious person," she states.

Her large family is a source of enormous pride to her and she relishes naming them all...Mary and Edna Maree, Terrance and Ginnie Maree and Linda, Robert and Margie Figueiredo, Ellen and Paul, Donald and Nancy Figueiredo, Carolyn Murphy and her children Gretchen and Seth, David, Jessy and Donald Richard, Janet Figueiredo and her children Kathy, Michael Anthony and Terry and John Green, who's Justin Louis was born two weeks ago.

Half the town's thirty year old "kids" call her Mrs. "F" and they used to visit her front porch frequently. Sometimes she would make caramel candy in a frying pan. Her sister-in-law and next door neighbor, Mary DeRocha says, "Blanche is always there if you need her."

Outside, as well as within, the auxiliary, Beryl Sullivan, a longtime member of the auxiliary herself, says, "She's always had time for the auxiliary. There's no one with more patriotism than Blanche."

"Blanche has always been very faithful, just like the mailman, nothing kept her away from the meetings," Judy Stover remembers.

"I never missed a meeting, only once when I was sick," says Blanche herself!

All the praise and fuss over long service to her community and the auxiliary seems to come as a surprise to Blanche. What she gives fellow members of the auxiliary, the veterans, her family and many friends, is, after all, only the reflection of their love and needs.

She didn't tell us, but we found out. She writes poetry! No need to embellish the sentiments and philosophy that are central to her life when she expresses them beautifully herself:

"Influence"

"Drop a pebble in the water and its ripples reach out far. And the sun beams dancing in them, may reflect them to a star. Give a smile to someone thoroughly making his morning glad. It may greet you in the evening when your own heart may be sad. Do a deed of simple kindness though its end you may not see. It may reach like winding ripples. Down a long eternity."

"Love and Home"

"There is beauty all around when there is love at home. There is joy in every sound when there is love at home. Peace and plenty here abide smiling sweetly on every side. Time doth softly, sweetly glide when there is love at home. As I grow old —" (From the "Book of Prayers" of the Cohasset American Legion Auxiliary.)

Gridders hit line before students hit books

School days begin again on Wednesday, Sept. 3. But before students hit the books, high school gridiron gladiators will have been hitting the playbook for a week and a half.

Aspiring football heroes report for pre-season workouts next Monday (Aug. 25) having undergone physicals and drawn equipment the previous Friday.

From then til classes start, two-a-day sessions will be the rule as coaching staffs scan returning veterans to see if they've stayed in shape, grew bigger, stronger, maybe a step faster...screen jayvee and freshmen graduates...hope for a new face or two with muscle and talent.

Opening day sees the largest number of candidates. But grid glamor wears thin fast. Ranks diminish even by the second day as those new to the game who envisioned only gamboling over the turf to the roars of the crowd discover the football facts of life. The bottom line is this is no place for the faint of heart.

Numbers continue to shrink as drills grow more rigorous, progressing from calisthenics and wind sprints to work on the blocking sleds and tackling dummies to scrimmages when the physical beating starts in earnest. And laps, always those tedious laps.

Those who've been there will tell you practices make the game a piece of cake by comparison. That goes double for the two-a-day workouts until school starts and drills drop to one daily.

This time of year, workouts usually are under a broiling sun with high humidity. Helmets and pads seem triple their weight...legs turn to lead...breath comes in gasps...contact feels like a punch from a mailed fist. Even for those who worked out all summer and passed up the frappes and shakes. But woe to those who lolled around enjoying the good life.

If previous exposure consisted only of watching an NFL running back reel off a long scoring run or a quarterback uncork a bomb to a flying wide receiver, the realities of the game become evident fast. The behemoth linemen crunching ballcarriers far more often than his eluding them. Sacking the quarterback more frequently than he escapes. The sweat and stink of oil of wintergreen. The ache of tired muscles and pain from bruises.

Even the grass drills are taxing. And the wind sprints. It's a lot different going full tilt wearing equipment than romping along hard-packed beach sand clad only in trunks. So long before the head banging, many a neophyte mutters grimly, "You have to be crazy to do this," and turns in the suit.

Disenchantment sets in for some when coaches move them to guard or defense when they figured themselves as a ball carrier.

The discipline and drive and repetition — "We'll do it again til we get it right" — turns many off as coaches loom a cross between Captain Bligh and a Marine D.I. But they know and learned the hard way that a player's best protection is to be in condition and to do things right. Nobody wants everybody out there to make it more.

They have their disappointments. Like the inevitable aspirant who looks like he has it all. In the sprints, he outruns everybody. In the passing and punting drills, he has the breaking moves and catches the ball like his fingers were magnets. But then comes scrimmage. A big tackle rams a shoulder into the flash's gut, squirting the ball loose and grinding him into the sod. The kid lies there, finally gets up very slowly, a look of displeased surprise reflecting sudden disillusionment. Or the giant who looks like a natural to blast holes in opposing lines or plug them. Only he wouldn't hit Hitler. The next day, gonzo!

There's homework. The game's grown complex with multiple offenses and defenses, all to be absorbed. The big 'ummox isn't a football player any more.

One time or another, every football player's been asked. "Why do you play such a nutty game?" And not just by mothers who live in apprehension from now through Thanksgiving as their pride and joys risk life and limb.

The answers vary...

...They love the contact.

...They welcome the challenge of seeing if body and mind will respond to the demands.

...It's the excitement.

...Some may say it's a means to an end, the shot at a college scholarship. No menial thing at today's going rates. More than one kid never would have seen the inside of the hallowed halls of higher learning if he hadn't been able to run, throw, catch, tackle, block or kick better than others. Even if some had to go to so-called football factories, they still got more than if they hadn't gone to college at all.

...Some may be lured by the chance for a big payoff after college, the chance to play pro with its big bucks.

But almost all will tell you, albeit after playing days end, it was learning to work in harmony with others — the corny but real value of teamwork. Those who don't believe it find out different the first time a blocker misses an assignment leaving them buried under a human avalanche.

Those who last to hear the opening whistle for the first game kickoff will have earned their right to be there. And that's what it's really all about!

PB & J still a school standby for lunch

Last year salad bars made the big splash as an added starter at school cafeterias. And they went over really big.

This year?

Well, with cutbacks in Federal appropriations and the almost weekly zoom upward of prices, the one thing that's new at the moment as students return to the halls of learning packing their hefty appetites is higher prices.

And maybe following the national example of eating less, and enjoying fitness more. The svelte look may be in right down to the student brigade.

Not right away, if an early peek at first-round menus are any example.

All the favorites seem to be in place.

Pizza, of course, which is a far cry from brown bagging days and the cream cheese or peanut butter and jelly sandwiches ad infinitum and nauseum.

Fries which have become more American than apple pie.

And a lot of other delights unheard of in Mom and Pop's day, let alone Grandma's and Grandpa's.

Fried clam roll, for instance.

Veal cutlet Parmesan.

Baked cheese ravioli.

And Chinese chop suey over rice or noodles.

Peanut butter still gets in there but on a toasted bagel.

Cream cheese isn't omitted but is served on date-nut bread.

However, other taste ticklers were unknown in school culinary offerings not so long ago.

Like Mexican tacos.

And baked manicotti.

The tried and true favorites are back, too.

Including fish and chips...subs...burgers or cheeseburgers...franks...and sloppy Joes.

And the solid standbys like spaghetti, macaroni, hot turkey sandwiches and soups.

About the only thing not in there is shish kebab and baklava.

And with inflation, they aren't likely to be.

Cookies are big on the dessert menu. But there's variety.

...Jello...brownies...pudding...cake...fruits... applesauce...and the good old Conga bars. Once that was a dance.

No baked Alaska or cherries jubilee.

No pheasant under glass or bouillabaisse.

But it sure beats a slightly stale cheese with wilted lettuce.

Purple, mauve & lavender big colors for fall

Hatherly CC fashion show a sell-out

Purple, mauve and lavender are the big colors for Fall.

Hemlines will be at just below the knee for every day dresses, and at mid-calf for more dressy occasions. "But women are still wearing their hemlines just about where they wish to," Cohasset Classics shop-owner Mary Lou Day said during a recent fashion show held at Hugo's Lighthouse.

The ladies of Hatherly Country Club sponsored the show to kick-off their Tobin Tournament festivities this past weekend.

Over 185 tickets were sold (it was a sell-out before the show) to see collections from such makers as Point of View, Pendelton, Kimberley (a new line), Dean Sweaters, Henry Lee and more.

Eleven Hatherly women from both Scituate and Cohasset served as models for the show, which was produced and directed by Classics store manager and buyer, Rachel White.

Nancy Hallas of Newport, Rhode Island, served as commentator. Ms. Hallas is a former model and opera singer who still gives concerts throughout the United States and world. She also runs the Newport Opera Festival, and gives a Christmas concert in The Marble House in Newport.

Mrs. Day and her husband, Carleton, own the popular Classics Shop, which appeals to a 25-80 year-old customer, with Vaccaro sweaters being popular with the high school crowd. "Youngsters buy four and five of the $32 sweaters at a time."

Glad about the school bus coming down the street!

By Tanna Kasperowicz

The Summer sales have been had...Winter merchandise has taken over the clothes hangers in retail shops...as if on cue the season of perfect blue waters, hot sandy beaches, ice cream trucks and cookouts has been spent.

Mothers interviewed weren't necessarily champing at the bit for kids to return to school...but every mother said that it is time for a change...time to vacuum the sand out of the station wagon...time to get back to some kind of a more orderly schedule.

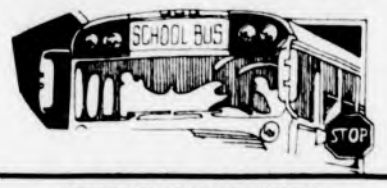
Kids were begging their moms to not make them go to the beach today...and were slowly compiling pencils and papers and notebooks for back-to-school.

Summer was shorter this year by two weeks. Youngsters didn't get out of school until the end of June this year. They'll hop back on the school bus, in most South Shore towns, September 3 or shortly thereafter.

"Every mother, down deep, is glad when the school bus comes down the street," a Cohasset mother confessed.

"What bugged me the most this summer is the lunches. They want hot pastromi sandwiches, something fancy. They won't eat cold sandwiches or peanut butter. It also costs a lot for snacks throughout the week for them and their friends. My son is drinking a half gallon of milk a day!"

Marilyn Adams of South Main Street, Cohasset, will be glad when the lawn stops growing. Her life won't change radically in the Fall...as she'll have one in kindergarten and one in nursery school. "I won't get the release I've been told comes with having all the children in school all day long. I'll miss Summer and the kids...but it will be nice to get back to a different schedule."



OTHER COMMENTS

"I've had a mini-vacation this summer...when the kids went to camp for two weeks. So I'm warmed up. When they went to camp I only missed them when they said goodby. In the morning they were sweet and loving. When they came home from camp they were like their father...complaining about their tough day at camp.

"My neighbor's been warming up for September 3, too. My husband thinks my vacation begins September 3. But actually, it won't be a vacation. I'll be busy making sure their teachers are busy teaching them all the things I can't teach them."

Another Mom: "When they're all off at school this you can bet I'm not going to be home cleaning their rooms or baking cookies. I am planning two martini lunches three days a week. I will cook supper two days a week. Occasionally, I'll buy a new plant or a wall hanging, to make it look as if I've redone a room. And I'll put little bowls of ammonia in different rooms during the day to make it smell as if I've been cleaning."

A Scituate mother: "There's no doubt about it. My vacation begins when the school bus comes around the corner. We've had guests all Summer long...when one set of relatives and friends left, another group took their place like magic. I changed bed linens and washed towels for two months straight. Even thought the guests helped out with the food budget...it was an expensive Summer. My vacation begins September 3. And I've got a whole pile of good Summer reading to choose from."

From Norwell: "Every group of guests we had this summer got sick when they arrived at our house...sunburn was the biggest ill, along with toothaches, knee injuries, respiratory problems, rashes. I spent most of the summer racing kids and adults alike to doctors and dentists. We were at the South Shore Hospital emergency room twice."

A Cohasset mother: "I tricked everybody this year. Immediately after school was over I rented a trailer, tucked my kids into it and camped in Plymouth for a month. I had my Summer vacation. Summer is a tricky season. You've really got to plan how to enjoy it...if you're a Mom."

Preppie look is vogue for high school students

By Lois Martin

Fashion is a lifestyle for a few, a hobby for some fun for as many as can afford to participate.

For Lori Johnson, a senior at Scituate High School, it's part of her lot as a teenager, a part-time job which might turn out to be a way of life if she chooses.

Lori is on Jordan Marsh's fashion board. To get there she was one of 20 young women selected by the store out of hundreds of applicants. As part of that post, she works at Jordan Marsh a "couple times a month," and coming Aug. 23 will be the first show in which Lori will model. That production will be in the Boston store in conjunction with Seventeen magazine.

For one whole year Lori and others on the board could model the clothes she and her peers would like hanging in their closets. When they work at the store they wear a uniform, white walking shorts, a black blazer, a ruffled blouse and bow tie, with white stockings, of course, and "Jazz Oxford Shoes."

But Lori's head isn't always in the electric atmosphere of the fashion world. She also works at the Johnson Drive-In, affectionately called "the A & W" by some folks. Her parents Paul and Pam Johnson own that business. And her work uniform there is different from the one in Jordan's.

Surprisingly Lori doesn't have her school clothes yet. With opening day around the corner, though, she suspects she'll wear kilts, one of the fashion items for high schoolers this fall.

Lori Johnson models her back to school kilts, the finest in teen fashions for females.

Lori says the "Preppi" look is vogue for high school students. That includes kilts, button down blouses, patterned sweaters, cardigans, sweater dresses, jeans, chinos, and a host of accessories, including snazzy cowboy belts, boots.

Lori is a tall, slim blonde. She's unaffected by her fashion "in," and she's a fresh, clean look — with spatterings of summer freckles. She says she favors the Western look, the boots and all. And she wears the rope or raw hide bracelets, which are indigenous both to our area and her age group. And she says hats are big along with hair ornaments for really uptown events.

The current batch of high schoolers seem to have reverted to nifty dressing and special occasions, an inclination which was considered to be missing in the wardrobes of 10 years ago. Lori says the fashion notebooks she receives from Jordan Marsh correspond with what she and her friends like to buy, the wonderful pleats and plaids, the fancy waistlines with buttons, the full repertoire of fun in fashion.

And it has been always thus. Parents of teenagers used to be teenagers whose requirements for first day of school clothing were equally specific, founded on the whims of whatever makes us like certain kinds of things to wear.

Lori wasn't sure late last week exactly what she'd be wearing in the Seventeen's show Aug. 23. It could be kilts, a gown, who knows what's in store. But on Lori the zest for youthful fashions looks good. Kids today are aware of every single part of their look, Preppie or not, right down to the Jazz Oxford shoes with the pointed toe and laces.

School a mixed blessing!

By Nancy Burns

Along with the heady excitement many a mother feels when she realizes the little darlins' will be back in school soon, comes trepidation at the thought of paying for all those new school clothes.

This year the anxiety about outfitting the kids for school is ever more present in view of the rising costs of just about everything. Clothing prices haven't escaped spiraling costs; yet they haven't increased as much as many other items.

"Minimal increases" in clothing costs are predicted by Janet Scheren of the American Apparel Manufacturers Association in the June 9 issue of U.S. News and World Report. For that reason she predicts apparel will appeal to consumers.

The Apparel Association predicts clothing costs will climb about six per cent from March 1980 to 1981. In light of the 18.1 per cent consumer price index for the first quarter of 1980, that seems like good news.

How are consumers reacting?

Many said they haven't begun to do any school shopping. Those who are planning on braving the crowds later this month said they aren't going to get nearly as much as in previous years.

One mother said she was going to wait until October for the sales.

Another mother with several children to outfit indicated she'd be doing well if she could get each of them one new outfit. Additional items will be picked up as money becomes available.

Another said she was sending her college bound daughter off with most of her wardrobe. Since both are the same size they have been sharing for the last three years. Now that daughter is leaving the nest she'll fly away with most of the communal clothing.

The cost of minimally outfitting a child runs over $100 and that's shopping at discount stores like Marshall's and the Fashion Set. A pair of corduroy straight legged pants (what school age child can live without straight legged corduroys?) can't be found for less than $12-15. Throw in two or three pairs of pants, a few shirts at $8-12 each, underwear $12-15, socks at $.99 each, a new pair of sneakers or shoes $12-40 each, and possibly a new fall jacket and the tab is well over the $100 mark.

Compound that assault on the pocketbook if there's more than one school age child or if the child has particular fashion demands such as only wanting Levis, Nike sneakers or Dean sweaters. Then the costs soar.

It's no wonder mothers view the start of school as a mixed blessing!

School opening — then and now

BUCKY YARDUME

Back to school, 1980, is the same, yet different than once upon a time.

For most students, it's the pits. A few claim to welcome it, maybe more now than then. There always has been the suspicion their summer wasn't a ball. Not much difference there.

Part of the preparatory ritual still is shopping to outfit students. The M.O. hasn't changed, but acceptable garb sure has. And prices! For the cost now, you could send a kid to college then.

New squeaky shoes were a must. Sturdy Buster Browns, later saddle shoes, then loafers. Time was a loafer was a bum. Once school started, sneaks were relegated to the closet, at least til kids got home and swapped school footwear to stretch their life. Now? Anything goes, short of barefoot and bikinis.

Girls wore dresses or skirts and blouses. Boys wore knickers, plus-fours (baggy knickers) or long pants (now slacks). A few suffered in shorts at mother's insistence and endured jibes of 'Sissy!' til they fought to disprove the label. And shirts (starched and invariably white). And TIES! Jackets and sweaters came when temps dipped. Now it's jeans and sports shirts for females and males. No way in yore! Jeans (nee overalls) were out. The poorest family wouldn't let its kids be caught dead going to school in them. They were a badge of demerit. If you had to steal to avoid such disgrace, okay! But no jeans! Kids got sent home for "improper dress." No kidding! Usually, that meant they'd sneaked out of the house wearing verboten items whereupon the worst awaited them. One South Shore school just announced it's adopting a stricter dress code. It isn't just the GOP that's pedaling backwards.

You didn't leave the house without a clean handkerchief. Who knew from Kleenex?

Haircuts before opening day were a pre-requisite. If you didn't go to the barber due to fiscal economy (shave and a haircut two bits was the song and rate), you got the home bowl coiffure. Girls, too. There were more Dutch cuts than you'd see in Holland. And more skinheads than in MCI Walpole. While male hair lengths have subsided of late, they're still a deal longer than they once were. Beards? Abe Lincoln alone hanging on the wall had one.

Come Wednesday, Sept. 3, the yellow buses will roll. There was no such animal once. You walked. Or biked, assuming you owned a bike. In the city, you hitched on the back of a trolley til rousted by the conductor or a cop. A kid with his own car? You have to be kidding! Most teachers didn't even have a car. We knew one principal who did. Everybody said he was a grandstander.

A lot of teachers reportedly are going on strike so a lot of students won't be going back Sept. 3, proving there's good and bad in everything, depending on your point of view. And they mostly have cars. Some think striking is new with the faculty. They just weren't around when teachers regularly struck. Students, that is. Now some students strike back, which just goes to show nothing is gained from violence.

Lunchrooms now offer assorted menus, even salad bars. Time was most everybody brown-bagged it, assuming they were lucky. An awful lot of kids went without or shared with generous youngsters. The GOPs were in sway then.

Curriculums are some different. Then in elementary school you got readin' (English), writin' (penmanship a la Palmer Method), 'rithmetic (math) and history and geography (social studies). For music you sang 'America' or sometimes 'Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean.' You got art once a week, if at all. Same for manual arts (shop). Gym consisted of standing beside your desk after the teacher's pets opened the windows and taking deep breaths, waving your arms in circles and doing side-to-side bends. Those were the days you could open the windows in the city and take a breath without being asphyxiated. You got out of line, you got the rattan.

In high school, you had some choice — Latin or Greek, French or German (Spanish was for business students), chemistry or physics, trig or calculus. English and history were built in. You got sports! For boys — football, basketball (very few schools offered hockey), track and baseball. For girls, field hockey, volleyball and tiddlywinks. You got out of line, you got canned.

Rights? Students always had rights. Today they're right even when they're wrong. Yesterday they were wrong even if they were right. Nobody ever finds the middle ground.

Today's vandals — a big school problem — were almost unheard of except in Ancient History. Reason? Man, if they got caught, life wasn't worth living.

Kids carried books home, then and now. Then a boy carried a girl's books, and it was bann-posting time. Today he lugs off the girl, but nobody blinks. No middle ground.

Methods of lugging changed over the years, like all fashions.

Now they pile 'em up in precarious and uncomfortable stacks using one arm or two to tote them, depending on scholarship. It's awkward at best.

Not long ago, the green bag was in. Nobody ever explained why it had to be green. But it was and a status symbol. Everybody had one. They weren't very functional. Everything got dumped in and had to be dumped out to find anything, just like a lady's pocketbook. But they came in handy to clout bullies. Now you could bash a masher. Before that it was the briefcase, functionally compartmentized bag requiring a safari to find anything, and even stodgier.

Today, students have lockers for personal items. Lockers succeeded cloakrooms where on a rainy day, odors were less than Chanel No. 5. You also inevitably ended up going home in somebodys else's hand-me-downs because somebody else had grabbed yours.

Then or now, heat was a problem. Now they turn thermostats down to save fuel. Then they had to stoke woodstoves up to save lives.

It's all a matter of perspective, you see.

With summer drawing to a close...

By Laurel Hanscom

September is drawing closer and with that comes the day when the college student packs his trunk, albums, plants, clothes, blowdryer, favorite stuffed animal, and much more into the back of the family car for their journey to the college or university of their choice.

Having just completed my freshman year at UMass/Amherst, I decided to make a list of things to expect to try and help the incoming freshman class. I'm sure some of the problems on this list will apply to smaller schools as well. There is something for everybody.

First, DON'T overpack. Dorm rooms are very small. I know it is nice to bring a "touch of home" with you but if both you and your roommate bring too much, you will be crowded out of your room. Closet space is limited.

DO expect mass confusion on moving day. If you live in a high rise dorm, DON'T expect the elevators to work. DO expect an emotional farewell from the family as the "baby leaves the nest."

DO expect to meet a lot of new people but DON'T expect everyone you meet to stay. Lots of students do not make it through the first semester.

DO expect to feel lost, confused, and a strong desire to come home. DO stick with it, things get a lot better. DO, however, expect a large phone bill. During the beginning of the semester "crisis," a call to home really helps. DO expect to anticipate mail time. Hearing from home and friends is a great feeling but DON'T expect all your high school pals to write quickly. Remember that they, too, are going through the adjustment.

College is just around the corner!

...some college tips

DON'T expect a lot of sleep the first few nights. DO expect to get on a strange sleeping schedule (naps in the day, up all night). The dorm across from me kept me awake the first few nights with deafening music all night long. Not to mention the "frisbee football" games at 2:00 a.m. in the hall of our dorm.

DON'T expect a lot of privacy. If living in a dorm, you'll be sharing a bathroom, etc. with 40-50 people. You will be living with a roommate in small quarters which makes privacy practically nonexistent.

DON'T expect "Mom's home cooking." Dining commons food is not the greatest but you eventually get used to it. DO keep a supply of munchies in the room for midnight snacks while studying. DO expect to eat a lot of pizza. There are numerous pizza places near campuses and some deliver right to your dorm. DO expect to gain or lose weight depending on how you cope with stress.

DO acquaint yourself with the campus before the first day of classes (this is a necessity at a large school). Freshmen arrive a few days early and this is the perfect time. DO bring comfortable shoes or sneakers. You will do a good amount of walking across campus.

DO expect long, aggravating lines at the book store. DON'T buy the books unless you are sure to be in the class (returning books is one of the biggest hassles you'll run into). DO expect the prices at your University Store to be higher than the local shops.

DON'T expect to make it to your first day of classes on time. They are extremely short so DON'T be surprised if the professor has already dismissed the class by the time you arrive. DON'T expect your professors to buy excuses for missing exams, like your old high school teachers. In fact, DON'T attempt to make an excuse. Be there or forget it.

DO expect to be confronted by a lot of people with different morals, attitudes and opinions. DO allow others their right to expression yet DON'T allow others to force you to act against what you feel is right. However, DO expect to change a lot of your opinions and DON'T be afraid to let yourself change to fit your new attitudes.

Most of all DO enjoy yourself. College is a fun, learning experience that will provide many new friends and memories that you will always remember. Although these words have been used many times they still hold true: "It's all what you make of it."

School's in... watch out!

Student shopping . . . expensive to eclectic

By Claire McDonough

I knew it was time for school shopping. The convention was over, my boy scout was back from camp, the druggist had informed me that tranquilizer sales to mothers were at an all-time high, my kids had begun to make Cain and Abel look like the Bobbsy Twins, and I found myself fighting the urge to start a crusade to restore King Herod to his rightful place in history. Summer had about had it.

I summoned the kids from the four corners of the television set. "We're going clothes shopping," I informed them. Sweetly.

"Oh, gross." My son looked at me through narrowed eyes. "I know what that means. School."

"Yes," I caroled, "and it's going to be such fun this year. You'll love junior high. I want you all to make lists of what you need. You won't need any underwear," I told my youngest. "I bought you plenty for camp."

Silence.

"You do have your underwear and socks?" I smiled through clenched teeth. "You didn't leave them in camp?"

"I didn't?"

My next remark went undetected. It was in the upper registers that only dogs can hear. "Make your lists," I said grimly.

My daughter knew exactly what she wanted. Her list was detailed, specific, and would have presented no problem to Mrs. Onassis, Mrs. Rockefeller, or Mrs. Getty. To Mrs. McDonough it presented a problem.

"O.K. to the pin striped dress," I told her. "The ultra suede suit and the day at Elizabeth Arden's are out."

She looked at me in disbelief. "Motherrrr!" she wailed.

Another son had more eclectic tastes. His list included 27 tee shirts (inscribed with varying messages), one pair of jeans, sneakers and a water bed.

"My school work is bound to benefit if I get a good sleep every night," he explained in response to my raised eyebrow. Of course.

We set off on our expedition the next day. I clutched credit cards, my husband's admonition to "remember, we're on the brink of financial disaster," and a vain hope that everything we needed would be on sale.

The next few hours are a blur. I do remember signing lots of slips of paper that salespersons thrust at me, and from time to time saying things like, "I know it isn't pin-striped, but it does not look like what the peasants wear in lower Slobovia;" "He was looking at water beds and what started to spurt when he jumped on it?" "No, you can't have the tee shirt with the picture of the funny looking plant," and "Who's in the fountain fishing out all the coins?"

I approached the fountain; removed one somewhat soggy kid; smiled at the crowd that had gathered, and squeezed his wrist until he dropped his loot. "Isn't your mother here, dear?" I asked. Sweetly. "Well, never mind, I'll give you a ride home."

"Aw, Ma," he protested as I marched him toward the exit.

"School opens in two weeks," I chanted like a mantra. Summer had about had it.

A mother and daughter stroll along Scituate's Front Street, one could assume, in pursuit of school clothes. [Derr photo]

DeBassio's priorities: the town and the dept.

By Tanna Kasperowicz

From the little I have seen and heard of Police Chief John DeBassio, I have found that he has a style that is very attractive. I liked his openness, his offering of sufficient latitude without being totally uninhibited.

After we had talked for some time, he said "Do you realize I'm learning as much from this interview as you are?" A few moments later he did a double-take, saying "When do you people go to press?" He was concerned his men would read his answers to my questions in the Mariner before they would have a chance to hear it from him first. "I don't like my men learning things from the newspapers first."

I liked that, too.

This Monday Chief DeBassio will be 50 years old. On Tuesday he begins as Cohasset's new police chief. He said he isn't going to rush into Cohasset next week and radically change things around. Although something subtle has already happened. All by themselves, the Cohasset Police Department recently decided there will be no more friends entering the station via the back door. "Yes, I noticed that too, Chief DeBassio said...and I think it's a change I would have made."

I told him about the local press...about how while we're all competitive...we're not competitive to the extent that we injure people. The police report for the week is now a public document...but in truth we're more interested in publishing the "weird, solid, funny" stuff more than we are in nailing the community at large, by name. He said he probably wouldn't tamper with the police report for the week. We said if he did, we'd understand. It certainly does sell newspapers...but the police report for the week is hardly the Mariner's reason for being in Cohasset.

Chief DeBassio is a tower among men...6' 3"...he's trim, in shape, and you get the feeling he's an in-control kind of person. "But I'm not a tough man to get along with." So far he hasn't smiled a whole lot...but that's ok.

He wasn't aware of Boston Magazine's article (two years ago) on the department...and the demoralizing effect it had on the men, and the now retired chief. We said — it's nothing you really have to know about. Most of it could have been said about any small town police department. He said he understood that...that a lot of what police officers

Multi-field easement asked by developer

Joseph Crossen of Jerusalem Road asked the Board of Health, this week, for an easement to build eight homes on a multi-field pumping system which would empty effluent into a 6,000 gallon holding tank. One, additional home, would be built on a separate, single system.

Crossen told the Health Board he purchased the land from Robert Hawker two weeks ago. Earlier this year Hawker met with Selectmen with regard to building a middle-income housing for the elderly project. But several months ago he told the Mariner he had scrapped that proposal.

Should the Health Board ultimately approve the multi-use system, it would be the second such system in the Town to have received an easement of this nature.

Health Board Chairman Marilyn Sweeney said the board would take the proposal under advisement. In addition, Ms. Sweeney said she would notify the Conservation Commission of the developer's proposal, and ask the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE) to make an on-site inspection.

Several abbutters in the area raised concerns about possible encroachment upon wetlands in the area, pollution of resident's wells, drainage, runoff and other similar concerns.

Neil Murphy, engineer for the development, said he had discovered a large amount of ledge on the property. However, he said while his client preferred a multi-use field, "Other perks are possible. We were looking for a large area." Murphy said a multi-field is more efficient than an individual system, when it discharges effluent in the system all at once.

Murphy proposed two or three driveways, which have already received Planning Board approval. However, abutters again objected to the plan when it was pointed out that no generator was proposed to keep the system working during power outages.

Abutters said the area in general has experienced several power outages over the years.

Presently, the development would utilize well water, or nine separate wells for each home. But Health Inspector Keven O'Brien pointed out that without quality water Crossen could not get a building permit. In addition, the multi-field system would require that an escrow account be established, and an association of homeowners be formed.

Selectmen say nix to cable TV franchise

Representatives of a company interested in obtaining a franchise for cable television in Cohasset will be disueded from persuing that course of action, according to comments made by selectmen last Wednesday.

Attorney Richard Kirby of the Quincy law offices of Martin Cosgrove told Selectmen last week the Cosgrove firm is representing a cable television company which wishes to inititate a formal licensing process to obtain the franchise.

According to the Cosgrove representative, part of the application process includes a petition of voters to the Board of Selectmen, and an affirmative vote by that agency.

Cable television licensing fees are $100 with 80 cents of fees from over 250 subscribers going to the state and 50 cents going to the town.

Selectman Rocco Laugelle advised selectmen that Brockton had cable television several years ago, but "took it out two to three years ago because of the problems created with lines coming down."

Selectman Chairman Arthur Clark said "I have no interest...nobody in Cohasset has once shown any interest in cable television.

"The one in Brockton was a Mickey Mouse deal," Laugelle said.

Consultants say town, DEQE delinquents

When something goes wrong...everybody always blames the consultant, first.

But a letter received by Selectmen from SEA Consultants, Inc. last week suggests the Town and the Department of Quality Engineering (DEQE) both dropped the ball regarding the sanitary landfill dilemma...over three years ago.

In 1977, after the Town was taken out of the Southeast Health Region and put into the Northeast Region, it was determined by a new group of health officials that SEA Consultant's plans "lacked sufficient engineering and operating data and were considered to be inadequate" regarding future filling at the sanitary landfill, findings and recommendations.

The Northeast Region decided the above in spite of the fact DEQE had verbally approved SEA's report and plan. The plans, according to the consultants, incorporated all of the changes requested by the Southeast Region.

In December 1977 DEQE suggested that it might

Cohasset's week

GOP reception

The Cohasset Republican Town Committee will hold a GOP reception on Sunday, Sept. 14 from 4 to 7 o'clock at the home of Mrs. William C. Cox, Margin Street, Cohasset.

The reception will afford local residents an opportunity to meet and talk with all candidates for national and state offices. In addition, brief remarks will be made from two national Republican leaders, David F. Durenberger, junior Senator from Minnesota, and John Hammer, former Lieutenant Governor of California under former Governor Ronald Reagan.

Admission to the reception will be $10 and there will be a cash bar.

Republican committees from surrounding towns are cooperating in arranging the reception. Chairman are Mrs. Thomas Hamilton and Mrs. Thomas Killilea of Cohasset.

Anti-airplane noise rally

Hull Selectmen and Hull's Coastal Noise Abatement Coalition is holding an Anti-Airplane Noise Public Rally to protest the massive increase in airplane noise in Hull, Scituate, Cohasset, Hingham and Winthrop.

It will take place Aug. 30 at 4 p.m. at "L" Street Playground in Hull. Cohasset Selectmen voted last week to have Deborah Cook, representative to the Massport Advisory Committee, attend.

The Coalition is calling on all citizens and noise abatement groups to attend to show opposition to the noise increases and to support noise abatement efforts.

RR property $625,000

When selectmen first saw the figures they thought it was a mistake. But they're not. The Penn Central Corp. has set a preliminary value of $625,000 on the Cohasset branch of the Penn Central Railroad. In addition, Penn Central said the property must be sold in its entirety, not in portions.

Selectmen want to purchase the property, which runs from the Hingham to the Scituate line, a 3.14 mile tract which comprises 27.63 acres of land. The preliminary value is subject to an independent appraisal the railroad is required to secure in order to obtain approval of the board of directors of any sale. The state has first refusal on the property.

Census figures

Selectman Chairman Arthur Clark said because Norfolk County has shown a decrease in population in districts which it knows are increasing in population, county officials are asking many towns to immediately take action to audit their census. Our figures were a little less than we expected, but they weren't way off," Clark said.

Selectman Henry Ainslie said some towns in the county were down 18 per cent, but that on an average towns showed a decrease of 10 per cent. "This is a growing county, that's what bothers us."

Tad Lane sub denied

Unless it becomes evident that Tad Lane is a public way, the planning board said last week it will deny a request by Evergreen Trust to subdivide a parcel of land on Tad Lane into five lots.

Under subdivision regulations, lots must have frontage on a public way. Town Clerk Charles Marks told planners Tad Lane is maintained by the highway department. But residents said the only maintenance done on the road by the town in 18 years has been plowing.

Evergreen Trust said while the lots would technically front on Tad Lane, access to them would come from Lamberts Lane.

Under advisement

The Planning Board took under advisement last week a request for a subdivision of land on Hobart Lane. Mr. and Mrs. Peter Androski wish to subdivide the land and a summer home on the land from the property of John Chapin, Mrs. Androski's grandfather. Planners feel they cannot subdivide the land because the house does not have frontage on Hobart Lane proper. Planners will discuss the matter with Town Counsel.

Jurors selected

Ronald Tye of Jerusalem Road, a physicist, and Michael O'Brien of Cedar Acres Lane were selected for criminal jury duty the first Wednesday in October.

New school supt.

The School Committee plans to finalize a negotiated contract reached with new CHS Superintendent at a meeting planned Thursday, this week.

Conservation co. apt.

Robert Maki of Doane Street, an engineer with the Army Corps of Engineers in charge of the coastal zone, has been appointed to the conservation commission. Barbara Weisenfluh and Barbara Kerns also applied for the appointment.

Library book sale

Paul Pratt Memorial Library Trustees have received selectmen's permission to sell 500 music books, some which were donated to the library by the late Donald Gammons — and a collection of rare books. The estimated value of the books is more than $1,000. Funds raised by the sale will be used to purchase new books for the library. Selectmen also alerted the Cohasset Historical Society that the books will be sold.

Gallagher gets bid

James Gallagher, low bidder at $1,686.31 has been awarded a contract by selectmen to paint the police station. Four proposals were received.

HELP WANTED

Noble's Cohasset Store

is planning to hire a high school student for after school and Saturdays. Must be getting good school grades. Apply Mrs. Delano.

Cohasset Mariner staples still your best buy!

You can buy two Star Wars dolls for $6. Milk, bread and bologna...but they are quickly eaten. You can buy seven packs of cigarettes...but you shouldn't smoke anyway.

August 28 through September 25 you can buy a new one-year (in-town) subscription to the Cohasset Mariner for only $6 (a $3 saving), and receive 52 weeks of community news, features, up-coming events, Around Town news, and school boy sports (Columnist Rob Tis is back with next week's issue.)

During this period, the Mariner will donate $2 to the Cohasset Historical Society for every new in-town subscription sold. A two-year ($12) subscription will net the Society a $4 profit.

As her own donation to the Historical Society, Mrs. Carroll Pratt has volunteered to receive your orders.

Make your check payable to The Cohasset Historical Society for a new one-year in-town subscription ($6) or a new two-year in-town subscription ($12) and mail to Mrs. Carroll Pratt, 31 North Main Street, Cohasset 02025. Call her at 383-1672 for more information.

The Historical Society will use the proceeds to help complete restorations on the Lothrop House on Summer Street.

...Just a note. On page 4 of the Cohasset Historical Society's Celebrity & Sports Auction album there is an advertisement which should not go unsung. While it is said a picture is worth a thousand words, so is the absence of one. Perfectly understated, Noble's!

Support a flag - buy a hat

Clark Chatterton never asked anybody's permission. He saw a need so he just went right ahead and started a fund-raiser for it. It, being a new, "fitting" flag for the Town Common flagpole...which presently has a too-small flag on it.

The profit Clark makes on the hats will be used to buy a new, acrylic, $260 flag measuring 16x20 feet. The one we use now measures 5x8 feet and it looks silly. If you think this all sounds terribly expensive... did you hear about the selectmen who wanted to buy a new, $4,000 flagpole to fit the $50 flag?

The hats are blue and white with "Cohasset" printed above the brim...along with a fishermen's insignia. Call Clark for your hat and a new Old Glory!

Sales, cool shops draw customers

New men in town

Police Chief John DeBassio starts work Tuesday, September 2. On Sunday, September 7 Selectmen, in conjunction with the Cohasset Police Association, are holding an open house for Chief DeBassio at Kimballs-By-The-Sea from 3-7 p.m. We're all invited.

A similar reception will be held for new CHS Superintendent Eugene Crowell, but no date has been set.

Here's a suggestion. Do you remember how it felt to be new in town? There are hundreds and hundreds of new names to recall, associations to make. It might be helpful, when you meet either of the new men, to present them with a card stating your name, phone number, and what you do in the community (president of whatever, member of a town board, CHS class president, steering committee member, human being, whatever).

In an interview in this week's edition of the Mariner, Chief DeBassio said he plans to use community resources as fully as possible to aid him in his police duties. Your name and number would certainly speed him on his way to finding the community!

Noise abatement from a pilot's view

To the Editor:

I am a British airline pilot who has operated into Logan airport for several years. I have also spent my last two summer vacations in Cohasset, so that your news items and letters on the subject of the aircraft noise problem in the area have interested me greatly.

Wherever and whenever aircraft are flown some noise is inevitable; it is a social cost to the community at large of their operation. Airlines, and their pilots, are well aware of this social cost and of their own responsibilities in this, and here I should like to endorse the words of Mr. Bill Becker, quoted in your edition of August 7th on the subject.

Mr. Becker clearly shows that noise abatement procedures and routings currently followed by airlines impose alternate costs, those of the usage of expensive and irreplaceable fuel and of a reduction in air safety.

Somewhere in here there is a just balance between the interests of airline passengers, who must ultimately pay for the extra fuel consumed and by the added risk to their flight, and those of the larger community, for whom, it must be recognized, the existence of a major airport in the area is in itself a benefit in many ways.

Where, then, does the present balance lie at Logan?

From a pilot's point of view it is fair to say that a few years ago Logan did not have a particularly enviable reputation.

Nowadays things are much better, and in my experience the airport controllers show a far greater awareness of the vulnerability of aircraft on short, slippery runways and to cross winds and windshear than was once the case.

I cannot favor a transfer of their concern from air safety to aircraft noise. Nevertheless, they are still always keen to allow pilots to make their own approaches whenever possible, and this generally means an over-the-harbor approach with the power off until the final stages, which is fast for the passengers and quiet on the ground.

An examination of the airfield departure charts shows that take-off routings, if viewed objectively with regard to major population centers, look to be the best possible. Similarly a visit to Logan when runway 22R is in operation will give immediate visual evidence of the efforts made by pilots to follow that particular routing.

On the ground, as a temporary resident of Cohasset, I can honestly say that the noise from aircraft was, at its worst, in no way greater than could reasonably be expected by a community living in such proximity to a major international airport. In fact I found the normal aviation noise level surprisingly low.

In short, I think that right now Logan has balanced the conflicting claims on it fairly — and that Cohasset does not have a noise 'problem.' Cohasset residents seem to make extensive use of Logan airport, and so must expect to hear some of the noise it generates. The only way that they can silence the airport completely is never to patronize it; for then airlines would stop coming.

I cannot believe that what they are really asking for is that the noise they help to cause be directed in its entirety at other communities with less political muscle.

'I am your child' writes again

(ED.'S NOTE: This is the second letter we have received from a young man reader know only as "I am your child." We hope one day he will also share with us his "trip" out of drugs into a present day life which he describes as "It's great!" We get the feeling he's building up to that.)

To the Editor:

I am a drug addict. That is my problem. It is for me alone to deal with.

It is also your problem. Especially all those of you who thought, even for a moment, "Oh, that is his problem." For that is a real problem.

I don't want sympathy. I don't want you to place blame — not on the schools, not on the police, not on yourselves. I don't want talkers, listeners, or committees. Instead, I want commitment.

I am committed and I deal with my problem. I no longer use drugs.

You, the parents of Cohasset, are moving the right way. You have hired a man to come into the schools to teach about drug abuse. That's a great start. But, you can spend every last cent in the whole town on outsiders and, although it will help, it will not do the job.

What is also required is total, 100 per cent commitment from each one of you parents. Put yourselves aside and think of your children before they are the next Beechwood Street tree fatality. Then it's too late.

And for you, the children of Cohasset, you must also be committed to this. Although many people can help you, only you can make it happen for you.

Try is a poor word, it leaves room for failure.

Do is the only way to get results.

I love you all,

Beach manager responds to L. 'Shopping Bag' Fone

To the Editor:

I should like to respond to the uninformed "ramblings" of a Mr. L. Fone who had a letter to the editor on Thursday, 21.

First the chief, primary responsibility of a lifeguard is to observe bathers in the water during peak hours of beach use. Our staff of five does this religiously on hot days from 11 to 4:30 daily. We have sections that lifeguards are responsible for and my guards have been doing a fine job.

In fact if the guards are not doing this they are subject to being "docked." As an educated person would realize, the chief responsibility of the manager of a beach front and of the lifeguards is the public's safety in the water.

Second, L. Fone's assertion that we are not picking up the beach is completely erroneous. We have one guard who spends fifty percent of his time cleaning the beach and parking lot, and four of us spend twenty-five to thirty-five percent of our time doing the same between the hours of nine and eleven.

We do this day in and day out. We have managed to fill the dumpster twice a week all summer. For verification of this point, see a representative from Robbins Disposal. (The seagulls and L. Fone's shopping bags certainly are not filling up the dumpsters.)

Third, we are not fraternizing or boo-shooing.

Fourth, it's unfortunate that the Mariner would print such ramblings and ill-informed trash. In one absurd letter, L. Fone has managed to scandalize and attack the personal integrity of the employees of the Sandy Beach Association.

In closing, we have managed a beach front and done a fine job with the cooperation of the citizens of Cohasset. Without the cooperation of ninety percent of the people, this could not be accomplished.

E. D. McGillicuddy

P.S. We are open to constructive criticism but not negative cynicism.

MJM praised by GOP floor leader

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to compliment Representative Mary Jeanette Murray for her fine work during the 1980 Legislative Session on behalf of the people of the 3rd Plymouth district.

I especially commend Representative Murray for taking steps to return the Legislature to Beacon Hill in September for the purpose of completing its work on the constitutional amendments. When the Legislature adjourned after only six months, Representative Murray voiced her strong disapproval of legislators who collected for pay hikes while turning their backs on their constitutional duty to act on all constitutional amendments before them.

During the brief and often difficult 1980 legislative session, Mary Jeanette Murray was highly successful in representing your interests. She has once again shown her legislative ability, succeeding in obtaining $500,000 to rebuild the Nantasket pier and additional funding for the Hingham Armory. Representative Murray was also able to secure the payment of $11,000 to Hingham Municipal Light Company, which had been owned for several years by the Metropolitan District Commission.

This concern for the taxpayer is typical of Representative Murray's actions and certainly indicates her legislative capabilities.

The people of this Commonwealth would be well served if all Massachusetts legislators were as conscientious as your Representative.

Japanese students think Americans are best!

By Caroline Wampole

In Japanese, sayonara means good-bye. It was a word I regretted saying after leaving the InterStudy farewell party last Saturday night at St. Stevens Church.

InterStudy is a program that enables foreign students to visit the United States (or vice versa) and absorb the language and culture through living with an American family.

For almost the entire month of August, twenty-eight Japanese students stayed in Cohasset with approximately 15 Cohasset families. The students, ranging in age from 19 to 22, were described by Margo Cheel, the area coordinator of the group, as "positive and enthusiastic".

Indeed, in the two hours that I stayed at the party, I made more friendships than I could have made in two years.

Some students took pictures of me, others asked for my address, and they were all incredibly friendly and polite. Sometimes language was a barrier, but even then we just laughed and threw up our hands in confusion, letting the conversation go on to other topics.

On the whole, howver, the students' knowledge of English was surprisingly good. Most of them had taken English for eight or nine years, and during their stay in Cohasset, they had English lessons with Joseph Lieberman, from Weymouth, every day, nine to noon.

These structured lessons, along with the inevitable absorbtion of American slang gave the students a well-rounded knowledge of English, which could not be obtained in an academic setting.

The InterStudy program, however, had a lot more to offer than English lessons. The Japanese students went to Plimoth Plantation, to Faneuil Hall and to the Coop in Harvard Square. They were all overjoyed to find that Converse sneakers cost less than $25, because in Japan, the same sneakers cost upwards of $70. Everything imported from America costs much more in Japan, so the students went on massive buying sprees, looking for "Made in U.S.A." labels.

Many students also played tennis up at the CHS courts. They were amazed to find that the courts were free; in Japan even public courts cost as much as $10 per hour to rent.

The students also had their share of Cohasset nightlife; during their stay seven parties were held at various host families houses, three of those being birthday parties. No sake (Japanese wine) was consumed, but everyone had a great time.

The farewell party was also a great time, beginning with dinner, and followed by songs, a play, and piano music. In between the entertainment, the students served a delicious array of Japanese recipes delicately prepared from such foods as seaweed, rice, vegetables, and chicken. (One thing that puzzled us all was: what were the Second Congregational Church's forks doing at St. Steven's?)

The small play that the students put on, Just a Dream, was a smashing success among the audience of host families and teachers. It satired both the crassness of Americans and the rigid formality of the Japanese without offending either culture.

We were all helpless with laughter as the American parents (played by Japanese students) tried to use chopsticks, and equally helpless when the Japanese students tried to use slang.

All of the students that I spoke to seemed ambitious and hardworking, but not without a capability to have a good time. One girl, Yumiko Imukai, was especially interesting; she goes to college in Tokyo but also works two weeks a month for a publishing company, writing articles for Tokyo magazines. Some nights, she said, she works as late as nine o'clock, however, she also told me, she never has very much homework.

I asked one student, Atsuo Numazaki, what the Japanese think of Americans, and was very surprised with his response, being accustomed to hearing how Americans are "slobs", etc. Atsuo said, "Japanese people think that Americans are the best! I like Americans because they are open and frank."

Perhaps the best summation of the students visit in Cohasset is expressed in this poem, written by all of them as a group:

'I must say goodbye, Cohasset town, leaving you tomorrow morn, When in my eyes I see the sun rise, as dawn breaks the early calm.

I'm spending final hours in the golden day, with you who have been so kind,

Together, together our last memories will shine forever in my mind. Never, never can I ever forget these happy days, this lovely town,

I would never let the chance get away, if I could only return some day.'

August 23, 1980

to buy pantyhose. Hope everyone in town will take time to help them find their destination...or just be Cohasset friendly.

Heard that one of our nice Cohasset people, Clark Chatterton, celebrated another birthday anniversary Sunday at Bassing beach with the fun entourage of friends, food and some other enjoyables. He's a good guy...who does a lot for Cohasset, year-round. Happy belated birthday, Clark.

Last time I checked Sandy Beach for beer bottles and junk 'twas a little better...however, if I were a parent of small kids, I would not let them walk around the parking area and rocks without shoes on their feet and no little kids without at least one parent. A clean beach costs money.

Those concerned should join the Sandy Beach Association. Others who want people to do their job, like myself, hire people who will keep our beach safe and clean.

The celebrity and sports auction to be held August 30th this year, will benefit the Cohasset Historical Society. Have you taken a look at the Lothrop House lately? Looks just grand on the exterior. The interior looks better thanks to "Dodo" Parker, Bob Fraser, Bert Pratt and so many others who make the Cohasset Historical Society a living thing.

around town

☐Take one dirty chicken coop, wash it down, paint it and fill it with toys and dress-ups, add two ambitious entrepreneurs and nine four and five year olds, and you get the "Kids Koop".

Jenny Mitman, almost 14, and Pam Weisenfluh, 15, both experienced babysitters and little people lovers, came up with a new twist for summer earnings this year.

Relying on their clientele of three years each and other friends, they solicited nine enrollees — eight girls and one boy — for their two day a week summer play camp.

They had six kids on Tuesdays and nine on Thursdays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and learned over the eight weeks that it's hard to teach the pre-school age group! "They just liked to play restaurant and dress-up," they observed.

Never mind. Jenny and Pam introduced the group to cooking and arts and crafts projects, played games with them, took them to the Music Circus and had occasional visits to the beach. On hot days, "they ran around the sprinkler, a lot!"

The coop Koop is located in the Mitman's South Main Street backyard and used to be Jenny's brother Doug's clubhouse. It will probably b e well used now by Jenny, Doug and their sister, Amy (turning 11 on August 28) now that it's all spiffed up.

There were only two koop-ers on the day we visited. Attendance was not always steady. Jenny and Amy learned that income based on a pay-as-you-go proposition is not always maximum. Next time, if there is one, they would ask for tuition, in advance.

Spending part of their summer at Kids Koop were Colby Lawrence, Megan Stoughton, Sheryl Saef, Meri Grant, Sara Atherton, Amanda Douglas, Lindsey Tebbetts, Alethea Soule and the lone ranger, R.J. Broadhurst.

Pam and Jenny giggled in recalling a tiny mishap. One day R.J. was handed a bag of what was thought to be miniwheats — people food — from a little nextdoor neighbor. He graciously shared his bagful with the girls at camp. But it turned out that R.J.'s snack was really fish food, and some moms weren't happy! (Fish food, in nibbling quantities, is perfectly safe for children — mine ate a whole box once and I checked.)

Jenny's put her hard earned money in the bank where "it's waiting to be spent" and Pam bought all her own school clothes. As you might expect, these two ambitious ladies were not idle between Tuesdays and Thursdays. Jenny played tennis on the recreation team, sailed at the Sailing Club, has helped out at her church nursery and, of course, babysat when she could. She will be a ninth grader.

Pam enters the tenth grade and is going to help out in the Osgood kindergarten one day a week. She also plays tennis, has taught Sunday school and likes to ski in the winter. Last year she was a part-time ski instructor for four and five year olds at Attatash, New Hampshire.

These girls are not only clever and industrious when it comes to earning money, but they've already got a good start on their resumes.

☐Janis Brown's surprise birthday party Saturday night was not a "bummer", but then she's only "30 plus and minus 35"! Congratulations on keeping a secret Matt.

☐Michael Bliss got a pony for his birthday last month. What's that you say? A pony? That's what we said too when a friend of his told us. Actually, his pony is a ride'em lawn mower and it's perfectly legal for him to have one. Hope you had a happy, Michael!

☐Ms. Gena Forman became the bride of Richard H. Brown, Jr. on August 3 at Hugo's. The bride works at Stop & Shop in Cohasset and the bridegroom runs the Brown's Foreign Auto at the Getty station on Rte. 3A. The couple honeymooned in Waterville Valley, New Hampshire. Mrs. Priscilla Brown, mother of the groom, said it was a lovely day at Hugo's. Congratulations.

☐Last Friday (in the pouring rain) the Cohasset Junior Club Golf Championships were held at the Cohasset Golf Club. Scott Hurlburt was club champion with a score of 78. In the 15-17 age group Ted Galo took first with a score of 82. In the 12-14 age group John Drago was the winner with an 88 score. Jeff Hartwell scored 94 to take tops in the 11 year-old group, and Glenn Froio, age 10, won in his age category. This information was submitted by Gene Peterson, Cohasset Golf Club Pro.

☐Clark Chatterton, old P.T. Barnum himself, was royally roasted on Bassing Beach Sunday by the Music Circus kids. He said he was delightfully surprised...and rather pleased by the tribute.

☐Saturday afternoon Doris Golden and her husband, Jack, were feted at a surprise 25th Wedding Anniversary at their home. Their two daughters, Karen and Cari planned the event. Arlene Stockbridge made the cake in Maine...and then told Charlie to "drive with care" all the way home from Maine last Friday. Charlie said: "There we were...three boys in the back seat, all of our stuff, and Arlene's cake was supposed to somehow get special treatment! Everytime I went to put on the brakes Arlene said: 'Be careful of the cake!' "

The girls had the Windsong band, a popular Barnside group, play...and the Goldens received lovely gifts.

☐Sorry folks...there are just no more tickets left for the Feola Testimonial. It's standing-room only from now on.

☐Norman Swain, Peter Breen, Tommy Hall and Ron Goodwin spent last week in Nantucket...they chartered a plane to get there...and then it rained all week there like it rained all week here. Ron celebrated his 29th birthday (29 again, Ron?) last Wednesday...according to a leak in the group. Breen's behavior caused him to be thrown out of the guest house the men were staying in.

☐Friday, Aug. 22, the Mastrobuenos bid a sad farewell to beautiful, albeit rainy, Cohasset. They're on to Chicago, to Tony's new teaching job at the University of Illinois, and with them go Susanna, 16, Joe, 14, and Sandro, 7. We will also miss Dinah, whose artwork has been pretty well known around town. Good luck!

☐The awful rain last week finally gave way to sunshine, so that by Sunday, Aug. 23, it was a gorgeous day. Gorgeous enough so that The Foxes' farewell party was a big success. In case you didn't see the cars parked all up and down Old Coach Road, well, the Foxes are moving to Ohio, and this was their "last waltz." It was a great time: Kevin Fox did the jitterbug, and everyone enjoyed the food and cocktails.

Hingham's Yankee Skimmer back in operation

Senator McKinnon announced that the high-speed commuter boat, the "Yankee Skimmer" was back in service carrying commuters from Hingham-to-Boston as of Monday.

Senator McKinnon said, "The boat is fully overhauled, repaired and refurbished and will provide reliable, high-speed service and comfortable facilities for commuters."

Senator McKinnon, who has been instrumental in obtaining state support for the commuter boat, worked hard for approval of the current fiscal 1981 budget appropriation for the commuter service and for passage of deficiency monies to repair and refurbish the "Yankee Skimmer" and maintain the conventional service.

The funding will enable the Department of Transportation to maintain the current level of service and make improvements.

The Hingham-to-Boston and return boat schedule will be as follows:

Mornings from Hingham Shipyard: Yankee Skimmer to Aquarium, 6:15 a.m., 7:15 a.m., 8:15 a.m., 9:15 a.m.

Freedom to Rowes Wharf, 7:20 a.m.

Evenings: Yankee Skimmer from Aquarium, 4:15 p.m., 5:15 p.m., 6:15 p.m.

Freedom from Rowes Wharf, 5:20 p.m.

A one-way ticket will cost $1.75, and monthly tickets and reserved seats are available. A ten-ride booklet costs $15.

The high-speed, air-cushioned "Yankee Skimmer" carries commuters to or from Boston in twenty minutes.

Skinny Laugelle has a bowl-full of puppies at the dump...they may have started from "trashy" beginnings, but it's obvious they have a lot of pedigree! [Derr photo]

Dump puppies need good homes pronto!

"Six wild dogs are here at the dump all the time. They live in the woods all year long. This is the third litter this particular dog has had...last year a neighbor took care of her pups. This year I found her litter in the woods...about a quarter of a mile away under an old pine tree. She (the bitch) finally came back...and she's been feeding the pups for the past two days." — Skinny Laugelle, sanitary landfill manager.

The pups (there are eight of them) are all black, 75 per cent Labrador retriever, and they're up for adoption. Greg McCarthy is helping to find homes for them. By publication date, a few, if not all of the puppies, should be old enough to leave the litter.

Skinny said he's depressed about what he describes as a growing problem...too many dogs running wild at the dump. In addition to the wild dogs, an average of 10-12 "pets" have made the dump their feeding ground. Eventually he said the wild dogs will have to be shot. They're multiplying too quickly. Most of the dogs are friendly...but one of these days one's going to bite someone, somewhere...and the growing problem will have to be dealt with.

A car to fit at last

By Lois Martin

Applications are now being accepted for the first annual old broad small car rally. One oughtn't to confuse this event with the small broad old car rally.

Isn't it wonderful to reach the stage when you earnestly avoid buying a family car. Bless all the little children. But when they make a determined effort to leave our homes we retaliate by buying cars into which they don't fit anymore. That's what's happened to me and a lot of my friends.

As our cars have been rusting, breaking down and refusing to pass inspection, we've been thinking about replacing the old family tanks with something smaller, leaner, racier.

PATCHES

I've always maintained that life's made up of ages and stages. And I'm here to tell you I'm in the racy car stage. And so are many other women. We've opted to replace family vehicles with one that only we can drive.

And in most cases we picked it out ourselves. Buying a car is something men of the family have always tended to. We've asked meekly about the color but we made no reference to the carburetor, the hub caps or the cubic inches of the engine.

So it was tough car shopping from a foundation of ignorance. Not that it stopped me, mind you, it only slowed me down. I'd harbored the notion of a sassy Citation. They're cute, and well-spoken of by consumer journals. But when I shopped I judged the car by the salesman. Thus when a classmate of a person who left my home because he was 22 and wanted a job in California charged out of the car dealer's, I knew right off the bat that I'd like the young man's cars.

Sure enough, he had these smart looking little cars and a nice manner in presenting them. But I decided it would be savvy of me to shop around. The next day I hit all the lots. It took a while to intercept the eye contact from the salesman to my husband.

In the past I've only murmured opinions about cars. This time I was going to ask pertinent questions and impress salesmen with my vehicle acumen. But my husband, accomplished at car dealings, was constrained to coach me between car dealerships as to the proper way to get the best buy, ascertain my warranty, negotiate on my Rusty Jones.

We were one whole wearing day touring the car lots. Finally we wheezed back into the one where the classmate was in charge of selling little cars to old broads. And there I found a Monza, which I dubbed 'Momza.' After sashaying between the white one, the silver one and the blue one, I chose the silver one with red interior and then changed my mind three days later for the blue.

And I am tickled to death with it. It's got a sports mirror, spokes on the hub caps. It is just right for my age group. No one who weighs more than 35 pounds can fit in the back seat. It holds only three bags of groceries which must be laid flat in the tiny trunk. It has AM radio and I couldn't afford the FM. And I knew it was made for me when I turned it on already set at WHDH.

True, there were other things I couldn't spring for, like the sun roof, and the many little dials and stereos that would be on the dash. But I love it. This is the first car I've had in which I can control the traffic.

Now I know a woman with a little light blue Mustang, one mother with a police colored Citation, another with a racy black Corvette. True none of us prefers the raised rear effect or the multi mufflered sound effects. But on the road we are an element to be reckoned with.

It wouldn't surprise me a bit if we were asked to take part in some movie chase scenes. Women ordinarily haven't played those dangerous roles, at least in movies other than Annie Oakley type films. But now we're getting to it, this four on the floor mentality which besets mothers who've driven everyone in town everywhere for 20 years.

Plans for the rally are well under way, time and place to be announced. Thus far we have the names of several drivers, the brand and color of their cars. You'll know us when you see us revving up for the competition. We holler 'guzzler' at the big cars. We may be too old to burn rubber, but we're just getting good at the wheelies and each of has a nervous looking husband on the passenger side and a large, sensible purse strapped to the luggage rack.

Delinquents

be necessary to place an impervious base over the entire "lower plateau" at the landfill site and to grade in such a manner that leachate would be collected in a holding pond at the east end of the site.

Consultants said a review of the proposal indicated that the cost to the town would be quite high. DEQE verbally advised that capping of the lower plateau and construction of a dike would both be necessary.

However, DEQE never required the same in writing. In brief, Paul Ross, of SEA Consultants, said "This matter has continued for about three years without any objection from the Town because the cost of operation has been much less than it would have been had the plans been altered to indicate leachate collection and treatment."

Neither, claims Ross, has his company ever received a request from the Town to make changes in the plans to conform with the verbal directions received by DEQE.

Ross said he talked with Health Inspector Kevin O'Brien in April, 1978 and was told that the Town was not prepared to expend a substantial amount of money to meet the verbal requirements.

Ross said SEA Consultants feels it has met its contractual obligations to the town. He added that the additional engineering work now being considered by the Town (hydrology study) would be a logical continuation of his company's past services.

A proposal has been submitted to the Cohasset Solid Waste Study Committee, which according to Ross, meets with verbal DEQE approval.

The proposed study would determine, consistent with the Town's budgetary requirements, if the Town sanitary landfill could be upgraded to meet current DEQE regulations and still provide an economical location for solid waste disposal.

DeBassio

and reporters hear they must cull from the information presented, before there is a story.

Any new man taking over from another formerly retired, or replaced man, has difficulty in responding to necessary pre-interview questions. He didn't wish to insult the former man...but he does have his own ideas...he's anxious to meet with the men and hear their ideas. That doesn't mean he's dumping on the former chief...who in his own way, had the Cohasset Department and the Town pretty well under control. But he'll do things differently, after talking with the men. And he's already talked with a few of the men, and reviewed the physical plant.

I told him this town's pretty 'cheap.' Until last week the selectmen weren't overly concerned about keeping the police department and the cells clean...in spite of several inspections which condemned the general plant. He said that's something he would certainly want to keep on top of. I went even further. I said I couldn't honestly state whether the selectmen just didn't care, or now retired Police Chief Randy Feola just stopped fighting for more money. But I thought it was needed. Because last year when I assumed this job as community editor I noticed the deplorable condition the police cruisers were in...with ball-bearing tires, etc. The men could have legally refused to ride those cars. They didn't refuse.

Can a new man change all that? Chief DeBassio said he has two priorities: "Most of my responsibilities are to the town. But I see the position as two responsibilities: to the town; and as an obligation to the officers, their resources, equipment...the tools they need to do the job safely. I'm looking out for both."

Chief DeBassio will also expect to have input into new police candidates. "I would expect that my department, or somebody I would assign from my department, would have input.

And I hope I would have a recommendation. Presently there are two agencies. A list of officers from Civil Service has been obtained, and now it's up to the town to do the checking: health, physicals, psychological examinations, personal habits. The police department should be a part of this process. Civil Service tests the candidates, but they no longer certify those candidates.

"In Cohasset people apparently deal from a permanent, intermittent list. I have some prior experience with this. But beyond being on a permanent, intermittent list, there are other things which will apply. I would like to see the police department be the recommending department. I will encourage that attitude in this town.

"I went into the station last week...for a couple of days. The men have ideas...they seem anxious to impart those ideas...many of which I think we can (as a team) implement."

Charlie Chan moustaches will be discouraged, perhaps eventually outlawed in Cohasset. But Chief DeBassio plans to remain "cool" about individual preferences. He feels he may institute a uniform standard code. "I intend to improve everything a little...but not dramatically. And I fully intend to use a lot of school resources...printing facilities at the school, woodworking" (perhaps for some new office furniture), and he plans to redesign the office somewhat. He'll have officers help in a suitable survey of the area in general.

He may also institute a department detective..."If there is shown to be sufficient work-load for a detective, I would document it and present it as an argument in favor." Presently, the Brockton Police Chief is not in Civil Service and Chief DeBassio knows what the presumed conflict brings forth. "There are two perspectives. The selectmen are looking at an obstacle...and it (CS) is an obstacle.

"But a line officer is required to involve himself with investigations (which upset the public). I would have to take a position on Civil Service. There are arguments against Civil Service...as an administrator, maybe I can evaluate some of those frustrations...perhaps I can assume some of those frustrations, and reduce them for the selectmen."

Selectmen have given Chief DeBassio full reign, they've given him only one priority: fill two vacancies. "I'm anxious to be able to go in and look at the full department." He's not against using civilians to answer the phones...I told him how the advisory committee recommended a switchboard arrangement between the fire and police departments. He said, "The station still has to be manned at some level. I would expect within a month or two months there would be some recommended changes. I've talked to some of the offices...they're anxious to see some changes made."

The shooting range (presently at Deer Hill School) will have to be dealt with. Chief DeBassio will want officers to qualify..."I don't like officers carrying their own guns." He will want arms and ammunition to be issued from the police department. "If they carry arms off duty they will have to meet basic requirements. I have a healthy respect for firearms."

(ED.'S NOTE: DeBassio presently supervises 50 officers in the Brockton Department. He has an MS from Northeastern in administration and two years of graduate school. He has taken eight professional courses at the FBI National Academy.

He is a Navy veteran (1948-52) having achieved the rank of QM3. He is past president of numerous professional organizations and a teacher of criminal justice at three colleges, with special interest in drug abuse.

While a member of the Brockton Department, he has served as detective, sergeant, commander of the narcotics and anti-crime units. He has six years of supervisory experience.

DeBassio serves on the Mayor's advisory commission on drugs, the State Board of Mental Health, and he is a director of the American Red Cross. He is past president of the Brockton MPA, Brockton Police Relief Association, Plymouth County Narcotics Association and was founder of the Massachusetts Narcotics Association.

In 1970 he received the community service award from the Brockton Jaycees. In 1974 he received a special enforcement citation for having seized two million dollars worth of hard drugs, and he has been the recipient of the outstanding service award from the Massachusetts Narcotics Association and other awards.

His hobbies are travel, golf, target shooting, bowling and camping.

South Shore Art Center open house Sept. 14

Fall and Winter classes at the South Shore Art Center will be introduced at a gala Open House at the Center on 103 Ripley Road, Cohasset, Sunday, Sept. 14 from 4 to 6 p.m.

A painting demonstration will start at 4, student work from the summer session will be on exhibit and Fall and Winter teachers will be available to discuss classes with prospective students.

The open house will be followed by the Annual Dinner Meeting — a pot-luck affair open to all by reservation! Telephone 383-9548 to receive a printed schedule or make a supper reservation.

This year the Center is scheduling classes for both eight and 16 week periods with the Fall term beginning Sept. 22 and the Winter Term beginning December 1.

College credit through Massachusetts College of Art Continuing Education will be offered for Kohlberg's four Saturday Workshops in Painting (outdoors) in late September; for Lanza's Art Anatomy, Osterman's Painting (morning) Tandy's Painting (evening).

Tours of Boston galleries and museums led by Louise Kalish have been expanded to 10 tours beginning in September and ending in June.

Special workshops feature a one and one-half Sculpture Workshop with Ruth Mordecai-Slavet with a full day in the Center studio (supplies included) and a half day at the Artist's studio in Boston. Avery's popular Intensive Watercolor Workshop will meet daily for one week. Farbush will direct both a two-day and a one-day Saturday workshop in pen and ink drawing. Bell will again offer a weekly workshop in Calligraphy.

Meeting once a week for two 8-week terms will be: Oriental Brush Painting with Orr, Basic Drawing with Moore, Pastel Portraiture with Pratt, Portrait Painting with Micarelli, Watercolor with Patrick, Experimental Workshop with Burbank, Creative Drawing and Painting with Kalish.

The Photography classes are in a new format. Wasko will teach a beginning Photography class in darkroom basics on an intensive schedule followed by Intermediate Photography featuring specialized techniques and projects.

Gail Bryan will hold a Photography Seminar for all levels using any equipment with instruction focused on expanding visual awareness in picture-taking. Peter Anderson will hold two field trip/critique workshops on Fall and Winter weekends.

Classes for children ages 7 to 12 are the Art Workshop (drawing & painting) and Children's Clay. These are taught by George Hancin and Syma Komarin. A special teen class in Calligraphy will be taught by Brundage on Saturdays.

Enrollments may be made in person or by mail for this Art adventure at the Center!

Community Garden Club holds farmers' market

Plans for the bi-annual Farmers Market of the Community Garden Club of Cohasset are well underway. For many years this club has been presenting a most exciting fall event, and this year's endeavor promises to be bigger and better than ever with 100% participation from the 225 Club members expected.

The schedule is: Oct. 3, Friday — 9 a.m.-1 p.m., receiving Harvest Festival entrees; 3-5 p.m., judging; 6-8 p.m., preview party for all club members and exhibitors.

All Harvest Festival events will take place at the Unitarian Parish House.

Oct. 4, Saturday — 10 a.m.-3 p.m., Farmers Market at Town Hall; 10 a.m.-3 p.m., Harvest Festival exhibits open to public; 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m., delicious homemade luncheon at the Congregational Church.

The Harvest Festival exhibits will consist of vegetables, flowers, crafts and food grown or made by the exhibition. Everything from carrots and tomatoes to needlepoint, quilts, jewelry, breads, jams, jellies, etc. will all be judged.

This is the first time anything of this nature has been presented by the Club and while it is all in the name of fun and good time, there will be expert judges and rules set forth by the Dept. of Agriculture and Federation of Garden Clubs will apply.

The Harvest Festival exhibit chairman is Mrs. Ralph Farrell assisted by Mrs. Robert Raffa, Mrs. Wm. Broeffle and Mrs. Eric Pearson of Cohasset.

The preview party chairman is Mrs. John Steele of Kingston.

The Farmers Market will have many exciting booths. Dried materials, glycerined materials and dried arrangements are being collected and supervised by Mrs. James Grinnell, Mrs. Henry De F. Chapin, Mrs. John O'Toole and Mrs. Stephen Bobo.

The Boutique will be managed by Mrs. John Eaton and Mrs. David Knowles with Mrs. Merritt Swain assisting. A beautiful quilt has been appliqued by Mrs. Knowles and Mrs. Eaton and many others, and it will be raffled off in conjunction with the Farmers Market at the October Garden Club meeting.

from the kitchen

By Joan Pinkham

We've heard a multitude of campaign promises lately, but the candidate who would get my vote would abolish Labor Day. As summer cottages close their shutters and school doors swing wide, our season comes to an abrupt halt and it's no cause for celebration. We need only deserted beaches, seas bereft of sailboats and fading blossoms in the garden to remind us that summer is drawing to a close. But, seeing the holiday weekend is once again upon us, let's sooth our spirits with a feast of Joan Bizzozero's

EGGPLANT PARMESAN

2 large eggplant
1/4 c. flour
2 eggs, slightly beaten
2 c. seasoned breadcrumbs
1/2 c. salad oil
2 8-oz. cans tomato sauce
1/4 tsp. dried oregano
1/4 tsp. basil
salt to taste
3/4 lb. mozzarella cheese, sliced or shredded
Parmesan cheese

Peel eggplant, cut into 1/2" slices. Dip in flour, then eggs, then bread crumbs. Heat 1/4 c. oil in large skillet. Brown eggplant over medium heat on both sides, adding oil as needed. Drain eggplant on paper towels. Place in a single layer in large baking dish. Combine tomatoe sauce, salt, oregano, pepper and basil. Pour over eggplant. Arrange cheese on top so that eggplant is almost covered, sprinkle with parmesan. Cover with foil. Bake in 400 degree oven about 20 min., or until bubbly and cheese is melted. If you want to brown cheese slightly, remove foil for a few minutes, but watch carefully that cheese doesn't burn. Serves 8.

Candidates must yearn for home-cooked foods as they tour the chicken, peas and mashed potato circuit. Having to smile while choking down another lukewarm meal is a good test of their endurance. Who would trade that hectic schedule for some elegant home-cooked food prepared by our "Hidden Hostesses," Sue Sack and Jan Fossella? Here is one of their dishes featured in their Serendipity Catering Service. You might give them a call if you are entertaining over the holiday. It serves six to eight.

EASY SEA FOOD CURRY

1 1/2 c. chopped green pepper
1 c. chopped onion
1 stick butter
1 1/2 pts. sour cream
1 1/2 lb. shrimp [slightly undercooked]
1 1/1 lb. frozen crab, or 2 large cans and/or 1 1/2 lb. lobster meat, clams, oysters, scallops, or white fish
Salt, pepper and garlic powder to taste
1 T curry powder, more if you like a strong curry

Saute onions and peppers in butter. When soft, add salt, pepper, garlic. Add sour cream and curry. Stir well. Add fish and cook until heated through on low heat. Serve with plain white rice.

Listening to the pros and cons of election issues, we learn (if nothing else), that there's good and bad to everything. One of the good things about the onset of September is that it's the start of the season when fresh oysters come on the market here in the north. Charles Flanders was in the restaurant business for over fifty years in Boston and New York and writes: "There are as many versions of Oysters Rockefeller as there are for the home-made bread your grandmother used to make. This recipe was given me by one of Antoine's former Creole cooks who was working at the Roosevelt Hotel in New Orleans for an old friend of mine, Roger Creto, chef, with whom I worked later in New York City. Here is what he believes is the original

ANTOINE'S OYSTERS, ROCKEFELLER, 1940

24 large oysters in shell
1 c. tightly packed parsley leaves
4 shallots, or 1 small onion
1 c. water
1/2 tsp. salt
1 T anchovy paste
1/2 c. toasted bread crumbs
Rock salt
1 c. tightly packed spinach leaves
1 T anissed
1/4 tsp. Tabasco sauce
1/2 tsp. ground thyme
1 c. butter

Put parsley, spinach and shallots through a food chopper. Simmer anissed in water for approx. 10 min. Strain out the seed. Add ground vegetables to anissed-flavored liquid. Simmer, covered for 8 to 10 min. Season with Tabasco sauce, salt, thyme and anchovy paste. Add butter and bread crumbs. If sauce is too thick to spread easily, thin it with a little of the oyster liquor saved from opening the oysters. Open oysters with an oyster knife, or have your fish market do it for you. Place oysters in a bed of rock salt in a shallow baking dish. Bake in preheated 350 oven for 5 to 6 min., or broil them for 5 min., until edges curl. Spread each oyster with a spoon of the prepared sauce and return to broiler for approx. 5 min. more. Makes 4 servings.

Angler's Corner

By Lindy Blaisdell

No other species of saltwater fish is sought by Bay-State anglers with more determination than the striped bass.

Stripers are found in our coastal waters from May to November. They attract fishermen from all over the state and create almost $20 million in revenue to marinas, gas stations, hotel owners, restaurants and tackle shops.

Their popularity is due in part to their coast line accessibility. They are caught from the beach as well as in estuaries and rivers. Available for six months, the striper is not only a popular game fish but a favorite on the table. Most bass weigh under 40 pounds but there is always a chance to catch one at 75 or even 100 pounds.

Despite it's popularity little is known or understood about its lifestyle. Striper buffs seem to take it for granted the bass will show up at or around a certain date at a usual place. This has been true for years. Now fewer year classes are showing up. This was the first summer in many we had a lot of rats (small stripers) in the river (North).

Like blues, weakfish, cod, etc., stripers live in a cycle. Let's hope we've seen the ebb and better years are coming.

Biologists are learning more and more almost daily. Stripers were found land-locked when Lake Marion (South Carolina) was dammed. These fish not only survived in their new fresh water environment but grew to over 50 pounds and also reproduced. Stripers are now stocked in many fresh water impoundments and doing well.

NEW ORGANIZATION

A new group of dedicated Fishermen have formed the new American Sportfishing Federation. It hopes to unite all of the estimated 33 million anglers across the country into one group. The Federation now includes many fly and bass fishing clubs as well as professional organizations. For further information write P.O. Box 246, Chicago, Ill. 60690.

TUNA

The bluefin tuna catch rate was upped from one per boat to two. This limit will remain in effect until at least Sept. 7.

ACTION

A few cool days has triggered a feeding frenzy among large mouth bass. Reports of lots of small and medium-sized fish being caught. Whitman's Pond in Weymouth, Chandler Pond in Duxbury, and Jacob's Pond in Norwell were a few mentioned.

TROUT

Trout are still deep but will come into 30' of water to feed at night. Trout fishing in general is slow but should pick up in a few weeks.

Drama Club to launch 60th season at Kimballs

Because of the dazzling reception given last year's kick-off party, President Harry Heineman has elected to repeat its successful format and launch the Cohasset Dramatic Club's sixtieth season from Kimballs-by-the-Sea on Saturday, Sept. 13.

Beginning at 7 p.m., an open bar, dinner and featured entertainment will highlight the evening. Members, their friends and those interested in the organization are cordially welcome.

For reservations, call: Flo Kelley — 383-9099.

Still dynamic after sixty consecutive years, the Cohasset Dramatic Club stands as one of the oldest living theatre groups in the United States remaining in continuous operation. Its members are proud of that distinction. And justly so!

To celebrate this milestone in the Club's history, three outstanding plays have been selected for presentation during the 1980-1981 season, along with informal play-readings and Boston theatre parties scheduled throughout the year.

The fall and first show, Larry Belbert's outrageous comedy, SLY FOX, directed by the talented Harry Heineman, is sure to send audiences rolling in the aisles. The play is a jewel: its dialogue sparkles and the foolish antics of its 13 men and 2 women cast are fast-paced and hilarious.

Set for production on October 30, 31 and November 1, the tryouts will be held on Sunday, Sept. 7, at the Cohasset Town Hall from 2-5 p.m. and again on Sunday, Sept. 14 at the Cohasset Town Hall from 2-5 p.m. Playbooks are available now at the Cohasset Public Library.

For the winter (February) production, the Club has enticed Judy Holmes (creator, producer and director) away from her highly-touted Elizabethan Companie of Wayts and Players to direct Anton Chekhov's classic, UNCLE VANYA. A beautiful play in the hands of a wonderful director!

And, in the spring (May), Wayne Meissner, stellar member of the Club, will direct NIGHT MUST FALL, the suspense-charged melodrama written by Emlyn Williams, and guaranteed to perch audiences on the edge of their chairs.

NOTE: both members of the Club and its well-initiated audiences, alike, will be heartened when they recall that last year the Town of Cohasset voted to replace the chairs in the Town Hall auditorium.

Hallelujah!

It's Happening

(Publicity Chairmen: it's important that you get your dates, even if pertinent information and details are to follow, in to the It's Happening Columnist as soon as you know your date! This will hopefully prevent groups from planning events on the same dates...and allow all residents to attend/support/boost everything they possibly can. Thank you).

South Shore group vows to fight Logan noise

By Nancy Burns

Vowing to continue fighting, a crowd of Hull, Scituate, Cohasset and Hingham residents protested increased noise on the South Shore from the new over-the-ocean route last Saturday in Hull.

A crowd of close to 200, including numerous children with slogan decorated signs listened as one speaker after another charged MassPort and the FAA with lying about the impact from the over-the-ocean route known as alternative six. Often the tone and delivery from the podium resembled the ferver of an old-fashioned religious revival meeting.

Many in the crowd expressed surprise there weren't more people — especially since the Hull Noise Coalition had sent a car with loudspeaker throughout town urging people to turnout and say "No." Slated to start at 4 p.m. the 50 or so present at the time were asked to gather en mass in the center of the field to encourage motorists to stop.

Calling the noise intolerable Pam Wolfe of Hull urged everyone to tell MassPort, the FAA and state and federal officials the South Shore won't be a "dumping ground for Logan's noise." She said over 5,000 signatures in protest had been gathered in Hull.

Senator Allan McKinnon, D-Weymouth, urged those present to write to Gov. Edward King asking for relief. McKinnon noted King's good connections with Pres. Carter and the FAA. "Since King will need your votes in two years he's a number one candidate for political pressure."

The movement started in Hull but has now spread to Scituate, Cohasset and Hingham, said Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, who contended there are now enough numbers to exert political pressure to get changes made.

Former Scituate Selectman Patsy Proctor presented copies of petitions circulated in Scituate by Selectmen the last week-and-a-half with 1,328 signatures. She noted the low-key approach by Selectmen with the petitions only located in three stores, little publicity, and locations which meant signers had to seek out the petitions.

The extra five to six million gallons of fuel used on alternative six could heat more than all of the houses in Hull for a whole year, said Proctor. "Another way of looking at it is that we're asked to keep our houses miserably cold all winter so we can have planes overhead and make us miserable all summer."

Ann Hershfang who's served on the MassPort Board of Directors for six years offered a moderate view in a sea of strident angry speakers.

Ms. Hershfang told the crowd she could only agree with previous speakers' views about the noise impact on Hull. As an eight year summer resident in the coastal community she has noticed a significant increase in airplane noise this summer. "From my point of view it looks as if they decided to put half of

School opens Thursday enrollment's leveling off

There won't be an official head-count until Thursday morning...when Cohasset Public schools open for the 1980-91 session. But all indications are that the total school population is levelling off.

School Officials had projected an overall 4 per cent decrease in the student population. But acting School Supt. John Raftery said Tuesday it looks that the CHS population will remain at its 1,623 figure of last year.

Osgood School population is hovering around 296, down from last year's 300. "We had projected a student population of 280, so we're up a little," Creamer said. Deer Hill Principal Ken Ekberg couldn't be reached before press deadline, but student population at Deer Hill is expected to go up this year.

Supt Crowell starts Sept. 29

Eugene Crowell, new Cohasset School Superintendent, signed a three-year, $38,000 per year contract with the Cohasset School Committee last Thursday.

Crowell will officially begin his new duties in Cohasset Monday, September 29. His three-year contract will run from September 29, 1980 through September 18, 1983. Crowell is currently superintendent of schools in Danvers.

The Committee reserved the right to adjust Crowell's annual salary, but not to reduce it below the $38,000 figure.

The contract also stipulates the following fringe benefits: payment of 50 per cent of the Blue Cross/Blue Shield medical insurance protection with extended benefits coverage; term life insurance in the face value of $2,000; and $1,200 annually as compensation for interstate transportation and $1,000 annually for interstate travel and conferences required in the performance of his official duties.

In addition, Crowell will receive 25 working days vacation, exclusive of legal holidays; 18 days sick leave annually :earned sick leave shall be cumulative to a maximum of 74 days. Crowell will be credited with 20 sick days at the commencement of his contract.

Crowell, per contract, agreed to have a comprehensive medical examination annually and a statement certifying to his physical competency. The Committee will underwrite the cost of such examination provided it does not exceed $150 per annum, unless specifically approved.

The Committee stated, per contract, that it would devote at least one meeting annually to a discussion of the working relationship between the superintendent and the Committee, and at that meeting determine the superintendent's performance objectives for the ensuing year.

It further agreed to refer to the superintendent, in writing, individually or collectively, any and all

Gill selected as health coordinator/ teacher for schools

By Tanna Kasperowicz

Editorially, the health curriculum in Cohasset Public Schools is on the verge of evolving. Last week the School Committee voted to hire Michael Gill, of Scituate, to help us to formulate what we wish our children to know about our bodies, ourselves.

Gill's a graduate of Boston State College with a BS in physical education and biology (1976). He received his MA in health education from Bridgewater, and last year he served as coordinator of the health program, K-8, in Canton. He has also taught biology in Scituate Public Schools, and he's no stranger to Cohasset — having served as a substitute teacher "in everything" and as an assistant track coach. It just so happens CHS is also looking for coaches this year. This summer Gill was the superintendent of lifeguards in Scituate.

Hired at a starting salary of $13,775, Gill will start off the year by working closely with a yet-to-be-appointed health advisory committee, which will include (health) screening committee chairman Nancy Clapp and several others who have lent their expertise to the endeavor over the past year.

Although Gill will teach some health courses himself, his larger duty will be to implement a health curriculum throughout the system, whereby each

Cohasset's week

McKinnon

Senator Allan McKinnon (D-Norfolk and Plymouth), or a member of his staff, will be available to speak to Cohasset constituents Wednesday, September 17, at 8 p.m. at Town Hall.

Suit asked

Lt. Governor Tom O'Neill recently asked state Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti to file suit against the U.S. Census Bureau.

The suit would ask the Courts to prevent the Census Bureau from closing its Boston office until it has heard and acted on all appeals by Massachusetts cities and towns. It would also prevent Census officials from filing their final reports in Washington until all local appeals have been completed.

"The Bureau projects a substantial population loss in our state," said O'Neill in a letter to the attorney general.

"This alleged population decrease will cost us a Congressional seat and billions of dollars in federal aid."

O'Neill said he is convinced that faulty procedures and inadequate methodolgy, and not emigration from Massachusetts, are responsible for Census counts that show the state with far fewer residents than it had five years ago.

"Given the gravity of the situation and the unresponsiveness of the Bureau to appeals to remedy its practices, I request that your office initiate legal action on behalf of the Commonwealth against the Bureau," Lt. Gov. O'Neill said in his letter to Bellotti.

The lieutenant governor noted that similar suits have been filed in New York and Detroit and that some Massachusetts communities are considering filing their own suits.

More than 10 percent of the Commonwealth's cities and towns have informed O'Neill they have appealed preliminary Census Bureau figures for their communities.

The 1975 state census and the 1977 federal census estimate placed the Massachusetts population at just over 5.7 million people. Preliminary federal figures for seven of the state's largest cities show a loss since 1975 of more than 200,000 in those communities.

Among those communities that have notified O'Neill that they have appealed Census figures as being too low are: Arlington; Belmont; Boston; Cambridge; Dedham; Harwich; Longmeadow; Somerville; Watertown and Westwood.

"Loss of a Congressional seat will cost us clout in Washington," said O'Neill; "but this apparently large undercount of our population will cost us billions of dollars in Massachusetts."

Chill it

A resident of South Main Street complained last week kids were throwing not empty beer bottles on her lawn, but capped, full bottles of Heiniken Beer on her lawn. The Mariner reporter said, "So why complain? Put them into your refrigerator." So she did.

Change in date

Please note change of Open House date for Police Chief John DeBassio in this week's It's Happening Column. The open house has been rescheduled for Sunday, September 14 from 3-7 p.m. at Hugo's Lighthouse.

Patrolman David Pomarico said Sunday that Town Counsel had ruled it would be against the zoning bylaws to hold the open house at Kimball's, as the result of a recent board of appeals decision on the same (insufficient parking).

Auction

Autographed Red Sox baseballs were going for $21, $27.50...New England Tea Men game jerseys went for $24, $25 and over $30...Burt Pratt got one for his daughter and Clark Chatterton got one for himself.

Dinner with Liberace at Kimball's (plus Limousine service to and from the Liberace show at the South Shore Music Circus) went to a Randolph couple for just over $300.

And a collection of four commemorative stamps bound in a folder signed by former president Gerald Ford got auctioned off for $102.50. Officer Randolph Feola, Jr. got the Tom Jones shirt, which he threatens to wear as part of his police uniform. We'll see.

The Cohasset Historical Society, which sponsored the event, made just under $3,000 on the auction...and all of the proceeds will go towards the renovation of the Lothrop House, which will be on the League of Women Voters' Annual House Tour this year for the first time.

Alert

Hang-up phone calls, and residents have been complaining to the police department about loads of them, could man a thief is checking to see if you're home. There have been a rash of B&E's in several neighborhoods over the past week. One victim rightly advises that if you have expensive jewelry, it is not insured under your homeowner's policy. You must take out separate insurance on valuable jewelry. However, a rider can be taken out on your present policy to cover these additional items. But the appraisals must be done at your own expense.

Mariner sale

Special price, August 28 through September 25: $6 (reg. $9) for a new, in-town subscription. During this period, the Mariner will donate $2 to the Cohasset Historical Society for every new in-town subscription solf. A new two-year ($12) subscription, regularly $18, will net the Society a $4 profit.

Make your check payable to The Cohasset Historical Society and mail to Mrs. Carroll Pratt, 31 North Main Street, Cohasset 02025. Call her at 383-1672 for more information. The Society will use the proceeds to help complete restorations on the Lothrop House on Summer Street.

Car inspection

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Richard E. McLaughlin says the six-week autumn semi-annual motor vehicle inspection, which starts Sept. 1 and runs through Wednesday, Oct. 15, will be a rigorous one for the owners of the 3½ million registered motor vehicles and motorcycles.

"I caution the owners to get their vehicles to one of the 4,200 Registry approved state inspection stations as soon as possible," Registrar McLaughlin said.

McLaughlin said that after the Spring inspection period ended, nearly 2,000 citations were issued to motorists who had failed to obey the law.

The fall sticker, blue in color, costs $2 with a charge of 50 cents for trailers. Those not passing will be marked with a rejection sticker.

McLaughlin also urges operators to perform a "personal inspection" prior to driving to a Registry approved station.

"Turn on all the lights, walk around the car, make sure all bulbs are working. Have someone stand to one side and check the brake lights. Set the hand brake and test it yourself. You may be able to catch minor breakdowns in equipment before arriving at the station and being rejected," McLaughlin added.

Inspection includes brakes, lights, horn, exhaust system, steering, windshield and wipers, number plates, rear window, tires, fenders, bumpers, external sheet-metal and the factory installed pollution control system. Inspection of reflectors, chock blocks and splash guards is included on trucks.

Motor vehicle owners are warned the vehicle must have no signs or decals on either the front or rear window except the inspection sticker itself, which must be affixed to the lower right corner of the windshield, whether the vehicle is right or left hand drive. Also, no ornaments may hang from the inside rear view mirror.

Dancing, braces, piano lessons still important

By Karin Bartow

Ask any adult if they've taken piano lessons and chances are, four out of five will say yes. Weekly instruction at the keyboard was as fundamental to growing up as dancing classes and braces. Apparently, it still is.

The start of the school year means the renewal of artistic as well as other pursuits. The number of Cohasset children who will sit down at the piano for weekly lessons, while not as large a group as their parents, is coming up in numbers from a slump a few years ago.

We found that Cohasset has seven piano teachers who are actively (some more than others) engaged in student lessons. Four have openings or are available to teach. The other three are not now taking new students: one is a beginning teacher, one has a full enrollment and one is more or less trying to retire.

All of them have some fundamental things in common. Most were strongly influenced by parental musicianship. They all had an unalterable desire to master the piano and to be involved in music from an early age. And they all have been pursuing their studies since childhood. Their schooling, lessons and experience however, are quite different and all very interesting.

Jean Birmann is well known to Cohasset young people since she regularly substitutes for music as well as general subjects in the schools. "My thing is music," she says.

A native Britisher, she was raised in Ireland and graduated from Dublin University. Following that, she earned both an Associate of the Royal College of Music (London) in Violin Teaching and a Licentiate of the Royal Academy of Music (London) for piano performance.

As a member of the music staff for eight years at the Bedales School in Hampshire, England, Mrs. Birmann taught piano, instructed music classes and performed in chamber groups as part of her duties.

She also taught for the Greater Montreal School Board as a music specialist. In addition to substituting in Cohasset, she has also worked in Scituate, Abington, Norwell and Hingham; she has assisted with high school musical productions here as well as at Notre Dame Academy and used to accompany the Pro Arte Singers.

Mrs. Birmann especially enjoys working with small ensembles and with young students. She likes to rehearse, coach, accompany and assist with theory in paino and will teach beginning violin students.

Charlie Watson says he's always played piano! He still does and he derives great satisfaction from teaching youngsters. He doesn't have room in his present living quarters for his own piano so he goes out to his students' homes.

Charlie grew up on music. His dad was a trumpeter who played in John Philip Sousa's band. Charlie earned a degree from Harvard University in history and economics because you weren't allowed to major in things like music. But the two music courses he took while in Cambridge made up for that. He studied with Walter Piston, "the greatest theory and harmony teacher," he states.

He studied with other great teachers from Juliard and the New England Conservatory; played with Tommy Dorsey, Ruby Newman and other society bands; and performed, among many places, at the Windsor House in Duxbury for six years. A master of Bach, Mozart, Schumann and jazz!

"Teaching's a pleasure for me," Charlie says and he is proud of the fact that among all the kids he's taught he helped develop eight piano students into successful adult musicians. He likes kids, posesses simpatico for them and is taking new students.

Jill Crafts has been teaching piano since she was a high school student . She's been at it for the five years she's lived in Cohasset and while she's not sure about this year, she'll probably teach again unless something new opens up for her.

She gives one-half hour lessons once a week in her home to youngsters and a few adults, including her father, Dick Seeley. "He was my first student here and he still takes occasionally. It's not that I teach him that much, but if you have someone to play for, you practice," she explains.

Jill already knew a lot about piano when her lessons started at age five. Her dad was the musician in the family who played clarinet and saxophone. She graduated from the University of Michigan and studied at the Bryn Mawr Conservatory of Music in Pennsylvania. She has also taken courses at the South Shore Conservatory of Music, "to keep up my own skills," she says.

In addition to giving lessons, she also occasionally plays at weddings, pot luck suppers and substitutes at the church organ. She's noticed more kids getting back into piano lessons and theorizes that families "staying at home" has been an influence.

Priscilla Daniels has been a piano teacher for 30 years and all 16 that she's lived in Cohasset. Her father was "very musical — he played the saxophone, violin and clarinet and could improvise." She began lessons in the first grade and went on to study at the New England Conservatory of Music.

"The thing that started me was a combination of wanting to be a teacher and wanting to go into music," she says. The two eventually evolved into one career that "has been a nice creative outlet for me, especially when my children were young."

She teaches in her home and has a few openings. Her students range in age from six years old up to sixty. Her individualized instruction is mainly classical (as it is with all seven teachers) emphasizing training in basics and harmony. She holds an informal gathering for her students at Christmas so they can "get the experience of playing for and with each other."

"I've had many, many, many pupils — it would be easier to say who didn't take lessons from me," admits Ruth Hunt. She has taught piano since her graduation from the New England Conservatory of Music in 1932 and during her busiest years here, used to instruct 50 students a week!

She has about a half-dozen students now and since she's trying to retire, she's not taking any new ones.

"My father was a natural musician. He could play any instrument in the band. And he was a violinist," says Mrs. Hunt. She began lessons at the age of seven in New York and when her family moved to Cohasset, she used to go to the Long Studios in Boston to study with Mary Ingram. She attended Lasell Junior College where she studied music and organ.

She is currently the organist at the Marshfield Hills Christian Science Church and has also been organist at the Pope Memorial and Scituate Congregational churches.

In her opinion, Cohasset has more piano teachers now than ever before. "There have never been very many," she says. "Cohasset is growing, but it is still quite small."

Diane Mullen, who will be fourteen in October, is going to take two young piano students on this fall. With three years at the South Shore Conservatory and lessons since age six behind her, she will also have an at-home consultant in her mother (and first piano teacher), Olive Mullen.

She studies ballet, tap and jazz at the Conservatory and says she likes piano and dance about equally. She loves tennis and enjoys skiing in the winter. She is a high honors student.

Although this will be her first experience at teaching piano, her Mom says she "has high standards for herself, is bright and has a nice way about her with younger children." Keep an eye on her!

Olive Mullen started teaching piano in 1958 and has never stopped since. This will be her

MJM wants rock-throwers jailed

Representative Mary Jeanette Murray (R-3rd Plymouth District) recently announced the filing of special legislation designed to halt the rock throwing and vandalism to automobiles in the South Shore areas around Route 3 and throughout the Commonwealth.

Especially hard hit has been the Route 18 and Route 228 intersections. The bill reads in part "Whoever willfully or maliciously throws or causes to be thrown any projectile or object at a moving motor vehicle shall be punished by imprisonment in a jail or house of correction for not less than 6 months.

Mary Jeanette at the time of filing the legislation stated, "The bill is designed to get tough with those who would seek to kill, maim, and injure South Shore commuters who must drive Route 3 every day to get to work.

Rep. Murray who represents Cohasset, Hingham, and Hull said, "The senseless stonings are evil, premeditated, and deserve the strongest possible sentence under the circumstances. I am appalled and fed up, as are thousands of commuters in and around the South Shore, that this type of conduct is continuing. Once the offenders are caught, they will be dealt with harshly and without question. This will act as a deterrent to those who would violate such a law."

Murray concluded, "also in the bill, anyone convicted under these circumstances the sentence imposed upon such person shall not be suspended nor shall any person convicted under this section be eligible for probation, pardon, parole or furlough or receive any deduction from his sentence for good conduct.

Rte change should be made for safety

To the Editor:

I am a Cohasset citizen extremely interested in helping solve the noise problem created by the new Runway 22R (Alternate 6) air route. Currently, noise created by turbo-jets over Hull, Cohasset and Scituate is constant from 7 a.m. to 11:30 p.m.

As a year round resident, I feel we might as well be living close to the airport. We pay high taxes and endure a long commute into Boston, in order to enjoy a rural atmosphere.

People from every community use the airport. Therefore the noise must be shared. Somewhere there is a just balance in safety, noise and pollution between all communities.

Letters

The Alternate Route 6 is reported to reduce air safety; a concern of Bill Becker and pilot Steve Palmer. Furthermore, Alternate 6 uses excessive fule, instead of conserving it.

If extra fuel is now being used, perhaps the best solution would be to use the fuel directing planes farther out to sea. The Citizens Advisory Committee on Noise Abatement has made a good start in trying to promote a plan for noise distribution.

MassPort lends a sympathetic ear to concerned citizens. Alternate 6 does not seem to be the answer. Safety reasons alone should be sufficient cause to make a change as soon as possible.

To the Editor:

Do appreciate your printing my letter about trash on Beach. As a self-appointed clean-up person, I did check on the beach the Monday after my letter appeared.

...took my usual four Stop n' Shop bags and would you believe, on the entire beach I picked up only four beer bottles and one soda can. Also noted that the shards of glass were cleaned up at the big rocks parking area.

The same problem (trash) existed in Cohasset Village two years ago, but after many voices were raised the problem was resolved, with the coopera-

Go to jail. . .go directly to jail

Police report for the week: Wednesday, August 27: 3:38 p.m. — Resident re kids throwing rocks at vehicles in area of Beechwood Street.

Should legislation filed by Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray last week pass, the above youngsters (if apprehended) would be confined to jail or a house of correction for not less than six months.

It is hoped that recent news articles, commentary and proposed legislation regarding the Route 3 rock-hurling incidences do not signal a permanent trend in our thinking.

The Murray legislation would require new jails. Or perhaps we could make more room in our jails by freeing newspaper reporters and other persons detained for non-violent crimes. In any case, we're not in favor of the Murray legislation.

We are being told by pollsters this is the "programless" year...the year in which it is predicted voters will go the polls to vote against expensive Democratic programs of yesteryears... which are, damn it, costing us money!

What we would choose over a Republican jail? Probably an equally expensive Democratic program. But even better than that...we'd like to see strongly-supervised "community" probations...run by more than the present 17-member police department (including Chief John DeBassio).

Minimum manning on the police department will allow Chief DeBassio to continue to "chase" crime...but not deal with the prevention of it. More police officers, trained to deal with juveniles, can and do help to deter crime in other communities.

Last Spring Osgood School Principal Jack Creamer told the school committee a surprising number of new Osgood entrants were coming from one-parent families...and families in which both parents worked. He said those variables presented the classroom teacher with a different type of challenge.

We think the juvenile offender, in particular, needs the support of his community. If that support is obtainable largely through paid professionals, sobeit.

Our sociologists, psychologists, even our prison wardens tell us that the confinement of human beings, and especially minors, has not proven to be a pill for what ails us.

We urge Rep. Murray to rethink her legislation.

Putting everybody in jail does not appear to be the answer.

Nicely done. . .and in public, too!

The School Committee and its Chairman, Frank England, should be commended on the way in which it handled the vote on the new school superintendent recently.

It was done in open session, and until the Committee reached Eugene Crowell later that evening, it had no idea whether he would accept the position. But best of all, after the Committee reached a tie vote on the first ballot, it held a brief discussion in which members discussed the men's qualifications in public.

Diana Kornet compromised on the second ballot, giving her vote to Crowell. This was commendable and fine, and she stated publicly she was torn between two of the finalists from the first.

But there may not always be a Diana Kornet on this six-man committee who is willing or able to compromise her/his vote.

Budget time, town meeting time, may produce some of the same 3-3 votes we became so accustomed to last year.

We continue to feel strongly that a six-member committee is asking for trouble...and we are still waiting for those who made campaign promises to do so — to present an article to special or annual town meeting to reduce or increase the number on the committee by one member.

But we're not holding our breath waiting for that to happen.

Volunteers. . .calling all

"Slip in a plug this week that Deer Hill School needs volunteers," Principal Ken Ekberg said last week.

And...CHS needs coaches. Cohasset Swim Team needs new people willing to implement new ideas. Little League needs...Recreation Department needs ...everybody needs...volunteers!

It seems there just aren't enough Connie Parkers, Drexel Gibsons and Tom Myers's and all the rest of you invisible behind-the-scenes volunteers who make every organization "sing," around these days.

You're being missed.

A professional job

When the dust settles, Cohasset town is going to discover it is destined to have a dynamic new force in its midst.

On balance, the Cohasset Historical Society's celebrity and sports auction held over the weekend stands on its historically-grounded feet. It would be a pity if all the effort expended on this event went unnoticed. And it would be even more a shame if their zeal and effort did not hold together to "perform" elsewhere, someday, before an even larger audience.

The Society raised $2,700 for its auction effort... the small group of bidders and collectors in attendance certainly came prepared to buy. Many people picked up some lovely Christmas gifts and collectibles at a tiny sum.

But the effort the Society made for this event...the mind-boggling tagging and recording and the quest made to find famous-name people by Mary and Drexel Gibson, Society President Connie Parker, Burt Pratt and so many others...is the real story here. These people were charged. And their excitement was catching!

We wish them well with their Lothrop House fundraising, and we think they'll pick up quite a few more willing workers as a result of their most recent campaign.

It was fun. We only wish more of you had been there.

Tony Hyde extends thanks to his supporters

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank all those students, parents and administrators who supported me during the past Spring and Summer in demonstrating and speaking on my behalf at school committee meetings and in my quest for a new position in another community.

Over the past three years I have tried to provide a solid and musically educational base for all my students to grow from. It was indeed heartening to see the number of parents and students who spoke on my behalf expressing their gratitude and feelings about the music programs they have been a part of for the past three years.

That expression and display was deeply appreciated and helped ease the pain of the situation for my family and I. I'll always remember the good times and fine young people I've come to know in Cohasset. Thanks for a super effort and I wish I could take you with me; Geech, Teddy, Jon, Renz, Gail, Beth, Cathy, Mike B., Andy, Ann, Jack, Paul, Nancy, Sarah, Beth, Mike L., Jerry, Mike M., Rod and all the rest of the jr/sr high bands and color guard.

I'll be keeping a close watch on you in the future so "GO FOR IT." Thanks seniors for being a part of every musical group I've led at CHS; Steve, Philip, Liza, Alex, Michele, Chris, Duffer, Zobs, Peg, Sue, Heather and Yoanna. May music always be a part of your life.

I would be remiss if I didn't thank those parents who worked so hard for the band and for me in this trying period. In particular the efforts of Mrs. Birmann, Mrs. Fahey, Mrs. Maloney, Mrs. Daniels, Mrs. Laitta, The Trasks, The Kurtz', the Mullens, Mr. McGuire and Mr. Reed, the Durants and all those who supported the band over the past three years.

As I prepare to move on to my next challenge I can thank the efforts, encouragements and recommendations of Mr. Streeter and Dr. Maloney for making it possible.

Starting in September I will assume the responsibilities of Director of Bands and Jazz Ensembles at Millis Jr/Sr High School. I am very much looking forward to the opportunity of working with the state champion jazz ensemble and concert band. Through my experience and exposure while at Cohasset, this position was offered to me.

Good luck to you all in the future.

Yours truly,
Tony Hyde
Former Band Director

tion of the Cohasset Village & Harbor Association and the town, resulting in trash baskets and regular junk pick-ups. Sidewalk sweeping this year has kept the village neat and tidy.

Just goes to prove that citizens voicing their attitudes and writing letters, does work.

I would also like to express gratitude for a good job being done by the police department controlling shop vandalism.

Maybe some of Cohassets' commuting workers could take 15 minutes from their yardwork and express their opinion to local newspapers and shopowners, etc.

Cohasset is one of the finest towns in New England. Let's keep it that way with vigilance, pride and community involvement.

Cohasset horsewomen get national ratings

Liz Conklin, Amy Murphy, and Marley Rabstejnek of Cohasset have achieved national ratings in the United States Pony Club. The "B" testing was conducted in Wakefield, N.H., by Mrs. Anne Baker of Columbus, Ga., a national examiner and chairman of Instruction Council of the U.S. Pony Clubs.

To qualify for the "B" national rating, each candidate must have successfully completed six preceeding levels. In an eight-hour test, the rider presents herself and her horse in proper attire and equipment. She must ride her own horse and different horses on the flat, over fences, and cross country with correct movements and form, critique her performances, and evaluate the horses.

Each candidate is quizzed orally on horse management, which includes conditioning, conformation and lameness, veterinary knowledge, nutrition, use of equipment, stable management, foot care and shoeing, and teaching lower level pony clubbers.

The girls have received extensive training in all reas as members of the Ponkapoag Pony Club in Milton as well as private riding instruction and lectures.

Liz and Amy are juniors and Marley is a sophomore at Cohasset High School.

Skippers' informal scrimmage marks beginning of season

By Rob Tis

Under the watchful eye of Coach Leone (and only his eye, because an assistant has yet to be hired) approximately 35 high school football diehards have completed double sessions...a series of football practices which run basically all morning, break for lunch, and continue through the afternoon.

These muscle-breaking sessions have taken place everyday during the last two weeks of Summer in the "Mojave Dessert," known to civilians as Miliken Field.

Last Saturday Skippers had their first real contest — an informal scrimmage with St. Patrick's of Waltham. Although no real first team has been established, this writer feels the first string will certainly include Pat Conlan and Bill Cutt at center, Captains Sandy Ayer and Mike Jones at guard, Beaver Buckley and Buddy Howorth at tackle and Jeff Lyons and Mark Froio, ends.

On defense, it will probably be Bob Fessler and Mike Jones — guards. Dave Chapman and Paul (incredible Hulk) Buckley at tackles, and Buddy Howorth and Sandy Ayer — ends. Line backers will probably be Bill Cutt and J. T. Price.

In the backfield, Tim Libby will return to the helm at quarterback, but in the scrimmage with St. Patrick's, soph Rich Evans filled in for Libby who is suffering from a muscle pull.

Fighting for backfield positions are Jack McNiel, Joe Becker, Bob Donahue, Mike Donahue, Pat Broderick and Mark Gunville — younger brother of the infamous Dave, who by the way, will not be playing varsity football at Stonehill College this year.

Skippers romped on St. Patrick's in the scrimmage, four touchdowns to one. The rules in this game gave the ball to the offense for 10 downs and then if it didn't score, offense would turn the ball over.

Although hardly an official-type game, it gave the Skippers some needed experience and entertained the crowd of 50 fans.

The first touchdown was run in by halfback Joe Becker. The second TD was tallied by Pat Broderick, who intercepted a pass and ran it in. The third TD was scored by Bob Donahue on a pass from Kevin Dooley. Joe Becker could not be contained — and ran in the last TD.

THEODORE M. FORD

STATE REPRESENTATIVE

Democrat Hingham — Hull — Cohasset

The Democratic Primary is September 16 at the town hall and Ted Ford needs your vote.

Issues:
—Sensible tax reform, fiscal restraint
—Tax breaks for senior citizens
—Minimize airplane noise
—Improved commuter transportation
—Efforts to improve local economy

Background:

Ted Ford grew up in Cohasset where he attended public schools. Following graduation from the University of Connecticut (B.A. Economics) and graduate studies in economics at George Washington University, he served two years in the Peace Corps. From 1973 to 1979 Ted Ford was a career diplomat for the U.S. Department of State and served in Washington and at American Embassies overseas.

Committee to elect Theodore M. Ford

around town

☐John F. McCarthy, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. McCarthy of Holly Lane, was graduated from Clark University, Worcester this month. McCarthy earned a Bachelor of Arts degree and is currently working for a state hospital in Belchertown with the psychology staff.

☐Congratulations to Vath and Chabeh Khlee of Hill Street who are the parents of a baby boy — Wauna — born August 6 at the South Shore Hospital. His brothers are Bun-ny and Chien and sisters are Vanny, Phally, Phalla and Et.

Wauna follows the birth of his "niece," Lena, by two months! She is the daughter of Phlan (Khlee) and Juan Kling.

☐Susan DeMichele was high on a ladder painting dragons on the wall of the new Osgood library the day before she delivered her, and husband Donald's, third child. (That must be why she looks so great two weeks later!)

James Tyler DeMichele was born on August 15 at Newton-Wellesley Hospital weighing 7 lbs. 6 ozs. His brother is Danny, 6, and sister is Marnie, 3-and-a-half. His grandparents are Mrs. Ethyl Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Michael DeMichele, all of Utica, New York.

☐A slightly belated welcome to Cohasset to the LaBash's — Louis, Marcie and their daughter, Elizabeth (Happy 11th Birthday coming up on September 19). They moved here on June 1st from Georgia where Marcie says, "It's hot, but not humid like here!"

Louis was transferred to the New England territory with the Computone Computer Company and Marcie has been keeping cool on a part-time basis at the Photopatio booth at Cushing Plaza.

Lois Weltman, newly named chairman of the Major Gift Drive for Boston's New Zoo holds a baby African Grey Parrot.

☐Lois Weltman has been named by the Boston Zoological Society as the Major Gifts Chairman for the Boston's New Zoo Fund Drive for the New Zoo being built in Franklin Park.

"Boston is a city renowned for the quality of its medical, educational and cultural resources," Weltman explains. "The forthcoming New Zoo corroborates and is in consonance with all these claims to fame."

Weltman has been a professional volunteer for over twenty years involved in areas focusing on the improvement of the quality of life. She was the first president of the Young Women's Division of Combined Jewish Philanthropies, president for five years of Boston Children's Theater, a member of the board of directors of United Community Planning Corporation and author of the History of Newton Jewry.

In her new position, Weltman will be challenged with the job of raising $1.75 million in major gifts in the Capital Fund Drive. She optimistically says, "I know I'll find enough people who care."

She expresses her own caring this way: "I feel so intensely that Boston needs a zoo where people can experience a change of pace, a form of family recreation and togetherness not just for pleasure but as an educational source to learn about wildlife conservation and preserving our natural resources."

We wish her success!

☐Joseph R. Dooley, a veteran real estate broker for the past twenty-five years, has joined Century 21 Minot Realty, Inc. in Cohasset. Prior to joining Century 21 Minot Realty, Dooley owned and managed his own real estate office in Canton, and operated offices in Scituate and Cohasset. For the past six years, Dooley has been in apartment management complexes in Rockland and Marshfield.

Dooley is very active in Cohasset clubs and organizations, and resides at 124 Doane St., Cohasset. He joined the firm as a sales associate specializing in new and resale homes and residential developments.

Century 21 Minot Realty is the exclusive broker for the new Riverview Drive subdivision nearing completion off Beechwood Street in Cohasset.

☐Marine Lance Cpl. Matthew S. Conlan, son of Patrick M. and Marie G. Conlan of 237 Forest Ave., Cohasset, was awarded the Good Conduct Medal.

The Good Conduct Medal signifies faithful and obedient service during a three-year period. To earn it, enlisted Marines must achieve and maintain an unblemished conduct record for the entire period.

Conlan is currently serving with the 2d Marine Division, Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, N.C. A 1977 graduate of Cohasset High School, he joined the Marine Corps in June 1977.

Ronane and Rodgerson to exhibit at S.S. Art Center

Two distinctive approaches to form and color through two entirely different mediums make the opening exhibit at the South Shore Art Center Gallery an event to remember. Abstract oil paintings by Susan Rodgerson and glowing copper enamels by Marilyn Kane Ronane will be on display with an opening reception for the public Sunday, Sept. 14, from 5 to 7 p.m. at 103 Ripley Road in Cohasset.

This is the first major exhibit of Susan Rodgerson's abstract work although she is becoming known for her representational paintings and drawings that deal with nature and the figure.

Rodgerson received her formal training at the Art Institute of Boston in Fine Arts and studied privately with Jason Berger, John Bageris and Clement Micarelli.

Her work has been chosen for juried shows at the Art Institute, Boston City Hall and Duxbury Art Complex as well as South Shore Festivals.

Her awards include an Art Institute Achievement Scholarship, the Winkleman Drawing award, first and second awards at the South Shore Art Center and Plymouth. She is represented at the Vendo Nubes Gallery and Gallery 49.

Marilyn Kane Ronane started enameling at Mass College of Art where she graduated in 1960 with a BSE degree in Art Education.

Ronane is currently teaching at Abington High School where she has been on the faculty for nine years in the areas of drawing, painting, portfolio work and general art classes, including enameling.

She has exhibited at Stonehill College, Brockton Art Center, Mass. Association of Craftsmen, Cambridge Art Center and North Quincy Library. She is a past member of Copley Society and current member of MAC, Cambridge Art Association, Brockton Art Center and a Gallery Member of the South Shore Art Center.

year the former year's teachings will be reinforced at the present grade level by the classroom teacher.

In Canton, Gill said he dealt with the preventive side of health education. "We introduced programs on alcohol...you've got to reach them at a very young age. Even by middle school drinking becomes a problem. We did some things with nutrition, but not as much as we should have. As the only health teacher in the K-8 system, I was spread pretty thin."

Gill thinks all aspects of health education are important, "But I stress dealing with peer pressure. In Canton I zeroed in on peer pressure...that leads to everything.

"I told many stories to that age (K-8) group. For instance, I told them that Fonzi, on "Happy Days," is super cool and super tough. But he doesn't do drugs or smoke. The morale being that you can be cool and tough without doing drugs or cigarettes." The kids were impressed.

Gill also did a lot of parent-teacher programs in Canton, question and answer type format. And much of his classroom format was based on answering kids' questions. "Kids are like sponges...they pick up information easily. Then they go home and start lecturing their parents. So I tell them: don't yell at your parents if they have a glass of wine during dinner...they love it."

Life sports are something else which Gill stresses as being important to being physically fit later in life. Jogging and swimming fit into this category.

He's in favor of special outside programs being brought in to the system, and was impressed to discover that a local group, spearheaded by Dick Conley, is attempting to raise funds to bring drug lecturer David Toma to Cohasset early next year.

"Canton is scheduled to have Toma in January. Last Spring a baker walked into the school offices and gave us $1,000 out of his pocket to help pay Toma's fee. His child had been messed up by drugs," Gill said.

LWV annual fall brunch

The League of Women Voters Annual Fall Brunch will be held Thursday, Sept. 11. Coffee will be served at 9:15 followed by the speakers at 9:30.

The program is entitled "Candidates and the Issues" and will feature speeches by four of the candidates running for state representative.

Immediately after the program there will be a question and answer period and subsequently the brunch.

Tickets for the brunch may be purchased for $2.50. Brunch will consist of quiche, salad, wine, and dessert.

Reservations should be in by Sept. 9. In order to make reservations call 383-1860. Babysitting will be free of charge (for this event only) if you make reservations. This can be done by calling 383-1370.

If no reservations are made there will be a charge of $1.50 per child. The brunch and program will be held at the Unitarian Parish House in Cohasset.

Piano keys

twenty-third year doing what she always wanted to do.

She started her piano lessons at age eight; studied privately with Emanuel Zambelli; attended Wheaton College for two years and earned a B.S. degree in music from Skidmore. She studied piano and methods at Skidmore with Louis Edgar Johns. Following that, she did graduate work in Vienna at the Academy of Music under the direction of Ludwig Czaczkes.

She spent six years studying piano instruction and teaching piano with Charles Moulton. An invaluable acquaintance with a jobber of piano music at the time she was beginning to teach, allowed her the opportunity to browse through all different kinds of music literature.

She has 13 students and is not taking any new ones this year. They've all been with her a long while.

She has been a member of the New England Piano Teachers Association for 22 years, an organization that meets monthly in Boston for speakers and workshops. She has studied with Minueta Kessler of Belmont. She performs solo and two-part piano pieces occasionally for the FM (Friday Morning) Club, a group of South Shore musicians.

Additionally, Mrs. Mullen is in the process of writing a technique book since she finds the others "either go too fast or they don't go systematically."

Her students receive individualized instruction, are encouraged to sight and duet play and are exposed to classical scores, primarily, but get some rhythm, jazz and blues, boogie and pop as well.

If our search for piano teachers inadvertently left anyone out, please give us a call and we'll gladly make up for the omission next week.

Dental Dialogue

HEALTHY, WEALTHY, AND WISE

Q. Besides checking for decay why is it important for me to see my dentist every six months?

A. The person who keeps regular check up appointments has the best means of retaining his teeth for life. Dental problems can be corrected more easily and with less expense in their early stages. Also, because some of their symptoms appear in the mouth, systemic diseases are often detected at the check up appointment. Some of these diseases are: cancer, diabetes, and certain blood disorders. This valuable diagnostic aid can help save your money, your teeth, and even your life.

This column is presented in the interest of better dental health. From the office of

A real card

By Lois Martin

The way to make a nifty impression these days is to say "Let me give you one of my cards."

Now that's the sign of an important person. Everybody who's anybody has a fistful of cards with his or her name on them. How I long to be among them, those chic women with business cards for which they reach with long perfectly painted nails. I'd say conservatively that three out of 10 people now have their own embossed cards with raised lettering.

You can almost spot a card carrier. If it's not in the palm of his hand, it's in his shirt pocket or in a special little case maybe. The more reluctant card carriers, who like them handy but not showy, carry a few in their wallets/billfolds.

It's partly because our names mean a lot to us. It's all we have, our handle, our singular means of being remembered in a too closely packed world. It's our identity. You know from experience that you can mortally wound some people if you forget the name or pronounce it incorrectly or attribute the wrong name to a familiar face.

The choices in business cards, to preserve identity, are endless. I've looked at a lot of them. There's a man in town who has a picture of a skunk to advertise his pumping business. There are sassy ones with scissors for hairdressers. And there are those that are fancifully colored and fancily scrolled. But these are only the ones for professional use. Some business cards offer services; others offer self; all offer food for thought.

Now days it's fashionable to have one's own personal card. That's really an old idea. Remember the calling cards of yore. Of course you don't but your grandparents might. They (cards not grandparents) were left in lieu of a visit. They were socially vital, one of the niceties of a classy crowd.

I know a woman whose children gave her the grandest card I've ever seen. It represented her with gusto, an expert in things necessary to a happy home. It was created on good quality paper. And she handed it out with pride. So would I.

But my favorite is a card printed by a pressman for himself. Apparently he had some time and cards left over and put them to use. His name's Harvey and that's right square on the card in large print. Above his name is an assortment of goods which he proffers as being available through a phone call away: peat moss, nails, used cars, whiskey, bongo drums, land, fly swatters, racing forms, sewer lids and sex.

But that's only part of what's offered on his card. Get a load of these services advertised by Harvey as being readily on tap: "Revolutions started; bar rooms emptied or filled; bridges destroyed; uprisings quelled; wars fought; orgies organized; spinsters satisfied."

Mind you, I haven't told you everything Harvey says he can do. There's one thing I've threatened to hire him for, my choice of things needing to be done, "Governments Run." Harvey doesn't equivocate or explain. He only offers to run governments. And I am thinking we'd be ahead of the game if Ronnie and Jimmy and even Johnny were simply to go round handing out their business cards, which, following Harvey's lead, could say "Governments Run."

Harvey never said how he'd run them, only that he would. And I'm sick of hearing how Ronnie would do it and seeing how Jimmy has done it. Some might say it would be false advertising. But they'd agree it would be a relief from the daily dose of politics we get.

If a man wants our vote, let him hand out his card with his services available, his platform if need be and his position on issues. Let him throw in his favorite logo, like the skunk or a jackass. We'd get the message. And if a woman wants our vote, let her do the same, more tastefully in the form of a calling card perhaps. That way, if we want sex to be the issue, we'll recognize the differences in cards right away.

It would be presumptuous of me to list Harvey's number here. Besides he ought to pay for it because I know there are a number of people who'd like to get in touch with him to get their uprisings quelled if not to attend to the more spicy deeds he's promised to provide.

It wasn't until after the two national conventions that I decided Harvey might be the answer in this year of bleak choice of election candidates. If Harvey can provide the service of "Politicians shushed," I'll consider writing him in as my choice on the November ballot.

Awards made at sail ceremony

Award ceremonies at the Cohasset Sailing Club were held Labor Day in the a.m...afterwhich club members and guests dined on delicious sail club chowder...called nail soup, in Pennsylvania.

This year was an exciting and profitable year for the Sail Club, which not only purchased new Mercuries, but finished work on its new Sail Club home.

New clubhouse...new boats...new enthusiasm has been evident throughout the summer sailing months with more and more adults and children taking advantage of sailing lessons.

Bob Davenport said there was a record turnout of 87 adults (four classes) for sail lessons this summer. "They seemed to come out of the woodwork," he said. During the awards ceremony, Tom Trautwein received an excellence award for outstanding sailing in the advanced intermediate class. In the adult beginner class a father and son team received the excellency award: Bernie and Bern Caughey, along with Denise Desmond and Andrew Krueger.

In the Flying Scott race division...Peter Chapman took first place, Jim Clinton got second, and Terry Young came in third...upsetting the old Ellis-Porter team. Eight Scotts raced this year.

Ableseaman awards were as follows for the most improved in each class: Class I, Lauren Bradley; Class II, Mike McNamara; Class III, Marcy Brown.

Awards for excellence were received by Heather St. Onge and Mark Caughey.

In the Sailing Master category Tim Curran received an achievement award for most improved. Awards for excellence were received by Janet Carlson and Sean Curran.

Skipper Tim Curran got the coveted Congdon Race Trophy...his crew was Jim Rooney. And Sean Curran received the Towle Trophy for best, overall seaman.

Mate Awards were as follows: Larry "What the heck" Desmond in Class I, Tracy Fitzpatrick in Class I. Samantha Barrett and Sean O'Connor received awards for excellence in this category.

In the Skipper category, Lisa Kean got an achievement award, while Jenny Fox and Nick Gilmour received awards for excellence.

Cohasset water colorist to exhibit at gallery

Mercie V. Nichols' paintings will hang in the South Shore Conservatory of Music's Staircase Gallery as the season opener commencing on September 7.

Her land and seascapes of Cohasset, Scituate, Rockport and Southern England and many striking impressionistic pieces of butterflies, leaves and flowers will be at the Gallery throughout the month of September.

Miss Nichols began painting over 60 years ago and started with her mother, Clara, who did screen panels, oils and painted china. Her aunt, Roberta Nichols Ripley, also influenced her art education with her china painting.

She specialized in art at Lasell Junior College and continued at the New School of Design in Boston. She attended summer courses to achieve certification for teaching which she went on to do in many South Shore communities. An art teacher in every grade level, Miss Nichols instructed in Dighton, Somerset, Swansee, Walpole and Reading as well as in her own home on Ripley Road.

She has studied throughout her career with many fine artists/teachers. "You get much more out of painting with someone else," she says.

Gretchen Cook at the Museum of Fine Arts School introduced Miss Nichols to the impressionistic technique that she uses in some of her paintings. George Dinkel introduced her to her first, and favorite, location — Rockport (her only oil painting is from there).

She also studied with MacIvor Reddie at the South Shore Art Center. They both shared a dedication to the idea of a local art center and were among those individuals responsible for starting the Center 25 years ago. One of Miss Nichols' paintings, a tranquil creek scene with a boat, is from the same Border Street location that Reddie favored.

She also took outdoor summer classes with Maryann Patrick from the Art Center and was greatly influenced in her teaching and painting by an around the world trip she took with her parents.

A community activist, Miss Nichols received the Lasell Medallion from the Lasell Alumnae Association last year for the distinction she has added to the name of her alma mater. She opened the first gift shop at the South Shore Hospital, is a member of the Evening Discussion Group, Cohasset Community Garden Club, Historical Society, the South Shore Art Center, and Friend of the Paul Pratt Library.

Location painting and art classes are getting to be a bit difficult for her, but her pace has only slowed slightly. She still paints and pursues friendships and interests with vitality.

"Painting has always been something I've enjoyed doing," she says. Many of the paintings she's done over the years have gone home with visiting friends and relatives. The pleasure they have given her and those dearest to her seem fulfillment equal to any notoriety she would certainly have achieved as a more public artist.

criticism, complaints and suggestions received in writing by the committee, which the committee feels concerns the superintendent or the operation of the School System.

At any time during the second year of the contract, either Crowell or the Committee may request to meet for the purpose of reviewing job performance and to conduct negotiations toward a possible renewal of Crowell's employment contract at its expiration date.

In a separate vote, the Committee last week voted 4-0 (Committeemen Jack Langmaid and Diane Kornet being absent) to reimburse Crowell $1,000 for moving expenses.

Airplane rally

the noise over Hull."

She told the group she agreed it (alternative six) isn't working but disagreed it can't work properly. "We must try to make it work — if it works it will make it not only quieter for Hull but also for other communities."

"Education is being sacrificed to the welfare for technical progress," said Richard Charlton, a Cohasset resident and Hull Schools Superintendent. He called the increased airplane noise levels of 80 decibels or higher a "significant impediment to the educational process."

"As a resident I'm merely annoyed but as an operator of an entertainment facility I'm outraged," said Director of the South Shore Music Circus Ron Rawson.

Rawson termed the noise a major disturbance and compared it to "like living in the midst of a swarm of angry bees at a picnic — it's drone, drone, drone."

Citing statistics Rawson told the crowd that during a two hour performance an average of 20 planes fly overhead. That's one every six minutes with a noise duration of an average of one-minute-forty-seconds, he said. Particularly disturbing was the noise for a Sunday, Aug. 3 concert when 44 planes flew overhead.

A couple in the crowd were heard to remark, "We were there and it was awful."

The safety aspect of the new route was raised by Ernie LeClair, a Hull pilot, who said air traffic controllers were concerned about the route.

Mike Furman, president of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, wanted to be at the rally but wasn't allowed, contended LeClair.

"If alternative six is allowed to continue the best that can happen is another near miss (recent near miss over Plymouth)...must we wait until we count the dead?"

"We want to be counted along with you," said Debbie Cook of the Cohasset community group. She informed the crowd that petitions are circulating in Cohasset.

Petitioners seek five member selectmen boa

By Tanna Kasperowicz

Over the weekend petitioners were canvassing the town asking residents to support a petition article for a board of five selectmen (as opposed to the present three-member board).

Frederick Huntwork, first signer and initiator of the petition for an expanded board of selectmen, said he will ask selectmen to put the question before the next special town meeting, where a majority of voters will decide the merits of the issue.

It has been rumored that the petition was the design of some members of the police department, who allegedly have a "vendetta" against selectmen for having tried to pull the police department out of Civil Service last year, and the year before. But Huntwork said, on the contrary, "There are a lot of people behind this."

He added he did not design the petition to attempt to embarrass selectmen, nor is it an expression of discontent with their decision on any matter.

"I think five selectmen would promote some discussion on the issues. Other towns have proven that five selectmen are better than three. The town's getting larger, and signers of the petition are in agreement that the town would be better governed with an expanded board. Presently, two peo make a phone call and decide a lot of things or town."

Should the question be voted in the affirmative, starting with Annual Elections 1981 the town would have three selectmen's seats to be filled: two from precinct 1 and one seat "at large."

This arrangement would ultimately result in the town's having at all times two selectmen from precinct I, two from II and the fifth selectmen would run for the "at large" seat which would be voted on by both precincts

Selectmen to call Special T.M. for 3-A purchase

Howard Schramm wants $500,000 for Cohasset Motors — which includes a building and 9.7 acres of land on Rte. 3-A.

But Selectman Chairman Arthur Clark told town boards and committees present at a meeting on the matter this week he feels Schramm will negotiate to sell the land at the appraiser's assessment of the property, $450,625, if the town moves quickly.

Selectmen said they will schedule a special town meeting in October.

According to Lot Bates, chairman of the fire station study committee, an additional $49,700 would be required to ready the garage and building for the town's use. Because the town would not be required to hire a clerk of the works, as the work to be done is not extensive enough, Bates suggested the town carry a 10 per cent contingency ($3,000) on the project.

Advisory Committee Chairman Jean Cotton told selectmen her committee would schedule a meeting for early next week to discuss the ramifications of the purchase. Several advisory committee members, including Tom Burke and Don Steele, said selectmen would have to provide more details about the Polls open at 10 a.m.

State Primary Tuesday

It's conceivable the victors of the State Primary, Tuesday, Sept. 16 will owe their standing to housewives, senior citizens, town employees, persons employed locally, and the unemployed. And there may be some justice in that.

Certainly, commuter-types will not be easily able to get to the polls, open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Especially if they have to put in any overtime that day.

There are 94 new registered voters in Cohasset, but according to Assistant Town Clerk Frances Marks, many more voters have been crossed off the voting list due to relocation, etc.

The official, computer-tallied voter list figures read as follows: 4,771 registered voters in the town; 1,223 Democrats, 1,422 Republicans, 2,124 Independents, and 2 American Party.

And those numbers are like the recently projected school figures. They're not up, they're not down...they're just sort of the same.

Cohasset predicts a light voter turnout for this State Primary, which has no Republican races this year. The Independent and Democratic voters will have all the fun.

Public ways confusion continues

Mr. Webster, what's a street?

By Laura Doherty

Planners, selectmen and other town officials have become increasingly concerned about the need for clarification of the criteria used to certify streets as accepted public ways.

Planners, in a letter to selectmen, have underlined the importance of adhering to proper legal procedure in accepting or discontinuing town streets. Planning board chairman Patricia Facey said that due to the lack of a distinction between accepted and un-accepted ways, private driveways — some with easements on them, have unfortunately been recorded on the town's zoning map.

This situation, Mrs. Facey said, could result in a homeowner with a long private driveway being able to subdivide his land.

She explains that once the town clerk has certified that a street is maintained by the town and used as a public way, it can be subdivided under the subdivision control law. In one case, on Tad Lane, she pointed out, planners had no choice but to sign a Form A subdivision approval because the street had been certified as a public way and maintained by the town despite the fact that abuttors maintained it was a private way.

Selectmen, also aware of the impact on development, want clarification of the law pertaining to the certification of accepted streets by the town clerk. "It's time to do something regarding the streets that never were accepted," says Henry Ainslie.

And, according to a 1975 list of town streets, there are many streets that have never been accepted. Figures show that the last street accepted was Old Coach Road in 1969.

Several streets such as Norfolk Road, Oak Street and Short Street are proceeded by question marks on the list and it is unclear whether they are accepted or unaccepted.

(I remember when we first moved onto our street there was a dispute whether to call it Cedar Acres Lane or Cedar Acres Drive. Both are still listed in the street list — neither is accepted.)

Residents of Reservoir Road will note that part of their street was accepted in 1957, while the rest remains unaccepted, according to the list. Atlantic Avenue was accepted in 1890, although according to the list, it was not laid out until 1893 or named until 1896.

It was not possible to reach town counsel before going to press to determine the exact procedure for gaining acceptance of a town street but there are certain specifications under the zoning bylaw which must be met.

In the past, town meeting has voted that private ways must be minimally maintained by the town in order to provide emergency access to homeowners. Last year, town meeting approved an article setting construction standards for driveways serving three or more houses.

Cohasset's week

Have they left?

If you've gotten even one homesick postcard, don't delay. Act now. Student subscriptions (nine months) cost only $8 during our special Mariner sale...through September. Even better yet, the Mariner is donating $1 of every $8 subscription sold to the Cohasset Historical Society during this period.

Better yet. During this special Mariner sale a new, in-town subscription costs only $6 (regularly $9). And $2 of that $6 goes directly to the coffers of the Cohasset Historical Society.

A new two-year (sale price $12) will net the Society a $4 profit.

During this special sale, make your full payment to the Cohasset Historical Society and mail it to Mrs. Carroll Pratt, 31 North Main Street, Cohasset 02025. Call her at 383-1672 for more information. The Society will use the proceeds to help complete restorations on the Lothrop House on Summer Street.

Breathalyzer statute

Pursuant to a decision of a three-judge federal district court for the District of Massachusetts rendered on August 18, 1980, in the case of Donald E. Montrym, et al. v. The Registrar (Civil Action No. 76-2560-F), Registrar Richard E. McLaughlin announces the Massachusetts "implied consent" or "breathalyzer" statute, (G.L. c. 90, paragraph 24 (1) (f) is once again valid and in full force.

Under that statute, police arresting a motor vehicle operator upon probable cause for operating under the influence of intoxicating liquor shall offer the arrested driver a breath analysis test and shall inform the driver that his refusal of the test will result automatically in a 90-day suspension of his license.

On refusal by an arrested driver to take the test, police must execute an appropriate affidavit attesting to the driver's refusal and must forward such information promptly to the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.

The Registrar, in turn, must then inform the operator of the suspension of his license and of his right to an immediate hearing opportunity to challenge the sanction.

The foregoing statutory procedures are now in effect throughout the Commonwealth.

Jurors

Two jurors chosen for the first Monday in October are Ann Chase of 449 Jerusalem Road and Anne O'Malley of 375 Jerusalem Road. Linda Glasfeld of 35 Rust Way has been chosen juror for the first Monday of November.

Double fee

Following a discussion of the need to determine the use and costs of using the town hall auditorium, selectmen agreed that the Dramatic Club should pay $300 for its use for rehearsals and performances. This is double the past fee.

Free cash

The state Bureau of Accounts has notified Cohasset that the amount of free cash available to the town is $463,439.

Bates building

Selectmen have taken under advisement a bid by Edward Goff Company of $3795 for reshingling the Bates Building. An alternate bid by the Goff Company was for $3450.

Report

Selectmen feel that it's time for a report from the Cemetery Study Committee and will contact each of the three members for an update on what committee has been doing.

Riding trails

The Cohasset Riding Club has been granted permission by selectmen to reoil their riding ring at Wheelwright Park and to use the whole field for phase horse trails to be held on September 27.

Town lines

Selectmen Henry Ainslie has informed his board that county engineers have determined and marked town boundary lines on Border Street.

Special needs

Bids of six separate routes have been awarded by the school committee for specials needs transportation. Noting that the opening of school "went smoothly," acting school superintendent John Raftery outlines current enrollment figures at a total of 1532 with 292 at the Joseph Osgood School, 364 at the Deer Hill School and 876 at the high school. A possible increase in enrollment throughout the system as a result of new housing in town was discussed by committee.

Good Advice From mna

The experts in the nursery business have knowledge to share . . .

Fall is an ideal time to fertilize your lawn. Weeds are much less of a problem, and a good fertilizer will help to maintain a greener color through the cold season ahead. Fall fertilizing will also give you a head start for next spring. Massachusetts nurserymen have developed their own brand of fertilizer, TURF-O-GANIC, which is uniquely suited to our soil. Look for the nursery or garden center near you that displays the green and white symbol of the Massachusetts Nurserymen's Association. Their knowledge and experience are your assurance of quality.

McKinnon concerned over abuse reports

Senator McKinnon held a meeting Sept. 4 with Department of Social Services Regional Director John York, with members of the Protective Services Coalition, Department of Social Services, members of the Department of Social Services Area Boards and local legislators to address the problem of reported, untreated child abuse cases in the Coastal (Weymouth) and South Shore (Quincy) Area Department of Social Service Offices.

Senator McKinnon, disturbed by reports of numbers of uncovered protective service cases called the meeting in response to requests for help from protective service workers and advocates.

At the meeting, administrators and workers detailed the numbers of cases assessed as needing treatment and explained that the problems have arisen from inadequate staffing.

Susan O'Connor of Coastline Council for Children, a Protective Services Advocate, stated that five more workers and one more supervisor for both the Coastal and South Shore Area offices are needed to bring the staff up to the level of need for which they were originally assessed.

Yet, Department of Social Service workers and administrators reported that there are approximately double the anticipated number of protective service cases in the two areas.

Rotary's looking for a soph with wanderlust

It's not exactly a free trip...but your expenses will be provided you on your sojourn ($25 a week). Your host family will provide room and board. And according to Fred Johansen, vice president of the Cohasset Rotary Club, you can just about choose your country from among any free, capitalistic nation in the world. There are 45.

But hold it. Don't pack your bags just yet. You won't be leaving until your junior year. In the meantime, you've got to write a resume, a brief article on why you'd like to spend your junior year abroad and what you think you'll get out of going there.

You've also got to be getting decent grades and you've got to raise the money for a round-trip air fare.

Johansen said you've got until Christmas to apply...through either a member of Rotary or the School Guidance Department. Oh yes, if you're a sophomore in prep school or private school, you're still eligible. But your permanent residence must be in Cohasset.

In an interview last week, Johansen noted the Cohasset Rotary Club has sent only two students out of the country, to Mexico. "We have received four...the last, Dennis Velde, from the Phillipines, was a great success. He was in the top five per cent of his class at CHS, played on the tennis team, and he was very well liked."

While there seems to be an abundance of host homes available in foreign countries, Johansen lamented that Cohasset host homes for foreign students have been difficult to find in the past. "Very few of our Cohasset Rotarians have children who are high school age. We seem to have very young members or very old members. And our club is small."

Consequently, Rotary is looking for host families from the community at large. Host families need not participate for the full nine months.

In past years several families have hosted one student over a nine-month visit to Cohasset.

Johansen said a Sharon couple started the Rotary Exchange 10 years ago. "Now, better than half the district (over 70 clubs) are involved in student exchanges."

He added, "It seems the majority of Cohasset students who come back to Cohasset have no trouble entering their senior year. The only problem Cohasset has had with sending students out of the country was when one girl who went to Mexico didn't want to come home."

Variance a nuisance for Cohasset resident

To the Editor:

A letter to the editor from Robert Davenport appeared in August, which ran under the heading "Horses Without Rights." Mr. Davenport states in his letter that "Horses don't have any rights."

Like Mr. Davenport, I also dearly love animals and own several myself. However, I do not feel the ownership of animals should violate my neighbor's peaceful and healthful enjoyment of their property. Least of all, do I believe that my animals should infringe upon other's civil and personal rights.

Mr. Davenport stated that "the Cohasset Riding Club (4-H) has stressed and taught good stable management over and over again." Mr. and Mrs. Davenport of the Cohasset Riding Club and several other horse owners spoke of my neighbor's good stable management.

Contrary to their views expressed, this was not the case this summer when my children were exposed to unhealthful conditions as a result of the decision of the Cohasset Board of Health.

A variance was granted to my neighbor for the stabling of her horses 32 feet from our home, not property line! Our environment was drastically changed.

I have lived through the experience of my neighbor's keeping of a backyard horse. I have several complaints registered at the Board of Health. My young children — ages 5 years and 2 years — were forced to endure the odor of horse manure and the red welts from biting horse flies during the long, hot summer months, because of the keeping of our neighbor's "backyard pet."

Any owner or lover of animals or pets knows that proper and good maintenance is imperative — not only for the health of the animal, but more importantly, for the health of humans. There are strict controls on the disposal of human sewage, but a horse was allowed to urinate and defecate a mere 32 feet from my home — where the waste would travel down a 12 foot drop (with ledge outcroppings) to an area where my children play.

It would be difficult for me to believe that a state or local Board of Health would permit a human to dispose of waste in such a manner. Therefore, it seems illogical to me that anyone would permit a horse (who disposes of much more waste than a human) to be maintained so very close to my home.

Horses kept in a highly residential area reduce my family's health environment and violate their rights to peaceful enjoyment of their property. A considerate neighbor would assume the responsibility for all concerned — be it human or animal!

Would five be wise?

The Cohasset Board of Selectmen deserve a little something better this week than a Mariner public debate (with itself) on whether the town should have three or five selectmen.

Certainly, the selectmen bring to their public offices a quality of sustained dedication and honest scrutiny. They have taken on super-human, unpopular assignments over the years, and the least we owe them is respectful recognition of their purpose.

That purpose is not necessarily to break new frontiers of governmental knowledge, but to act as a public medium, in which public issues and concerns can be resolved quickly, expediently, and with as little fuss as possible.

There is no doubt that once established, a five-member board would be needed. Governmental bodies have a way of expanding to fill their needs...however small. The town has already agreed to the position of a new executive secretary, to be appointed by selectmen in the Spring of 1981. So it can be truthfully said that the three-man board of selectmen appointed in the very beginning of Cohasset — finds itself needing some top-notch help in the 1980's.

Do they also need, more of them?

With more selectmen, meetings would go on longer. Longer does not necessarily mean better meetings would be held. Nor does it mean more efficient government.

Five selectmen would yield the town a more "debatable" outcome to any issue...more conversation would ensue. More debate. The result of more debate would give us all a better understanding of some of the facts behind the issues.

Division of the workload into five parts would assure closer attention to town governmental problems.

But the biggest plus a five-man board has going for it is that an expanded board would always have two selectmen "in training," so to speak. If one or two selectmen were ever found to be in conflict of interest in voting on a question (but this could never happen in Norfolk County), three remaining selectmen would legally be able to act, and comfortably, on the matter.

We are not so sure we'd advocate stipulating that no selectman could hold more than two consecutive terms as selectman. It takes a selectman just about one "learning" term to become acclimated with the job.

There are physical and financial issues to ponder here, also. Can the town physically stuff two more selectmen into the selectmen's office? Two more selectmen will mean two more salaries...and would the advisory committee recommend, and would town meeting vote the funds to buy two more new chairs for the selectmen's office?

Perhaps petitioners should write a second article, to appear on the special town meeting warrant before the expanded selectmen's article...asking for the chairs. If the town won't vote the chairs, the five selectmen's article could then be withdrawn without prejudice.

'I learned a heavy lesson'

To my friends in Cohasset:

I speak of drugs and addiction — although I no longer use drugs, I still consider myself a drug addict.

To call myself an ex-drug addict would be similar to calling myself a reformed ex-virgin. It is now someting that will be with me all my life.

At any time, I can backslide and become just what I was. Or I can realize that possibility and prevent it from happening.

For many months I sat around thinking I get high too much. I never get anything done any more. Wouldn't it be nice to go to college, get a wife, go to the beach, get a better job, or whatever else?

Then I would hunt up some friends, get high, and we could all talk about the tings we wanted to do. Better still we all could elaborate on things we had done. It's amazing how creative you can get with your life history when you're stoned.

The result was a lot of thought, even more talk, and no action.

When I was finally ready to deal with my problem, I learned a heavy lesson. The doctor at the hospital says "Yeah, I should go to drug rehab with you." (He was a pot-smoking buddy.) The rehab center said "Sorry, we don't have enough staff or a big enough budget."

My friends said "Haha you got no problem, look at me I do twice as much drugs as you do and I have no problem." And so the runaround went.

For three months I looked for someone to make me quit and for three months I came no closer to quitting.

Then came the day when I realized that no one else was going to quit for me.

So I just stopped. And it was real easy. Once I stopped thinking, planning, hoping, trying, looking, and waiting and just DID it, it was real easy. The key was DOing.

I now know that I can deal with any problem that arises, not by talking, thinking, planning, or calculating, just by dealing with it and doing whatever it takes to create success.

Drug education in the schools is a good start, but it will not create the success you want without full participation from you — each parent and each student. Nobody is going to cure the problem for us.

Osgood Library dedication this week

To the Editor:

The public is invited to attend the dedication ceremony of the new library at the Osgood Elementary School Thursday, Sept. 11, at 2 p.m.

The library was established in an old classroom over the summer with help and support of many people. John Raftery, the acting Superintendent, provided assistance in funds and manpower; Jack Creamer, the principal at Osgood, provided the room and the climate for the growth of the library; Liz Glasfeld, a parent volunteer, culled and organized library materials from various classrooms and spent endless hours making certain that the books were check-out ready.

Marilyn Pope, the children's librarian at the Paul Pratt, helped w/ideas, book lists, and as always support of the library concept; Pat Plante, the industrial arts teacher designed and built all library furniture.

Di[illegible] the finishing touches on the room in the way of paneling and shelves; Carol Martin and Susan DMicheles, parents and members of the Communication Council, spent many hours organizing other parent volunteers (including: Korrine Leung, Latisha Jordan, Marge Izzo and Linda Henderson), planning, painting, designing and putting the finishing touches on the room; and many others who helped with the planning of the new library.

The library will be opened to student use on Sept. 15, 1980. Osgood students will be introduced to the new library by their teachers and will be asked to participate in a "Name the Library Dragon Contest," to be administered by the Osgood Communication Council. The Council is seeking parent volunteers to help Lorene Miller, the library-Metco aide, administer and supervise the library for the school year. Interested parents may contact Mary Ann Studds at 383-6956.

Chief DeBassio & selectmen discuss police priorities

By Laura Doherty

In his first meeting with selectmen since assuming office, Police Chief John DeBassio noted that uniform and equipment standards, firearm applications and assignment of auxiliaries will be among his priorities in reviewing current department rules and regulations for possible modification. He will then submit his recommendations to selectmen for their approval.

The meeting began with selectmen chairman Arthur Clark and Chief DeBassio pledging full support with a goal of "winding up with a department which "will be the envy of all the towns around." The need to obtain certification of the permanent intermittent list from Civil Service in order to fill two vacancies within the department was also discussed.

Among uniform and equipment standards to be reviewed, will be the issuance of firearms to department members. Chairman Clark also noted the need to review the procedure for issuing permits to private citizens for concealed weapons.

DeBassio pointed out that it is the department's prerogative to set up a standard to qualify for a permit. He also suggested that applicants be required to justify the need for a permit. In addition, DeBassio continued, conditions requiring a permit can be reviewed and, if changed, the permit declared no longer valid.

Both DeBassio and selectmen agreed that the assignment of police auxiliaries should be through him. DeBassio told selectmen that he will be meeting with other officers and those involved with the auxiliaries to determine proper policy.

Since the chief will be under a new system in which he is no longer under Civil Service and will report directly to selectmen, the importance of determining proper administrative procedure was underlined. Any answer regarding policy will be given directly by selectmen as a board to the chief. Complaints to selectmen will be called into police headquarters or, if more serious, will be directly mentioned to the chief.

DeBassio told selectmen that he has received "the best" of cooperation from his department which he described as "young and viable." He also emphasized the need for additional cleaning and maintenance at department headquarters for which, according to Clark, additional funding will be needed.

MBTA rep predicts commuter crises if funds run out

By Laura Doherty

Cohasset residents who commute by MBTA could face a severe crisis in less than a month if steps aren't taken to prevent commuter funds from running out, according to the town's representative to the MBTA Advisory Board, Louis Eaton.

Eaton, who is also a member of the Executive Committee of the T's Advisory Board, has told selectmen that the situation is "exceedingly serious."

He notes that in March his board turned down a request by T directors for a $60 million increase in their $300 million budget. The Advisory Board, according to Eaton, realizes the difficult problems facing T directors due to contract requirements but his board also feels that, since January, T management has acted as though they would get the $360 million.

After conducting its own review of the budget, the Advisory Board realized that by late September - early October, the T would be running out of money and members recommended a $41 million increase. Board members felt, however, that such an increase could only be justified if management were to accomplish operating and financial economies such as hiring based on merit rather than politics.

"Despite the crisis and pending cut back on service, no action has been taken on this," Eaton observed. The fact that the original $300 budget was "barely within the 4 percent tax cap" was also noted by Eaton, who sees his board as trying to force T directors into a more efficient operation and to protect the property tax.

Once again, this month, the advisory board, Eaton says, has reiterated its March stand that there would be no additional monies until its demands for economies are met.

Eaton also discussed several problems presently facing T management such as the Governor's takeover of the T and his assessing $11 million back to the towns which is currently being challenged in the courts. The fact that management personnel are leaving the department and the difficulty of replacing them was also discussed.

The situation will not affect Cohasset financially, Eaton continued, but will affect those residents who commute by the T. Those people, selectmen chairman Arthur Clark observed, "will have to sit tight and see what happens."

4-H annual state horse show

Seven junior Cohasset Riding Club members have been chosen by the county to compete at the annual state 4-H horse show in Spencer later this month.

Lori Marshall, Jen Hanlon, Julie Hoogeveen, and Theresa Horky with alternates Catherine Smith, Julie Chambers, and Lisa Powers were chosen because of both their success at county 4-H horse shows and the detailed horse management records each member must turn into the county.

STATE REPRESENTATIVE

Democrat Hingham — Hull — Cohasset

The Democratic Primary is September 16 at the town hall and Ted Ford needs your vote.

Issues:

—Sensible tax reform, fiscal restraint
—Tax breaks for senior citizens
—Minimize airplane noise
—Improved commuter transportation
—Efforts to improve local economy

Background:

Ted Ford grew up in Cohasset where he attended public schools. Following graduation from the University of Connecticut (B.A. Economics) and graduate studies in economics at George Washington University, he served two years in the Peace Corps. From 1973 to 1979 Ted Ford was a career diplomat for the U.S. Department of State and served in Washington and at American Embassies overseas.

Ruth Howe was surprised on her 65th birthday last Friday at a party given by Eileen and Bob Pope in their home on Sohier Street. Sixty-five people, including Ruth's sister, Marjorie Fish from New York, came for dinner, cake and celebrating.

Chatterton "flag-raising" hats are still for sale...blue and white with "Cohasset" printed above the brim with a fisherman's insignia...proceeds to go towards a new, acrylic, appropriately-sized flag for the Town Common flagpole...call Clark to see if he has your size.

Scituate selectmen again trounced Cohasset's at the baseball rematch. "The score was about 12-9," Jim Gallagher sighed. But he said everyone had a good time anyway at the Beechwood ballfield. And, Mary Jeanette Murray didn't show up! Well, Arthur, guess she is a has-been!

There was no hiding the fact that

Kim Ward - class of '91

Maggie Tibbetts reached her 40th last weekend! Sixty friends, under the direction of her husband Dick, Brenda Urmson, Nancy Hamilton and the Chamberlains, formed a birthday parade pronouncing the event as they marched down Howard Gleason Road to her house. Betty Colleton and Leslie Chamberlain were cheerleaders and there were American flags waving, drums and a horn.

The parade was followed by a truck that carried all the makings for a clambake and a "newspaper cake" that gave each of her friends a slice of her life! (Maggie was completely surprised.)

There will be an OPEN HOUSE AND DEDICATION for the Osgood School library on Thursday, September 11 at 2 p.m. All are invited.

The Rix family of Hillside Drive are not brand new to Cohasset (they moved here in May), but we'd still like to say hello. Berta (Swiss born) and Uwe (from Germany) and their daughter Manuela, 14, have found Cohasset to their liking; not too crowded and not too many problems. Uwe works for Chloride Pyrotector, Inc. in Hingham.

The Gatsik family is also new to town. Stephen was recently appointed managing director of Lord & Taylor in Braintree at the South Shore Plaza. He joined the retail firm in 1978.

The Testimonial group (Randy Feola's retirement, Friday, September 19) is still meeting...a most unusual and attractive centerpiece is being planned for the head table...and a lawsuit has already been threatened (over the dinner)...should be an interesting evening!

Don't forget the GOP Reception this Sunday, September 14 from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. at the home of Mrs. William Cox on Margin Street. The Republican Town Committee is organizing an opportunity for you to meet and talk with all candidates for national and state offices. Two national Republican leaders, David Durenberger, Junior Senator from Minnesota and John Hammer, former Lieutenant Governor of California under former Governor Ronald Reagan, will address the group with brief remarks. Admission is $10.00 with a cash bar.

GOP fundraiser scheduled for Cox estate

Two national Republican figures will be special guests at a GOP reception, sponsored by the Cohasset Republican Town Committee, Sunday, Sept. 14. David Durenberger, junior Senator from Minnesota, and former California Lieutenant Governot John Harmer, who served under Governor Ronald Reagan, will be present at the gala Sunday afternoon event to be held at "The Oaks", home of Mrs. William C. Cox on Margin Street, Cohasset.

The reception will be held from four to seven o'clock and will include cocktails and hors d'oeuvres served on the terrace overlooking Cohasset Harbor. Entertainment will be provided by the American Children's Theater of Massachusetts presenting a program of contemporary music and show tunes.

In addition to hearing brief speeches by the two prominent national Republicans, those attending will be given an opportunity to meet local candidates including: Paul Doane, candidate for U.S. House of Representatives; State Senate candidate Paul Barber; incumbent State Representative Mary Jeanette Murray; and William Robinson, candidate for Governor's Council.

A large committee of members and friends of the Republican Town Committee is at work on plans for the event. They include Co-chairmen Mrs. Thomas Hamilton and Mrs. Thomas Killilea; Town Committee chairman Mrs. Edward Guild; ticket chairman Paul Cobbett; Town Committee Treasurer Jeffrey Nothnagle; former State Senator William D. Weeks; Mrs. Louis Strong; Mrs. Austin F. O'Toole; Mrs. John Bleakie and Mrs. Edward Tuckerman together with numerous young people who will assist with the day's events.

Tickets for the gala afternoon are $10 per person and there will be a cash bar. Tickets may be obtained by calling Mrs. Hamilton (383-1335); Mrs. Killilea (383-6589); Mrs. Strong (383-0939); Mrs. Tuckerman (383-0769).

WHAT IS ABNORMAL METABOLISM?

Metabolism is a big word that refers to all the ways by which a particular substance, food for instance, is handled by your body. Once in a while, these processes do not work right, but in some cases the problem can be controlled by diet.

In this and other types of metabolism problems, special foods may be required or the patient may be required to stay away from certain foods. Of course, in addition to diet control a prescription may be necessary to help the condition.

YOU DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a medicine. Pick up your prescription if shopping nearby, or we will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people entrust us with their prescriptions. May we compound yours?

Mitzi was ritzy

By Lois Martin

People have a variety of reasons for attending the South Shore Music Circus. For one thing I was beginning to smart from the embarrassment of having lived here this long without having been there. Kind of the in-thing to do, you know. Then you've got a bit of fodder for conversation comparing stars and you can appear to be discerning when you refuse to give critical acclaim to the likes of Margaret Whiting.

Well, we finally got there because it was about the only special thing we hadn't done in the area when someone had a birthday. Birthdays are big deals. And we'd been the gamut for someone who turned 15, all the Red Sox games we could handle, specially cooked picnics, Natasket beach/park. Besides, he was too old to hire a clown and a donkey for the afternoon.

PATCHES

But now I wonder in retrospect if he was too young for Mitzi Gaynor. I arranged for the tickets and then announced we'd be going. I expected he'd be pleased. Clearly he intended to be courteously compliant when he said, "Fine with me but I don't even know the lady." That beats the time a man was told he'd be taken to see Joey Heatherton and said, "Who's he?"

Anyway we, and seemingly 800 people, crowded into the snappy tent for the show. Mitzi knew her crowd's average age and followed a program written accordingly. The jokes would be just dirty enough so that you nudged your companion discreetly to share the humor. But they weren't so bad that you were embarrassed to have understood them. Still my nose almost grew longer when I refused to explain reasoning behind jokes to a birthday person who may not know everything but his parents shouldn't count on it.

That Mitzi's a marvel. She sashayed on the stage in a glittering full skirted affair with her ever excellent legs kicking skyward, her clear strong voice lilting, and her full bosom gaining full effect on the audience. The men realized immediately what a commendable figure of a woman she was. They didn't hoot or anything tacky like that, but one glance at their faces, and you could recognize that glint of awareness in their eyes.

My mind raced to calculate the woman's age. If I'm 43, I kept thinking, and she's always been older than I am, how old does that make Mitzi.

It was a mathematical pursuit my ego wouldn't bear. Some say she's over 50. I wouldn't know. All I know is I didn't look like that at 5 or 15. I've recovered from God's not having chosen me to sing like a bird to the delight of other people. But the obvious favoritism he's shown in the allocation of body parts requires an amount of grace not routinely accorded the average woman of faith attending the South Shore Music Circus.

But I admired her. I was free to do that. I loved her fancy clothing and her pleasure in wearing them. She has chutzpah. And like the program says, she delivers.

What she also delivered that I wouldn't be likely to order were a passel of young men who danced about the stage. They might have done better to do same around the tent and wearing looser clothing.

I don't know what Mitzi was thinking of when she let them wear those little tiny yellow shorts. They'd all outgrown them three years ago. I didn't watch them during that number so as to avoid embarrassing them. The best joke Mitzi told was that she'd had to buy them from their mothers and they didn't come cheap. You know it. Let her try to buy one of my offspring if she wants to see inflation. Not that anyone of them has shown any dancing or singing talent but their mother is firm about the fit of their clothing.

Well, she sang songs from the 40s and 50s, "Red Sails in the Sunset." My mother had that sheet music before I was born and I could swear it said it was printed in 1927.

It was familiar to me and the balance of the non-Pepsi generation. We applauded and hummed a bit. And the birthday person said he'd never heard one of those songs she sang during the old "Hit Parade" portion of the show. His brother spent time scanning the crowd for a female in his age group, spoke respectfully of Mitzi, her dancing, zest and voice. But he knew he didn't accord her the honor his father did.

Now there was someone who got his money's worth. He could have stood outside in the parking lot for twice the price and he'd have believed he was privileged to be allowed to attend.

In fact there were a couple of moments when I thought she should have shared some of the gate with him. So supportive was he, the first to laugh at her jokes, to applaud her singing, to admire her high kicks. I'll never be persuaded he'd have felt that way about Lou Rawls or Liberace.

I think I'll go again some time. I'll study the offerings. And unless I manage to get the hang of those high kicks I might have to go see Mitzi again. When I asked one of her admirers if he thought I too might find a spot in "South Pacific," he said wryly, if not dryly, that I'd do well to limit my ambitions to a place in "the North River."

School Committee briefs

HEALTH SCREENING COMMITTEE

School committee members have voted unanimously to appoint a 25 member Volunteer Health Education Advisory Committee which will be appointed on an annual basis, every September.

The committee as appointed will consist of four students, one principal, one school nurse, two staff members, and the remainder are members of the community many of whom served on the health screening committee.

As its first order of business, the new committee has been requested by the school committee to review the tape, Suicide, My Choice for age suitability. Showing of this film was stopped by acting superintendent John Raftery.

Committee members agreed that it will be standard procedure that all items will be reviewed by the health coordinator before their distribution.

FOOTBALL COACH

Noting their misgivings about appointing William Steward as freshman football coach, committee members have agreed to hire him on a per diem basis until the next school committee meeting at which time an evaluation will be submitted by varsity coach Leone. Although Stewart comes well recommended, committee members expressed concern about his lack of maturity and experience in coaching.

Assistant principal Gino DiGirolamo wanted to know why his application for the position has been refused. He was told that it was because it had been withdrawn from the agenda of a past meeting whereupon it was then asked how his application could have been taken into executive session at that. Although an effort was made to nominate him for the position, he declined.

School committee chairman Frank England noted that although it is unusual to have an administrator serve as a coach, DeGirolamo would have made "A fine football coach."

APPOINTMENT

Carol Lash has been appointed by the school committee as a teacher at the Deer Hill School at $12,212.

REIMBURSEMENT DENIED

In a no-action 3-3 vote, school committee voted down a request for up to $800 in travel reimbursement for guidance head Jack Leary to attend the National Guidance Conference in Detroit.

Leary is not only president elect of the National Association of Guidance Counselors but also would have been the league delegate from New England. Due to the lack of funding, Leary said that he will have to withdraw as president.

At the conference, Leary felt he would had the opportunity to speak with admission counselors from competitve colleges. School committee member Diana Kornet underlined the necessity of funding such trips because "the guidance department is our link with the outside world."

However, committee member Patricia Walsh suggested that the money could be better spent by sending Leary around to the various colleges for direct public relations and contact with admission officers.

To my friends and supporters:

I urge you to support and vote for James Carroll whom I strongly endorse for the seat on the Governor's Council in the 4th Council District.

I have known Jim for many years. He is a fine family man. He is committed to principals. He is a person who always helps others. He is not afraid to take a stand no matter how unpopular it is. He has courage and is our man.

Selectmen

In addition, the petition stipulates that no one selectmen, beginning with the 1981 Annual Elections, would be permitted to hold more than two consecutive terms as a selectman.

Most residents interviewed on the matter were hit by surprise with the question, and said they'd like to "think on it." Doris Golden, former unsuccessful candidate for selectman, and former school committee member, said she would be against expanding the board of selectmen to five members. "But I'm not dead against it."

"You'd certainly get things moving with a five-man board," Eric Pearson said.

"If it would provide a broader insight, yes. But would we have candidates to run? We have qualified people in this town, but they're too busy to run," Rita Strong said.

Selectman Chairman Arthur Clark fe[el] five-member board would dilute the responsi[bility] of the selectmen, and makes things more [difficu]lt to accomplish. "Hull and Scituate went fro[m] ree to five member boards and now they'd like [to go] back to three. People are free to call [with] problems...the bigger the board, the har[der] it is to accomplish anything."

purchase before they would be able to access the situation, i.e. extent of indebtedness to the town, effect on the tax rate, the bond issue, and an estimate of what the sale of fire station properties in North Cohasset and Beechwood would bring the town, as offsets to the Cohasset Motors purchase.

Bates said "In effect, the Beechwood Fire Station is closed now." He added while two fire trucks would be garaged at Cohasset Motors, the greatest asset to the town of the building would be as a highway garage. According to Bates, the building could house an ambulance, boat, and it has a grease pit which could be used to repair fire apparatus and repairs on all town machinery.

Ronald Beal, a member of the garage committee, said his committee definitely recommended it. "Highway department facilities are inadequate. Tree and wire departments could also be based here."

In addition, Clark said the school committee, concerned over continued vandalism to school busses, would be interested in using the lot to store busses...where firemen could act as watchmen for the busses.

Peter Laugelle, tree and park superintendent, said he presently has to store his equipment all over town because of inadequate facilities. "When I use a truck for spraying, I have to take the truck home, and the sprays, because I can't store the sprays safely at the highway department. Winter equipment is stored in Hingham."

Clark said the town pays $10,000 a year to rent the building for the tree and highway depar[tments], and $7,000 to rent space for the school busse[s].

Business-wise women featured in LWV house tour

"This is not an ordinary house tour," League of Women Voters member Martha Soule cautioned us recently.

"There are two things which make this tour unusual. One is the inclusion of the newly-renovated Lothrop House, and the other is the fact that the women who own the homes being shown are all in business for themselves."

The Cohasset League of Women Voters is sponsoring the House Tour Wednesday, October 15. Tickets cost $8 and can be purchased at four Cohasset locations: The Wee Spinnaker, In Stitches, Philip Smith's Creation Interiors, and Cookworks.

Lunch will be available at the Unitarian Parish House from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The tour includes a showing of eight homes scattered throughout the town...one of which is owned by Nancy and William Clapp. The Clapp home is full of both Nancy's artistic touches and William's carpentry skills.

In every room of this Cape home — on the walls, floors, cupboards and furniture — are examples of the early New England art of stenciling.

Nancy started stencilling when she was three years old. At the time, her mother was into bronze powder stencilling (Hitchcock stencilling). When she reached her teenage years, she began making her own stencils for fun.

Presently, she "cuts" commercially for Factory Paint in Pembroke and Weymouth and three additional companies, all of who frequently commission her to cut a new stencil for a customer wishing to match a particular drapery, or furniture pattern.

She also visits other people's homes to consult with them about decorating with stencils. And several times a week she holds stencilling classes in her home. Nancy's stencilled pillow cases, shams and curtains are available for purchase at The Linen Chest in Cohasset.

In her fourth year of teaching the art of stencilling, Nancy has seen over 400 students. She charges a modest $20 per four-period course, which would be a nice Christmas gift for someone.

For 18 years Nancy worked in the social service area with the food stamp and social referral program in Scituate. She and William also find time to volunteer their services to the community, as regular school committee watchers, and more recently Nancy assumed the chairmanship of the health teacher/coordinator screening committee.

But her real love is being at home, more or less, and running her own business from that pivotal point. She advises using acrylic paints for stencilling, on either oil or water base painted walls. She cautions that once a wall is painted with oil — the homeowner should continue with the same base paint.

The Clapp home is practically decorated and without carpeting, because the childrens' allergies require a limited use of fabrics and carpeting.

Swim team absent from South Shore League

This year the Cohasset Swim Team took a year's leave of absence from the South Shore League when it was discovered Cohasset would only be able to compete against two teams...Hanover and Duxbury ...three other towns having also dropped out of the League.

And it is the feeling of many Cohasset Swim Team kids and parents that Cohasset should just stay out of the South Shore League forever.

According to Fay Camardo, president of the Swim Team Steering Committee, Hanover and Duxbury both have indoor pools and year-round teams and are very competitive. And according to just about everybody on or working with the Cohasset Swim Team, Hanover has a bad attitude regarding competitive events.

"Hanover protests everything," Bill Reynolds, a guard at the Cohasset Swim Center and a judge at various swim team events, confirmed last week. They're just not fun to swim.

What does the South Shore League provide? Robert Knox, president of the Cohasset Swim Center, said scheduling is just about the only advantage for staying with the League...but then poor scheduling was the reason Cohasset took a leave this year.

This summer Cohasset scheduled its own events with Hanson, Randolph, Boston College, Dedham and Norwood and won every event except Boston College.

"The key to any group is participation by everybody. We have kids who can compete at a higher level, but in a majority of cases, most kids can't. It would cost money to split the Swim Team group into two teams, one of which would swim competitively in the league while the other swam in non-league events," Knox said.

According to Knox, even when the South Shore League is able to provide a full compliment of teams to swim against, those teams are either largely very competitive, or have difficulty getting teams together to compete. There seems to be no in between.

Ms. Camardo said there was one drawback in being outside of the league. "We didn't have a lot of diving competition. The teams we competed against just didn't have divers. And this year we did have complaints from parents, who wanted their kids to have a chance to swim in All-Star meets. But then 180 kids will never all get to compete in All-Star meet."

Mary O'Brien, a strong supporter of the Swim Team even before there was a pool in town, feels a more competitive swimming league is desirable.

"I feel this year was fun for the kids. I have a 13-year old who got to swim every meet. But I don't feel there was as much dedication or interest among parents of Swim Team members. It's not the same when you're racing your own team."

Ms. O'Brien claims there was poor parental turnout for meets. She added there was a big difference in parental involvement between last summer and this summer. "With 180 kids swimming there should be 100 parents watching." But her biggest problem with withdrawing from the South Shore League completely, is that more competitive kids won't meet "real, fine competition."

Knox suggested that more competitive kids might join outside swim leagues in order to get better races. But Ms. O'Brien, who went that route before the days of the Cohasset pool, said it's a tough row to hoe. After one year of driving to the Quincy YMCA pool where her youngsters competed for the Quincy Team, even her kids decided it wasn't their "cup of tea."

Erin O'Brien, diving coach for the Cohasset Swim Team, felt at least two of her divers could have taken first place this year in the South Shore League: Alice Bowdoin (12 and under) and Merry Barcomb, (16 and under). Erin said unfortunately, this was Merry's last year for swim team competition.

Sue Jackson, mother of several fine swimmers, said she would opt for going back into the League only if there were more towns to swim. She had considered taking her kids to Harvard for competition, but was put-off by swim hours, 6-8 a.m. "And competing in AAU is a real hassle."

Mary O'Brien is still optimistic that the Cohasset Swim Team can have its cake and eat it too. She said the group has been split before...into A & B teams...the A team swimming the League meets and the B teams participating in inter-squad competition and some outside competitions.

But whatever is decided, Knox said volunteers will be needed to make it possible. "We have to have people who are going to participate. There can be changes in programs, but we need people to help implement them. Many of Cohasset's finest athletics go off to prep school. We're the smallest team in the league.

"This summer our emphasis was on participation and having fun."

Boys' Cross Country Team — sure winners

Among the most competitive teams in Cohasset this year will be the Boys' Cross Country Team guided by Coach O'Niel who many say is a running genius.

New training techniques imposed by O'Niel last year will be used again as they hope to improve upon last year's 6-2 record. The loss of Scott Benbow to graduation, probably the greatest distance runner in C.H.S. history, will not render that big of an effect on the team, mainly because of the extremely talented assortment of freshmen and sophomores such as Charlie Tebbeis, Paul (I'm not smiling) Johnson, Mark Brown, Steve Bowen, and Mike Mahoney.

These ringers will be joining such seasoned veterans as co-captains Chris McNabb and Mike (Stickman) Ellis, Jamie Replogle and Mike Glasteld.

"What we lack in quantity, we gain in quality," stated the Stickman. "We have a group of five of six who will always be able to place in the top 10. This will keep the score way down."

Make the journey up to the high school some Tuesday or Thursday afternoon and see these true athletes. The team should be a good one.

Mary Jeanette lets her team down

It won't go down in history books, but spectators and players (especially the Scituate players) will be talking about the triple play in last Sunday's softball game.

Scituate town officials outplayed Cohasset officials in the last game of the season, with all proceeds from sponsors going to the Jimmy Fund.

This second game between the two towns was held on Cohasset's home turf in Beechwood, which took away any edge Scituate may have held on home ground with the umpires.

Scituate took an early lead in the first inning with eight runs by Gerry Dwight, Scituate's strong-arm pitcher, Bill Stone, Don Bates, Gary Dwight, Walter Stewart, Bill Jenkins, Bill McGowan and Jimmy Young.

Cohasset only got one run by Dicky Barrows. Missing was Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray who forgot all about the sporting event. Had she come the first inning score undoubtedly would have been higher.

Cohasset added another run by J. Gallagher in the second inning, but the real fun came in the third inning when a line drive to pitcher Dwight bounced off his finger tips into the glove of second baseman Jenkins who caught it before it hit the ground.

Jenkins made a quick toss to Mike Loring at second who then tossed to first base to John Kulevich for an outstanding triple play.

"We thought we were watching the Red Sox," was a comment from a spectator.

Democrats crowd State Representative race

Tuesday, Democrats and Independents will select "the man" best able to defeat "the woman" — State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray (R) of the Third Plymouth District that includes Cohasset, Hingham and Hull.

Cohasset's Ted Ford is one of our men looking for the right to take on Murray. At 32, he is making his first serious effort to obtain public office. Monday, Ford said he wore out two pair of shoes over the summer and visited over 7,000 homes in between Hingham and Hull.

"The hot issue in Hull is gambling. I've moderated my views on the issue somewhat. I still disapprove of gambling — I'm still worried by the same old thing — organized crime. But I have an open mind about it."

Residents in the district, Ford said, are primarily concerned about the property tax rate, legislation for relief, and a revision of the State's tax structure. "Tax reform is inevitable," Ford said.

The key to the revitalization of state-wide industry, Ford feels, is for the state to be competitive in attracting industry. "Transportation is very important in all three towns."

Ford feels confident about the primary. "I've done my work."

What will he need from Cohasset to win? "About 700 votes from the Independents and liberal Republicans."

Ford grew up in Cohasset where he attended public schools. After graduation from the University of Connecticut with a B.A. in economics, he did graduate work in economics at George Washington University. He served two years in the Peace Corps, and from 1973-79 he was a career diplomat for the U.S. Department of State and served in Washington and at American Embassies overseas.

Hull's John Conwell, a 36 year-old attorney with a practice in Hull, is also concerned about a light voter turnout. Nor does he like the polling hours this year. "Many of my constituents won't be able to vote with the polling hours moved up from 6 a.m. to 10 a.m. to 8 p.m."

Conwell feels it will take a big effort to unseat Rep. Murray. "But it will be a very noble effort."

Conwell has spent several years in the law enforcement field, and he said the reason he decided to run for representative of the district is because he got angry about the "split district" recently gerrymandered by the legislature.

"It (the three-town district) is a nice place, but it needs a whole lot of protection. If you don't learn to play the legislative game at their level...you lose out on various things. We're abandoned here. I'm convinced of it."

Conwell said he foresees a time when the errors of "past omission" could result in oil derricks in the district's ocean backyards.

Conwell has no doubt that economically, things can happen legislatively. And he thinks he's the man to make it happen.

Two Hingham men are also vying for Murray's seat: Richard Doherty and Edmund Demko. Two years ago Demko almost seized the party nomination, but was beaten in the primary by Caroline Stouffer, who after the redistricting, lost to Murray.

An industrial insurance specialist, 53 years of age, Demko is also concerned with transportation, at both the state and in-town level.

Demko also wants an indepth study of mono-rail service.

Doherty, 31, is a salesman for a Weymouth medical supply company. He has a degree in political science, and said he is in favor of affordable rail and boat transportation.

Doherty, as his rivals do, favors passage of the bottle bill and lowering the drinking age.

School Committee briefs

OPEN HOUSE

School committee members and the communication councils will co-sponsor a reception for the new school superintendent set for sometime in October and have authorized that up to $500 be spent.

CHS MUSICAL

School committee has tabled appointing a senior class play advisor until its next meeting and members want input from the class as a whole as to the type of play they want and the time of production.

Beth Goff has applied to direct the seniors in a musical but school principal Richard Streeter told committee members that the seniors had decided against doing a musical because of the high costs involved. He said that Ron Emmons, a member of the high school staff had agreed to do a comedy and although Emmons had not applied for the position in time for the deadline, Streeter recommended his appointment because he has held the position in the past.

SENIOR PRIVILEGES

When senior privileges go into effect, this Thursday, students will still be allowed use of the courtyard and also the possibility of signing out of the new study hall to go into the cafeteria when it is not being used for eating purposes. The one privilege seniors have lost this year is the use of the area which is now the new study hall as an unsupervised area.

School committee members, this week, held two executive sessions to discuss custodial and secretarial grievances.

TARDY STUDENTS

Starting next Monday, students at the high school will be required to remain after school for an amount of time equal to the number of minutes they were late with a 15 minute minimum. Provisions have been made to supervise those students who will stay in excess of the time required for teachers to stay.

BUS LEASE

School committee has renewed its bus lease with Charles Pape for one year at $3875 and 26 cents per mile.

TRUANT OFFICER

Police Chief John DeBassio has been appointed as the attendance officer at an annual salary of $800.

Cohasset Boosters, Inc. annual meeting

The Cohasset Boosters, Inc. will hold their annual meeting on Sunday, Sept. 14, at 7:30 p.m. at the American Legion Hall.

If you are interested in boys' or girls' sports and associated activities at CHS you are invited and encouraged to attend. The Boosters need new members with new ideas as to how to best support all sports activities at CHS.

The Cohasset Boosters, Inc. were organized several years ago by a group of sports enthusiasts who felt that most of the interscholastic teams, both boys and girls, at CHS were not given enough special attention or support. As a result the Boosters hold an awards banquet at the end of each sports season whereby all athletes, cheerleaders, and band participants are guests of the Boosters for dinner.

Some 200 students are presented their letters, certificates, and special awards by the team coaches. A special award, the "Boosters Trophy," is given to one member of each varsity team voted by his/her teammates to have shown the most team spirit and enthusiasm throughout the season.

Parents of the athletes are invited to attend the dinners for a nominal donation to help defray expenses. If you are willing to give up one evening a month for an hour, the Boosters will welcome your participation.

The Cohasset Boosters will be holding their only fund raising event of the year on Friday, Sept. 19.

A dance will be held at Kimball's-By-The-Seafrom 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. and will feature a great band called "All That Jazz." Tickets are $8 per couple and can be purchased at the door or by phoning 383-6182 in advance.

This is your opportunity to support ALL sports at CHS, so mark your calendar for the dance and to come to the annual meeting on Sept. 14.

Scituate game

Cohasset got two runs on a homer by Gallagher in the fourth inning, three runs in the fifth by pitcher Jimmy McAuliffe, Arthur Clark (he still has some get up and go) and D. Wadsworth. Scituate got its ninth run on a hit by Loring and added the 10th on a homer by Jenkins to make the score 10-7.

Bob Tis and Wadsworth added two more runs in the sixth inning to make it 10-9 but the Scituate might stopped any further runs.

In the seventh inning Jenkins came up with another run for the frosting on the cake to make it 11-9. A neat double play saved the day and prevented Cohasset from scoring.

So far Scituate has raised close to $1,400, Cohasset $500 and about $50 fro a soda sales by Lonborg and Scott siblings, to a total of close to $2,000 for the Jimmy Fund.

Skipper machine romps over Cardinal Spellman 22-6

The Skipper football team had another informal scrimmage Saturday. This time vx. Cardinal Spellman. The Skipper machine seemed to have a certain new vigor that was not present early last season as they charged onto the field with the momentum they gained in last week's romp over St. Patricks.

This momentum snowballed on that hot Saturday morning as the Skippers, with Tim Libby back at the helm, rolled over Spellman 22-6.

The men, in blue (brand new shirts) came out fast with two touchdowns in the first half while the defense shut Spellman completely off.

The first T.D. was on a Libby connection to Mark Froio right across the middle and into the end zone. Bob Donahue took the pigskin into the endzone. Bob Donahue took the pigskin into the end zone not too long after.

After the half, Seplman drove in for a T.D. but this did not phase the Skippers as they took advantage of a turnover and drove forward to the Spellman one yard line.

A mighty goal-line defense kept the skipper running backs out for three downs but on the fourth try, Libby faded back and connected with Mark Froio with a pass that ricocheted right off a Spellman defensive back's shoulder pads and into a quick thinking Froio's hands.

Mark Gunville then crased through the line to complete the conversion and put the Skippers ahead to stay.

"The team has a terrific outlook and a certain spark that will take the Skippers a long way this season," says Skipper lineman Rob Whelan.

Coach Leone's Skippers have their first game this Saturday against Pope John on their home field.

The Skippers have proven their vitality so come up to Milliken field Saturday and see them under real game conditions.

Building permits issued in July & August

Building Inspector James Litchfield collected $1,097 in building permit fees in July and August, and part of September for work valued at $508,257. Compared to last year, work done was less...but it is thought that this is because Litchfield was away on a three-week vacation for the month of August.

Permits were issued as follows: Robert O'Brien, 32 Doane Street, remodeling, $1,500; Paul Hansel, 502 Beechwood St., remodeling, $20,000; Terence White, 354 Jerusalem Rd., temporary tent, $1,600; John Harrington, 131 Beechwood St., re-roofing, $2,000; William Lyons, 35 Hillside Dr., porch, $2,500; David Scott, 150 Linden Dr., fence, $500; Peter Hoss, 15 Parker Avenue, fence, $200; Charlotte Norris, 21 Beach St., reroof and repair, $3,100; Frederick Dolan, 262 No. Main St., shingle sidewall, $650; and James Shumaker, 74 Ledgewood Dr., fence, $200.

Also, John Atkinson, 36 Hillside Drive, fence, $3,297.93; David Ralff, 12 Lantern Lane, porch, $2,500; Michael McWilliams, 110 Beechwood St. reroof, $1,325; Crown Investment Corp. 760 CJC Hwy, partitions, $1,000; Jerusalem Rd. Chorale Arts sponsors membership party

Choral Art members are providing the refreshments — an inducement in itself, as audiences who have attended the Society's after-concert receptions will attest to.

Nancy White of Cohasset and Ruth Sibley of Norwell are in charge of the gala affair, and chairman of the board of directors John Chesley of Scituate will be on hand to welcome the guests, as well as other board members including Henry Dunbar and Alice Humez of Brant Rock, Ed Harris of Duxbury, Bettie Jane Ruggles of Marshfield, Diana LeClair of Scituate, Martha Hurtig of Cohasset, and last but far from least the Society's music director, William Sano.

Rehearsals for the Society's December 6th Christmas concert have begun, and new members are invited to attend the next few rehearsals, held Monday evenings at 8 o'clock in the function room of the Scituate Public Library, 85 Branch St. While no auditions are necessary, some musical experience is helpful.

A membership-raising cocktail party is the aim of the Choral Art Society, with the hope that musical consciousness will be raised as well. The invitational party will be held this coming Saturday, Sept. 13, from 5-8 p.m., at board member Nancy White's home in Cohasset. Current Choral Art singers are inviting prospective members to meet the conductor, William Sano, and the present members, as well as the Society's patrons, sponsors, and associates, many of whom are already well-known friends.

Auto tip

Put 20 gallons of gas in a four-cylinder car.

If one spark plug is missing, five out of every 20 gallons of gas is pumped out the exhaust pipe — wasted.

REEDS

from the kitchen

By Joan Pinkham

Though it never makes the best-seller lists, wins offers from Hollywood for film rights, or makes the Book-of-the-Month Club, a cookbook can be a gold mine for its author and publisher. Ginny Ansbergs is a natural foods' devotee and has sent us a copy of a recipe from the Moosewood Cookbook which she terms "a fantastic vegetarian cookbook." Everyone at her pot-luck supper asked for this recipe for

MUSHROOM AND CARROT LOAF

1 c. chopped onion
4 1/2 c. grated carrots
1 lb. chopped mushrooms, or more
5 eggs
2 cloves garlic
1 c. fresh wholewheat and rye bread crumbs
1 c. grated cheddar cheese, or other favorite cheese
1/4 c. butter
Salt, pepper, basil, thyme to taste

Crush garlic into melted butter. Add onions and mushrooms. Saute until soft. Combine all ingredients, saving half the cheese and 1/2 bread crumbs for topping. Season to taste. Spread in oblong baking pan. Top with bread crumbs and cheese and dot with butter. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 min., covered and 5 min. uncovered. You can also top with tomato slices or asparagus tips.

The first cookbook I bought many moons ago was the Better Homes and Gardens Cookbook published in 1950. Slightly the worse for wear, I still have it and use it for recipes that are now old favorites. I suppose one of the reasons this book is still around is that it was compiled by professionals working in spotless white kitchens, more like laboratories than my little pine-paneled room. I mention this because Ginny writes that she is curious to know if I try out all the recipes that appear in the column. The answer is a resounding "no!" First I would have to find the time to try out those I find most tempting and secondly, I can't subject my family to the role of guinea pig. What I do rely on is the fact that the recipes that are printed are favorites of our readers, sometimes having been in their family for several generations; sometimes a new discovery they share with us. That is usually guarantee enough for me. It's the little gremlins that haunt my typewriter that worry me the most. Well, to get back down to earth, last week we were talking Oysters Rockefeller. This week it's

TUNA ROCKEFELLER

1 7 oz. can tuna, turkey or chicken
1 pkg. [10 oz.] frozen spinach, cooked and drained
1/3 c. fine dry bread crumbs
2 T Parmesan cheese
1 T lemon juice
1/4 tsp. salt, dash pepper
1/2 c. mayonnaise

Combine tuna, spinach, bread crumbs, 2 T cheese, lemon juice, salt and pepper. Fold in mayonnaise. Spoon into individual shells, or 9" pie pan. Sprinkle with more Parmesan. Bake at 350 degrees approx. 20 min., or until thoroughly heated. Makes six servings.

* * *

Sometimes I think we might all become rich and famous if we published a book of recipes sent in by our clever readers. I'm sure a popular dessert would be Pat Reynolds'

PINEAPPLE CHEESE PIE

Unbaked 9" pie shell
1 lb. cream cheese [2 pkg. 8 oz.]
3 oz. butter or margarine
1/2 c. sugar
pinch salt
1 T vanilla
2 oz. milk
2 eggs, beaten
2 c. pineapple pie filling

Cream together cream cheese, butter and sugar. Add salt, vanilla, milk and eggs. Put pineapple filling in unbaked shell. Top with cheese mixture. Bake in 350 degree oven for approx. 40 min. Let cool before serving.

Angler's Corner

By Lindy Blaisdell

Striped migrate for two reasons, one is to spawn, (migrating up rivers to find suitable fresh water), two, to feed, (migrating up the coast chasing forage fish).

Bass are voracious feeders and will consume any kind of fish. Their menu consists mostly of herring, menhaden, flounders, mullet, eels, shad, anchovies, silver hake, sand eels, silversides, chubs, lance, lobsters, crabs, shrimp, squid, sea worms, soft clams and mussels. Mackerel when abundant are a favorite.

Stripers feed heaviest at night or on dark and cloudy days. At times when feeding on a particular bait they may become selective and ignore all plugs and lures that don't imitate their present meal.

RELEASING FISH

When returning your large or small mouth bass to be caught again, hold the bass firmly by the lower jaw (not by its body) and gently remove the hook. Never pull a hook from the fish's stomach, it's better to cut the line and let the hook work itself free.

If measuring your fish includes a board, be sure to wet the board. Bass have a protective slime covering to guard against fungus. Handling a fish with dry hands may remove this slime and endanger the fish.

If you plan on keeping your catch for a tournament weigh in or just a day's end picture, remember, your container should hold about one gallon of water for every ¼ pound of fish. A 15 inch bass would require about eight gallons of water.

TUNA

Daily catches of tuna are coming in to the dock at Green Harbor. If you'd like to see some of these seven, eight or 900 pound monsters, be there around supper time. The catch is down, although action is picking up. The Marine Fisheries may increase the daily catch to three.

FLOUNDER

Founder are showing up everywhere with good fishing out of Scituate Harbor and Duxbury Bay.

CO-HO

Co-ho salmon are showing up as incidental catches by striper fishermen. Randy Fairbanks (Div. of Marine Fisheries) predicts this to be one of the best years in their ten year program. Look for some salmon around 20 pounds.

CLAIM: The Bible says, "A nation without vision perisheth." I have a vision of the future and have been working since 1977 to expedite the transition to solar energy.

WORK EXPERIENCE: 1) Consultant for the U.S. Solar Energy Research Institute, Golden, Colorado (SERI).
2) East-coast representative for Alternative Directions in Energy and Economics, Inc.
3) Author of a paradigmatic Town Energy Plan for Hull, which Weymouth, Hingham, Cohasset, Scituate, Marshfield and Duxbury could undertake.
4) Provided information on ocean energy in 1977 to Congressman Gerry Studds, who filed M.R. 6154 in 1979.
President Carter signed the Ocean Thermal Energy Conversion Research, Development, and Demonstration Act on July 17, 1980.
LOCAL IMPACT: Solar ocean energy can mean $1.7 Billion added to Quincy, Mass. area economies and 7,000 jobs.
PERSONAL: 38 years old, a resident of Hull, married with 5 children, employed at the Walter E. Fernald State School for the Mentally Retarded and at Banner Glass in Waltham.
Thank you for your vote, September 16th.

If you want tougher judges Elect a stronger Governor's Council

PETER ELEEY thinks too many judges are soft on criminals. He should know, he was an Assistant District Attorney, and he's handled over a thousand criminal cases. He has seen judges give suspended sentences to multiple offenders. He has seen burglars get off on probation.

PETER ELEEY knows that if you want tougher judges, you need a tougher Governor's Council. That's why he pledged he won't approve any judges who can't get tough with criminals.

That's why you should vote for him for Governor's Council on September 16, 1980.

Melissa Huntwork wed to John Richardson

Mr. and Mrs. John Warren Richardson (Melissa Ann Huntwork) took a wedding trip to Bermuda after being married by Reverend John Keohane, at a double ring ceremony. A reception was held at The Cove, in Hingham.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Huntwork of Cohasset. Mr. Richardson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Richardson of Scituate.

The bride was attended by her cousin, Lanier Grassie. Bridesmaids, all cousins of the bride, were Katherine Spear of Scituate, Marguerite Spear of Scituate, Virginia McMahon of Brockton. Michele Migliaccio served as junior bridesmaid.

Karl S. Richardson of Marshfield was best man for his brother. Ushers were Richard Huntwork, brother of the bride, and Laurence Stenbeck of Scituate. Junior ushers were Ralph Colarusso of Brockton and Stephen Migliaccio.

The bride wore a gown of ivory and white, by Priscilla, with fitted bodice, portrait neckline with short capped sleeves of white English net appliqued with white Venice lace. The skirting was ivory organza with flared skirting and chapel train.

Her veil was an ivory illusion of walking length mantilla with appliques of white Alencon and Venice lace. The veiling had clusters of flowers of white organdy attached to the back veiling.

The bridesmaids gowns were peach chiffon with an empire bodice, tiny shoulder straps and chiffon capelet over the bodice. The skirting, A-line, fell softly to floor length.

Mrs. Richardson is employed by the Hair Affair. She graduated from Cohasset High School and Wilfred Academy. Mr. Richardson is a graduate of Scituate High School and Bentley College. He is the vice president of Parsons & Richardson Insurance Agency. The couple will reside in Hingham.

Mrs. John Richardson

Kalish to exhibit at Center opening

Have you ever wondered how artists create a stain painting? Louise Kalish, artist and art-lecturer from Quincy, will demonstrate the technique of mixing both brilliant and subtle colors into patterns and shapes on unprimed canvas at the South Shore Art Center Open House Sunday, September 14, starting at 4 p.m.

She will be glad to answer questions on both the technical and aesthetic aspects of stain painting.

Kalish teaches painting in both representational and abstract approaches at the Art Center and also serves as guide and lecturer for monthly tours of Boston Museums and Galleries for the Art Center and for Brandeis University.

Her work has been exhibited in Boston, New York and on the South Shore.

Will face Murray in Cohasset finale

Ford wins state rep nomination

Ted Ford of Cohasset won a convincing victory in Tuesday's Primary, topping three other challengers to win the Democratic nomination for State Representative.

He will face incumbent State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray who was unopposed for renomination on the Republican ballot.

Ford, a former foreign service officer and a newcomer to the political scene, received a total of 954 votes from the three-town district of Cohasset, Hull and Hingham. He had 363 Cohasset votes.

Murray's three-town total was 909 votes.

Ford's nearest rival, Edmund Demko of Hingham, received 712 votes. Richard Doherty of Hingham was third with 683 votes, followed by John Conwell of Hull who got 671 votes.

Turnout was light in Cohasset, with only 18 per cent or 876 of the town's 4,771 registered voters showing up to vote. Voting was light throughout the tri-town district.

Ford's Campaign Manager, Peter Pratt, fresh off the Kennedy Campaign, said Tuesday morning, "We have a very, very tough campaign. It's a tough political situation. But I think we can win it. Politically, it's feasible to do it. Ted has appealed to the imagination of voters. I think Ford's position and Murray's positions are quite different. Philosophically, they have very different ideas about what they think government can do for this district. And I think you'll find the Boston press focusing in on the November race."

Rep. Murray could not be reached for comment before deadline.

The Republican ballot had no Republican races going for it this year, and, predictably, few Republicans bothered to go to the polls.

DEMOCRATIC BALLOT

The breakdown of the Cohasset ballot read as follows for the representative race: Ford, 363; Demko, 43; Conwell and Doherty tied with 41 votes.

Cohasset totals were as follows: Congressman Gerry Studds, unchallenged, received 412 votes and 110 blanks. In the councillor race, James Carroll of Cohasset topped the Cohasset ballot with 322 votes William Walsh received 44, Peter Elley 67, Patrick Corcoran 31 and Harold O'Brien 10 votes.

New tax rate $54.75, up $5.75

Get ready to pay your tax bills November 1, pronto!

The tax rate has been officially set at 54.75 per $1,000 assessed valuation. Bills will be mailed in the next two weeks, Assessor Warren Pratt said Tuesday.

"We picked up one and a quarter million in valuation of properties," Pratt said, which helped to head off an even large increase in taxes. But cherry sheet returns were, unfortunately, lower than last year.

Nothing's included in this bill except Annual Town Meeting 1980 appropriations . . . salaries and a few small purchases. As of January 1, homes and businesses in town will be reassessed at their full value. Reassessments will be done by computer and will not involve home visits.

Smaller School Board sought

Riding close on the heels of a petition article asking the town to vote to increase the three-man board of selectmen to five members, is a petition article asking the town to decrease the six-man school committee by one member.

James Leonard, spokesman for the school committee article, said he hoped to be able to submit the petition article in time for the Special October Town Meeting, and to have it be in effect for 1981 Annual Town Elections.

Leonard said presently 10 persons are circulating the petition throughout the town, "And it's met with much enthusiasm. We are an impartial group of citizens who feel the school committee could operate more effectively with five members," Leonard said.

Selectmen called for a special town meeting last week, saying they would name the official date at this week's meeting.

Pumper won't fit so Beechwood station closes

By Tanna Kasperowicz

Without warning or notice to residents or town officials, Fire Chief Charles Piepenbrink closed down the one-engine fire station on Beechwood Street last week...leaving residents of the area in a quandry over lack of fire protection.

Selectman Chairman Arthur Clark said he first learned of the closing of the station last Friday, and had already made plans to meet with residents of the Beechwood Street area and Chief Piepenbrink, at their meeting this week.

In the meantime, petitioners are canvassing the area, and will appeal to Chief Piepenbrink and selectmen that the town maintain the station until such time as other alternatives for the protection of the area are made. This week selectmen were expected to name the date for a Special October Town Meeting at which voters will act on an article asking the town to purchase Cohasset Motors, on Route 3-A, to be used as a highway department building, and a fire station for two trucks.

Accordingly, the use of both North Cohasset and Beechwood Fire Stations would be ultimately discontinued if voters act affirmatively on the article.

Sunday, Chief Piepenbrink said he closed the Beechwood Street station because the new pumper won't fit into the station. Up until last week he had continued to utilize a smaller pumping engine which was recently retired from service due to the purchase of a new pumper. "I felt it (the closing of the station) was the best thing to do," he said.

Although residents of the Beechwood Street area said they had heard Chief Piepenbrink was short some firemen as a result of recent retirements, Chief Piepenbrink said. Sunday, that manpower was not the problem.

When asked if the town could have ordered a smaller pumper, to fit the Beechwood Station, Chief Piepenbrink said: "They don't make pumpers that small anymore.

The Beechwood Street area of town is a growing area, with many new homes having been constructed there over the past year. Several residents of the area have already been in contact with the State Fire

Health Board sets new animal rules

By Tanna Kasperowicz

The Cohasset Board of Health acted with mercy and understanding, as horse owners, fowl, poultry and cleft-footed animal lovers and owners dissected its basic draft regulations regarding the keeping of domesticated animals, this week.

Rotary Hall held an overflowing crowd...with not a few persons having to stand in the kitchen of the hall. It is expected the regulations will go into effect some time this fall, after the board cleans up some minor points which were taken issue with at Monday's meeting.

For instance, there will be a fee for stable inspections, but the fee has not yet been determined. Larry Mitchell said he would resent being "taxed" again (proposed $5 stable inspection fee) for his stable. Mitchell and several others made a point when they said the town already taxed them for having stables on their properties.

"Duffy" Wheelwright said he had to pay the town $400 "for a little shack." Health Board Member Dr. Michael Bliss retorted: "Yes, but you're not getting any services for your taxes. You'd be getting an inspection in this case."

Roosters will require a special permit and the

Bid award

Eastern Gunite of Waltham, high bidder, received a $7,500 contract award from selectmen to repair the cement wall at Cunningham Bridge. Selectmen rejected low bidder, Michael Bonomi of North Scituate, because they felt he did not have enough experience in wall repairs.

Transfer asked

Selectmen were scheduled to meet with the advisory committee Tuesday to ask for money to keep the police station clean. They will request a transfer from free cash. In addition, money will be asked for to install police radios in the highway and tree department vehicles.

Hearing

One, or possibly two public hearings will he held on the application of Frances J. Marks (Marks Service Station) to install a 4,000 gallon tank for holding diesel fuel. Presently, diesel fuel cannot be purchased in Cohasset.

Fire Chief Charles Piepenbrink has signed the application for the sale of diesel fuel. Selectmen said last week it appears as if Marks Service Station is located in wetlands area, which would require a hearing by the conservation commission, in addition to a hearing by selectmen. No date was set.

CHS sports nuts

Cohasset's Cards & Shards has those little "nut" people mounted on plaques, holding little signs: tennis nut, music nut, football nut, whatever. Now we know who they're selling them to: 40 per cent of the CHS student population.

Athletic Director Clark Chatterton said the CHS student population has once again turned out in droves for CHS teams. Specifically:

Thirty-five students signed up for varsity football, 37 for freshman football, 19 for boys' soccer, 25 for junior boys' soccer, 15 for cross country (including three girls), 10 for junior high cross country.

Also, 47 girls signed on for girls' soccer, 18 tried out for cheerleading, and 41 went out for field hockey.

People looking for rides

The Massachusetts DPW has supplied the following names of persons to selectmen who are interested in commuting together: Lisa Lauer of 119 N. Main Street (she works in Government Center in Boston — she wants a ride only) Malisa Daniels of 57 Smith Place (she works in the VA clinic — she'd like to share driving); and Walter Bohmer of 45 Pleasant Street (he works in Westwood).

Resignation

Leonard Larence has resigned his commission on the personnel committee. Persons interested in being appointed to the seat should contact Jean Cotton, chairman of the advisory committee, Selectman Chairman Arthur Clark, or Moderator David Place.

Award

Edward Goff Co. has been awarded a $3,450 contract to reshingle the Bates Building. The Goff Co. was the only bidder. Budgeted amount for the work was $3,500.

Selectmen meeting

Selectmen will meet Tuesday, Sept. 23, instead of Wednesday, Sept. 24, in order that they might attend a county meeting.

Open house for supt.

An open house for new CHS Superintendent Eugene Crowell is scheduled to be held Sunday, October 26, at Osgood School from 4 to 6 p.m. Reserve this date and time on your calendar!

The regular Tuesday lunches will start Sept. 23 at the First Parish, Cohasset.

All Cohasset Senior Citizens are invited and welcome to attend.

TWO WAYS TO GET HELP FOR YOUR DOWN AND OUT TEENAGER.

Many young people with average to above average intelligence are unmotivated, underachieving, failing students. They're down on school, down on adults, down on themselves. One way or another, they've taken themselves out of the running for an education. But they can be helped.

If you have a "down and out" teenager, there are two things you can do:

1. Contact The Center for Alternative Education. CAE is an accredited, Chapter 766-approved day school that combines a therapeutic academic curriculum with strong practical counseling. Eighty-five percent of the students who have attended CAE have gone on to complete high school.
2. Contact the Massachusetts Department of Education, Division of Special Education, for information about your specific rights and means to help under Chapter 766.

For more information on Fall Admissions, call (617) 261-3313.

consent of abutters. At one point during discussion Chairman Marilyn Sweeney noted the board had not required, as do some other towns, that a rooster's voice box be removed.

Misunderstanding Ms. Sweeney's statement, Selectman Chairman Arthur Clark, who was standing in the kitchen of Rotary Hall, made a general statement in support of the right to keep domesticated animals and then said: "Do I understand you're going to require all roosters to have their voice boxes removed? I love to hear a rooster crow."

DRAFT DECISIONS

1. It will cost poultry, fowl, and cleft-footed animal owners $2 for a flock or herd (more than 6) of any of these three categories of animals.

2. Horses may not "dayhop" on a regular basis and not for more than 24 hours. This decision was basically agreed upon, but the board said it would take the wording under advisement. Originally, the board said the regulation would be that a horse could not "dayhop" for more than a three-hour period, and could only visit a registered stable. Kathy Morgan and others said this would be against their (human's) constitutional rights.

Paula Knowles noted that the President of the United States had recommended that people use alternative means of transportation, and said three-hour visits would discourage the use of horses as transportation.

3. People wishing to stable horses will have to produce a certified plan of their property, including the location of abutters' residences, property lines, drywells, cesspools, septic systems, streams, etc. Plans for poultry and fowl may be hand-drawn.

4. An exercise ring for a horse is permitted anywhere on the property. A corral must be 25' from the property line. A stable must be 50' from any dwelling or property line. Both a corral and stable must be 20' from the owner's dwelling.

5. No permit for a stable will be permitted unless 25,000 sq. ft. of land is available for one horse, 50,000 sq. ft. for two horses, 70,000 for three, and an additional 20,000 sq. ft. per horses numbering more than three.

6. Although the board of health said animals could be impounded by the board of health if rules were not obeyed, Kathy Morgan said she felt the impounding of an animal might also be against an owner's constitutional rights, and if animals were to be impounded, a court order would have to be issued. An appeal to any board of health decision would be through the health board and then the courts.

7. Variances — Chairman Sweeney said the board would not be vindictive against any horse, and that variances to the health regulations would be considered. Any stable operating satisfactorily previous to the issue of the 1972 regulations would be granted an automatic variance from stable plans, stable floor plans. Set backs would also be grandfathered in.

Persons owning horses after 1972 will be given three months to go before the board for a variance.

8. Yearly permits will be required for the keeping of all domesticated animals.

9. Stables and corrals for horses must be kept clean. And "suitable" fencing must be provided. The height of the fencing will be left up to the owner. But stall gates and the paddock must have horseproof latches.

New Osgood School library dedication

It was a windy afternoon and perhaps not all of the kids heard Jack Creamer's remarks. The principal of the Osgood School spoke to the 279 students about a special room, a place where dreams and ideas are found:

"We are here today to dedicate our new library. To dedicate means to set aside for a special purpose. Today we are setting aside this room for our new library.

"As you visit, as you borrow books and go home and read them, you will travel to new places, meet new people and you will dream special dreams that only children dream...

"I encourage you to use (the library) and dream those dreams."

The young voices sang "It's A Small World After All" and watched their principal cut a ribbon which officially opened the Osgood Library.

Most of the children probably didn't fully understand what took place. But the grownups present — many parents, teachers and staff — nodded while Mr. Creamer spoke. They knew the dreams he talked about and they felt the magic in the cheerful room full of books.

Apologies to St. Anthony's

The headline which appeared on last week's article regarding a senior citizen's luncheon and Mass to be held at St. Anthony's Tuesday, September 16, was decidedly inappropriate. And parishioners from St. Anthony's told us so in no uncertain terms.

While we meant no disrespect, we're sorry parishioners were insulted.

We hope the luncheon was a great success...and we hope our apology, for an affront we never meant, is accepted.

School Comm. defaults on travel expenses

To the Editor:

Dollars for additional coaches not in the budget, dollars, $500.00, for a reception for the new superintendent, but no dollars for Mr. Jack Leary to attend a conference that could benefit a large number of students seeking to further their education.

Saddest part of all is that Mr. Leary, High School Guidance Counselor, came before the school committee in early spring of this year to announce that he had earned the high honor of being nominated to the presidency of the New England branch of a fine educational organization dealing with college admissions etc. He asked if he should pursue the nomination knowing some travel would be involved. The school committee encouraged him to accept the honor but did not mention their not wanting to give him funds for the travel.

It is very sad when a member of our school department receives such an honor and has it dashed away at the eleventh hour. The conference is in October and he would represent New England.

To make matters worse, the school committee could have given Mr. Leary their vote on Aug. 28 when they first had the warrant for the expense on their agenda. At that meeting the matter was tabled despite the fact that Mr. Leary needed to make reservations and was present at the meeting to answer any questions that might arise. Instead, as is not uncommon in their deliberations, the committee made Mr. Leary wait until September 8 for an answer.

If the school committee wished to place travel money in another area it should have been done quite a while ago or planned for the next year. Guidance related travel could be handled in many ways. The key is planning in advance, not as someone is about to go off to a conference.

We would say the inability of the New England President to attend the national conference dealing with college admissions etc. is quite a black eye to our reputation with admissions offices. For those so concerned with what admissions staff think of Cohasset applicants, you blew it.

Bill & Nancy Clapp

NEACAC president cannot attend meeting

[ED.'s note: The following letter was sent to the Cohasset School Committee and to the Mariner for publication.]

Dear Committee Members:

Re: Mr. John J. Leary, Guidance Director

I was totally shocked to read of your committee's defeat of an expenditure request by Mr. Leary of $800 to attend the annual conference of NEACAC, an organization of which he is president.

I believe your vote to be an insult to Mr. Leary's professionalism. This episode may be an inducement to other towns to woo this gentleman who must be smarting mightily. It will be our loss.

When we moved to Cohasset three and one half years ago, Mr. Leary was our son's guidance counselor. Throughout our son's transition, Mr. Leary was cooperative, friendly, professional, and available. He met with my husband and me and met frequently with our son. He never failed to return a call.

Later, our son applied to approximately ten colleges. Even though this was excessive, our guidance people responded cheerfully and promptly under Mr. Leary's able administration.

Now for the perfect example of Mr. Leary's professional ability: Our son was accepted at his first choice college which is my husband's alma mater and also Mr. Leary's alma mater.

We were urging our son to accept a place at what was our first choice, and he seemed reluctant. I talked with Mr. Leary. I really pressed for his valued opinion. Mr. Leary knew of our hopes — but he advised our boy should attend another of the colleges to which he had been accepted. My son was happy.

Mr. Leary had affirmed the decision my son had already made because that school was best for him.

I am sure Mr. Leary affords every student the same measure of himself.

I believe it is imperative that your committee reconsider your vote forthwith, and, if you are very, very lucky Mr. Leary may consider your earlier vote nothing more than poor judgment and relieve this poor resident of her terrible feeling of embarrassment over your committee's gaffe.

Diane C. Sullivan
Jerusalem Road

P.S. Maybe six members is one member too many on our school committee. It wasn't too long ago that an adamant tie vote of your committee put the town through a great trauma over a location for a sewerage treatment plant.

Beechwood station

COHASSET 1920

Another big advance in the same year [1920] was the rebuilding of the "ugly twins," as the two little fire houses at the Cove were called. By the ingenious designing of architect George F. Newton, the Zaccheus Rich Hose House and the Hook and Ladder House became one building. The new pumping engine could just be squeezed into the new structure.

The Narrative History of Cohasset, Volume II, p. 125
Pratt

It appears Cohasset has a history of purchasing fire pumpers too large (or almost too large) for their station. Perhaps the fire truck building companies are in league with the fire station builders, or the reverse.

While it's true the Beechwood Fire Station has long been in need of repair, general renovation...the newest dilemma is even more mind-boggling. The new pumper doesn't fit into the Beechwood Station.

The little retired pumper still fits, but if its use were to be continued, there would be nobody to drive the new pumper. It would be more or less sitting in mothballs.

Fire Chief Charles Piepenbrink's answer to this dilemma has been to close down the Beechwood Fire Station. But that recent action raises another important question — as the town plans to consider the purchase of Cohasset Motors on Route 3-A at an October Special Town Meeting.

Plans call for the town to shut down both North Cohasset and Beechwood Street Fire Stations, and to consolidate those stations at the Cohasset Motors location. But if residents of Beechwood Street and the surrounding area can safely be covered by Central Fire Station at the present time, why do we need a fire station on Route 3-A?

Was fire protection the chief's major concern in closing the station? Can the new pumper operating out of Central Fire Station afford Beechwood Street residents better protection than the little retired pumper operating out of the Beechwood Street Station?

And why wasn't the public put on notice? All of these questions should have been discussed, and publicly.

The chief is autonomous. He is a strong fire chief. But the chief should remember that he is autonomous because residents have given him that autonomy. Public officials don't just close down school buildings or fire stations without advance warning.

Beechwood fire station locked up tight

To the Editor:

Where oh where is the Beechwood fire protection?

For years on Town Meeting floor the area residents expressed their desire to have the area covered by its neighborhood station.

Suddenly the station is locked tight and no neighborhood meeting was held to discuss the matter.

Town Meeting voice of the people must not be ignored.

Let your voice be counted.

S.S. Art Center calls artists

Artists who are interested in exhibiting their work on a continuous basis should contact the South Shore Art Center Gallery in Cohasset.

Membership in the Gallery is open to professional painters, photographers, sculptors, and craftspeople who are chosen by the Gallery's Selection Committee three times a year.

The next meeting of the committee will take place the first week in October and will not take place again until the end of January; applicants must leave their name and address and medium at the Art Center Office on 103 Ripley Road so they can be informed of the exact date to submit their work for jurying.

The Art Center Gallery provides a year-round exhibition area with shows changing monthly. One and two person exhibits chosen from the artist membership or invited by the committee also change monthly and open with a reception.

Corrections

☐It's Norman Swain, not Mark Swain, as a Mariner picture caption recently stated.

☐Although our reporter's notes say the contrary, it costs $3,820 to rent storage space for school buses (not $7,000), and it costs $2,400 (not $10,000) to rent the building for the tree and highway departments.

Garden Club. . .garden extraordinaire!!!

By Tanna Kasperowicz

As I left The Garden last week...I wondered if there was anything which wouldn't grow, in defiance of all the rules, for Mrs. Hope Warren of South Main Street. And I thought, isn't it lucky for the Cohasset Community Garden Club that is all does grow.

Because it is from this Garden Extraordinaire the Community Garden Club has taken the Tarragon to make its home-made vinegar, picked heather, lavender and rose for its sachets, plucked marjoram for its spice shelf, and nibbled catnip for its catnip mice, plucked off mint leaves for the the creation of mint sauce, and taken a sampling of hundreds of other plants for potpourri jars...all to sell to you at its Farmers' Market, to be held October 4 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Town Hall.

If you'd like to preview this event, at a preveiw party being planned Friday, October 3 at the Unitarian Church, 6-8 p.m., call the following parties for tickets: Barbara Steel at 585-9660, Carol Deal at 383-9807 or Cohasset's In-Stitches at 383-1358.

Aside from the herb tables, which Marie MacGregor and Joan Graham are in charge of, there will be exhibits, needlepoint, quilting, jewelry, breads, jams, jellies, collectibles, a farmers' attic table and a gourmet table. On October 4 from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. you can buy a delicious homemade luncheon at the Congregational Church, as visually exciting as it is delicious. Hmmmmm...lobster roll sandwiches.

A special gourmet table will include hot and cold soups, mailable sweets, casseroles, eat-at-home sweets.

This event, as does every Community Garden Club event, will benefit the Cohasset Historical Society's Lothrop House on Summer Street...to which the club has recently donated $9,000 for landscaping improvements.

Not everything at the Farmers' Market will have come out of Mrs. Warren's Garden, which has been written up several times in the magazine Horticulture. And should you think for one minute that the Community Garden Club might be taking advantage of Mrs. Warren's good nature...don't give it a second thought.

Mrs. Warren is a member of the Community Garden Club and has, over the years, been more than generous with her time and talents in the community.

Years ago she was in charge of the Unitarian Parish House box garden. She not only helped to keep it in order, she designed the original garden, complete with a walk. She also brought back 18 trees from the Arnold Arboretum for planting on the Town Common.

There's what I think might be a Maine Coon cat in the garden, too. He seems to be mostly found near the catnip. His name is Pitt Pitt Lagogue, and he belongs to David, who is in 3rd Grade at Osgood School.

Energy pros & cons

On Monday, Sept. 22, at Barnes Auditorium (Hingham Town Office Complex) at 8 p.m., the citizens of Cohasset, Hull, and Hingham will have an opportunity to hear the pros and cons on an important public policy question to appear on the November 4 ballot.

This question reads: "Shall the representative from this district be instructed to vote in favor of legislation requiring a moratorium on the construction or licensing of new nuclear power plants, and mandating instead that the state promote energy conservation and safe and renewable energy resources such as hydroelectric and solar power?"

☐Neil and Sharon Osborne of Cohasset will be participating in a very special event for this area — a Bird-A-Thon. These people will be out trying to identify as many different species as possible, birds seen or heard, during September 20 and 21, in order to raise money for the Manomet Bird Observatory in Plymouth.

They and other birders in the area need your support. Over seventy birders are already signed up and are seeking sponsors. Sponsors pledge a certain amount for each species the birder sees — therefore, the more species seen, and the more sponsors per birder, the more money raised! To add some fun and extra dimensions to the Massachusetts reports, birders from Hawaii to Maine, England to Peru are also participating.

Bird-A-Thon returns will be reported at a birthday celebration for MBO on Sunday night, Sept. 21, at the Plymouth Yacht Club. Sponsors, birders and other MBO supporters will be on hand to hear the results.

To participate in the Bird-A-Thon, contact one of your local birders or MBO at 617-224-6521.

☐The news of Cornelia Barton Wakeman's birth on September 2 at South Shore Hospital was heralded by her grandfather Wakeman's special six-gun salute and the ringing of the Bursk's school bell!

Cornelia is the daugher of Sam and Linda Wakeman and joins them and Heather, 17 and Jon, 11, at home on Atlantic Avenue.

Her grandparents are Sam and Frannie Wakeman of Atlantic Avenue and Mr. and Mrs. Dana Robbins of Brunswick, Maine.

(The Bursk's are neighbors on Sheldon Road.)

☐Two recent events in the Spalt's family have given them cause for excitement:

They have a new granddaughter, Emily Loring Chase, born on September 7 at Boston Lying-In Hospital to Shelly and Lanny Chase of Scituate. Emily is their first child; fifth for her grandparents.

Their son, Andrew, just completed the Outward Bound program at Hurricane Island, Maine which was "the experience of his life." Not daunted by the rigors of life in the wilderness, nor an attrition rate of one-third of this class, or a 75 mile row, Andrew says he would love to do it again!

Rested now (he slept for two days), he is back at Cohasset High in his junior year.

Dental Dialogue
DON'T FEED THE PLAQUE
Q. What is Plaque?
A. It's a colorless sticky substance made up of living bacteria and it's found in every person's mouth.
Plaque forms constantly on the teeth and is the most dangerous when it colonizes. It is a primary cause of decay, gum disease, and tooth loss, but careful brushing and daily use of dental floss prevent harmful accumulation. When we eat processed foods with a high sugar content we are literally feeding the plaque and helping it prosper. So remember, avoid sugary snacks and please don't feed the plaque!

Fundraiser theme: tax cuts and conservatism

By Lydia Long

Not everyone who attended the Republican fundraiser at the Cox estate Sunday night wore an 'I Like Ike' tie or silver elephant pin. Gary Stevens, owner of Precision Measurements of Cohasset, certainly did not.

Mr. Stevens is an Independent who worked for John Kennedy and later Robert, and not too long ago wasn't sure whether he'd vote for Ted or not. So what was he doing rubbing shoulders with Reagan people and local Republicans in the lavish gardens of the seaside home of Mrs. William C. Cox where the Cohasset Republican Town Committee held their GOP reception the other night?

According to Stevens, he's now a Reagan supporter, calls himself a liberal-gone-conservative, and says of Proposition 2½, (which would limit property tax rates to not more than 2½ percent of full market value) "Do I support Prop. 2½? I got news for you. I'd support a Proposition 1." He added, "All I ask is for a return on my investment."

Former California Lt. Gov. H. John Harmon talks politics with Cohasset Moderator David Place.

Stevens' comments would seem to lend credence to the argument that the biggest thing going for the Republicans this year is inflation. They also serve to explain why the GOP candidates who mingled under the broad-striped tent Sunday in their straw hats and 'Let's Make America Great Again' buttons seemed confident they can cash in on the kind of change in the voters' mood that comes from an economic squeeze.

"People are fed up economically," said Paul Doane, an investment broker in Hyannis, who is running for the 12th Congressional District seat against incumbent Gerry Studds. "Inflation is the big cause of a shift towards a conservative mood."

Doane, who said he supports tax breaks for small business and an across the board 10 percent income tax cut, seemed to tailor his campaign towards this mood and characterizing his opponent as "the great inflator in the world who has never voted for a balanced budget."

The theme of tax cuts and conservatism was echoed by local Republicans as well.

"It's a good year for conservatives," State Representative Mary Jeanette Murray shouted over the voices of the red, white and blue-clad New Hampshire Children's Theater songsters who were belting out a verse of "Day by Day."

"Inflation has finally hit home," she said. "I filed the Sunset Bill again (which is devised to review and phase out unnecessary government programs) and I think this is the year for it. It came out of committee favorably this year and I'm very optimistic.

"As for Proposition 2½," she said, "I'm not happy with it — for the problems of cutbacks it will cause in towns like Cohasset — but I will vote for it as a tax cut." Representative Murray is running unopposed for reelection.

Paul Barber, who was wearing an elephant tie and a straw hat with a 'Barber for Senate sticker' wrapped around the rim, insisted it is a Republican year. "The conservative trend is here because voters are fed up with big spending," he said.

Barber, who runs Call Paul Taxi Service in Duxbury, said that among the major themes of his campaign for Allan McKinnon's state senate seat was the need to find other sources of revenue than the property tax.

He said he would vote against Proposition 2½, however, as "a simplistic approach" which would "create financial problems for municipalities, mostly the older cities."

Make it in Massachusetts

By Lois Martin

It was written on mugs, on drink stirrers, on napkins. Big bags filled with materials about the campaign had it boldly scribed on either side: "Make it in Massachusetts." And if that costly drive fails to attract industry to our great state, it won't be the fault of those who've printed thumbs up, on everything they could find.

That's the logo, you know, the big blue and white thumbs up sign. And it's rather appealing. In fact, the only thing unsettling about the project is the savvy instinct that tells us the drive to get the industry to the state is an industry unto itself, one which we subsidize.

PATCHES

Oh well, not to worry. Enjoy the hoopla. I did.

Gov. Edward King had sent out invitations for the dinner in Fanueil Hall. I got one and decided to go. The press table, everyone assured me would be the last to be served.

Your Governor was there. So is his picture, on about every piece of paper I found in my own special press kit. I also received enough buttons and bumper stickers to supply Plymouth County.

Behind the head table was a big sign listing the towns which were "Making it in Massachusetts!" Marshfield wasn't listed. It apparently isn't making it in Massachusetts. Neither is Scituate, or Norwell. But 'Cohahasset' (sic) is...so is 'Brookine' (sic). But the misspellings failed to detract from the zeal of the evening, led by James Carlin, head cheerleader and determined whiz kid behind the promotion.

To catch you up...Your Governor is fresh of face, fairly boyish even. And his sense of humor's in tact. He said he wouldn't stay for dinner because it wasn't lobster. Besides he's got to be able to laugh. Otherwise he might burst into tears when he hears jokes like the ones by Dick Flavin who introduced King to Lt. Gov. Tom O'Neill.

They, of course, were at the head table along with a batch of dignitaries. From looking at the assemblage of important people at that table, including one woman and one black man, one could gather that mostly white men are making it in Massachusetts. But Flavin maintained it's "the best damn place in the country to live and to work." He's funny. He really is, what with his jokes about the border war with New Hampshire and some of our best nuclear protestors having been commandeered by that state and references to "Kevin the Bold."

But what came to my mind was that I hadn't been aware of this grand new enterprise and its evolvement. That surprises me because in January Your Governor sent out a special little card with a toll free telephone number which I could use for "Pertinent quotes and commentary from Governor Edward J. King."

I began calling the number, not because I hankered to hear his voice, but because I was curious. I imagined Ed sitting down each day reading into a microphone the things he'd said which were, in the opinion of his advisors, worth passing along to the press.

I was wrong. According to a little log I kept of my calls to 1-800-632-8222, the plan didn't work that way.

On. Jan. 24, a recording answered and said "There's no available actuality today."

On Jan. 25 the report was the same, "No Actuality."

On Jan. 28 when I called, at first no one answered, then the line was busy. Then it rang when I dialed but nothing happened. I'm not sure if there had been an actuality that day or not.

On Feb. 11 at 1:05 p.m. a woman told me they were in the process of producing news and they'd have it ready in five minutes. Unfortunately during the interim I got busy and wasn't able to get back for the actuality.

On June 12 there wasn't an actuality. And sometime during the year I lost access to my pertinent quotes and commentary. Because for the last few times I've called, the thing seems to ring but then drops off somewhere into space...and never rings again.

Now I feel better about that. I know what he's been doing, working on "Make it in Massachusetts." Carlin, setting the tables in unique Fanueil Hall, blowing up the balloons. He can't do everything.

Besides it's rather a nifty campaign. I've put on my bumper sticker. I'm thumbs-upping every industry I meet. And when we can get motorists to use that gesture instead of the ones they've been swapping, we'll know the cost of this actuality was well worth it.

Fire station

Marshall and the Fire Prevention Bureau over the closing of the station. According to one resident, the State Fire Marshall said it was in Chief Piepenbrink's authority to close the station.

Resident Joan Brown said: "I know we're going to lose our station (Beechwood Station) but I had hoped it would only be when the new station opened."

Another resident, who wished to remain nameless, said he felt Chief Piepenbrink was being political in closing the station. "If he thinks this is going to guarantee him an affirmative vote on the Cohasset Motors purchase, he may in fact find it backfiring on him. This is the largest growing area in town."

Chief Piepenbrink and firemen have long complained about the condition of the Beechwood Street Fire Station, but firemen rejected several thousand dollars at 1980 Annual Town Meeting for repair and maintenance of the station, saying it was not enough money to do the job.

According to the State Fire Marshall's office, should selectmen not be able to remedy the situation to either residents' or selectmens' satisfaction at this week's meeting, selectmen would have to take out a formal complaint with the State Fire Marshall against Chief Piepenbrink for dereliction of duty.

In the meantime, there is also a question of homeowners' insurance rates. Joseph Haze of the ISO (the state insurance organization) said if the station is permanently eliminated, insurance rates would go up for everyone living over three miles away from Central Fire Station. Scituate residents who reside within the proximity of the area would also be affected, as they depend upon Cohasset for mutual aid.

All new soccer team sparked by Leonard

By Rob Tis

An all new Skipper soccer team sparked by Jim Leonard took care of a quick and agile Scituate team Friday in a 5-4 game that was not nearly as close as it sounds.

Skipper coach Charles Mundhenk, has his team in 4-3-3 offensive formation this year instead of the common 4-2-4.

The Skippers came out hard and scored four goals, three by the unstoppable Jim Leonard and one by a reckless midfielder named Mike Nedrow, before Scituate could get on the scoreboard.

It seemed as the Skippers' heads were getting big and their legs heavy in the ensuing minutes. Scituate scored three quick and cheap goals, two on corner kicks. But this only showed the Skipper unfamiliarity with their new offense.

Andy Pottenger's energy was not all gone. Enraged by the three Scituate goals, he wove through the defense and kicked the old pelota right by the Scituate netman.

The Sailors were able to tally another goal to bring the game within one goal, but the Skippers defense led by Pat (The Cat) Duffy controlled the ball as the seconds ticked away on Scituate.

The Skippers played a fine defensive game with a strong backfield crew sparked by Steve (Shampoo Man) D'Onofrio, Matt Packard, the presently injured Ed Booth, Jordan Roy, Dave Duncomb and goalkeeper Greg Raffa, who made it possible for frontliners Gordon Rickets, Andy Pottenger and Jim Leonard to put the ball in the net.

The Skippers are now 1-and-1 and face Hanover Thursday.

Pat Duffy (No. 16 on the ground) headed off a Scituate drive in varsity soccer action last week. Alas, he got a penalty for his efforts. (Greg Derr photo)

Skipper cheerleaders provide enthusiasm

Siphon their energy into a motor and it could generate enough kilowatts to supply all of CHS with warmth for the entire school year! Now why hasn't some enterprising school committee member thought of a way to hook them up?

Skipper Cheerleaders are off and cartwheeling, spinning, jumping, back-bending, dancing...you think they could probably scramble up the side of a wall like spiderwomen, if they wished.

In their new, 16-pleated navy-blue skirts (with white inserts) and navy blue sweaters earned via a fashion show they held last spring, they certainly do look pretty fresh. So fresh they could all be toothpaste advertisements!

Not just anybody can be a cheerleader, Professional Choreographer Joanne Fictner and Skipper Cheerleader Coach, said in a recent interview. "I look for form, loud voices, eye contact with the audience, formation, jumps, rounding-off. And I watch the execution of cartwheels and splits closely. I think my own dancing has helped me to know what to look for in a cheerleader."

Last year Joanne initiated a cheerleading clinic, which was run by several Boston College cheerleaders. "I was amazed when 80 girls showed up to learn dancing and cheers." As a result, perhaps, of Joanne's interest and that clinic, "Over 75 girls tried out for cheerleading this year."

In the fall, cheer squads are split in two, with one group cheering for the soccer teams and one cheering for football.

Joanne studied professionally in Philadelphia for a number of years, with Walter Kenan. She began choreographing for local theater groups about the same time as she started working with CHS students. Last year she was a professional judge for Boston College cheerleading tryouts, and this year she will choreograph Boston College's Fiddler on the Roof production starting in January. It will be the third Boston College show she will have choreographed.

Sadly, Joanne said, while boys are welcome on the Skipper cheer squad, none have ever tried out. With men on the squad, she said they could expand their routines with lifts, etc.

Maybe Skipper Cheerleaders can't hope to reduce the oil bill at CHS...but they're providing a lot of enthusiasm and warmth at soccer and football games this year.

Skippers over-confident; prepare for Vineyard game

By Rob Tis

"The defense was good, but the offense just wasn't prepared." These words of football Captain Sandy Ayer's summed up Saturday afternoon for the Skippers and their first official game, a non-league contest against Pope John.

The defense only allowed Pope John one touchdown per quarter in the first half. Then the hardnosed hitting of Bob Fessler, Mike Jones, Sandy Ayer, Tim Libby, Paul Buckley and some other Skipper pigskinners, shut off Pope John's offensive attack like a faucet at U. Mass., Amherst.

The trouble now was scoring. Pope John was lined up in a 4-4 defense which consists of four linemen and four linebackers. This defense keeps the offensive line guessing as to who's coming through which hole. This defense was fairly new to the Skippers and kept them baffled throughout a good part of the afternoon.

The Skippers did manage to get on the board once in the second quarter on a 28-yard pass from Libby to Bob Donahue. The pass for the conversion failed. This one touchdown was not enough to equal Pope John's two touchdowns and two conversions. The failure to score on four attempts from the second yard line really hurt.

"I think we were a little over confident after our two scrimmage victories," added Sandy Ayer. "We will be better prepared for the Vineyard Saturday."

Niners guest tourney

The Cohasset Niners held its annual fall member/ GUEST TOURNAMENT September 10.

Free lecture, First Church of Christ

"Life isn't mere physical existence," states Christian Science lecturer Joanne Shriver Leedom of Dallas, Texas.

First Church of Christ, Scientist, Hingham has announced a free public lecture on "God's Mandate to Live" to be given by Mrs. Leedom on Saturday, Sept. 27 at 11 a.m. in Loring Hall Theatre, 65 Main St., Hingham.

In her lecture Mrs. Leedom offers an alternative to the view that life is rooted in physiological or chemical structures — inevitably "programmed" to suffer disease, accident and death. "Christ Jesus," says the lecturer, "pointed us to the divine law governing man's life, a life free from limitations."

Oyster Changes

Remember way back in January when we said we'd put in your oyster ad and keep it in until it did the job?

Well, we've been doing that. And it's worked beautifully for all of us. But there's one little problem. People have not always remembered to call us when the item's been sold, the job's been found, or the carpool's been organized. Consequently, we've been informed that people have answered ads only to find they were too late.

Here's the solution. Your oyster (same rules) will be kept in for eight weeks. Then out it comes. But . . . if you still need to have the ad in, call us. We'll try to rewrite it (without additional charge) for more success for another eight weeks. So we're with you through thick and thin pianos for sale and your search for roommates. But we have to put a limit on this folks. Else we'll have a paper full of advertisements which are outdated.

YARD SALE: Sept. 20, 10 a.m. (not before), 131 Nichols Rd., Cohasset, Mass. (9/17)

GIANT NEIGHBORHOOD YARD SALE!! Baby equipment, drapes, toys, skis, ski boots, dishes, glassware, antique pottery chamberpot, furniture, 1971 V.W. Beechwood residents petition for new station

By Tanna Kasperowicz

Residents of the Beechwood Street area watched the closed Beechwood Fire Station closely, over this past week, for signs of life. But there were none.

Last Wednesday residents met wilth selectmen and Chief Piepenbrink with a petition signed by 200 residents of the area asking that the chief keep the station open until such time as there was alternative fire protection in the ares. (Two weeks ago Chief Piepenbrink closed the Beechwood Station without notice.)

But by Friday of last week residents grew impatient with the wait, and drew up a petition for the October 28 Special Town Meeting asking that the town vote a transfer of funds, or a bond issue, to build one modern fire station on Beechwood Street capable of housing the town's new pumper.

As of Monday, Chief Piepenbrink appeared to have arrived at no temporary solution to the issue, although Selectman Henry Ainslie asked him to look into a means by which the Beechwood area could be covered until the issue of a new fire station is resolved.

While the retired pumper was still in town, as of last Wednesday, Piepenbrink said it is technically the property of the manufacturer. "That truck is 30 years old. It's having engine difficulty. If the engine were to be put back into use on Beechwood Street, I would be taking a man off the ambulance to do it."

Piepenbrink said it was his duty to provide fire protection to The Cove, Hillside Drive, Beechwood, Route 3A with the Beechwood engine.

Fireman Richard Conley, also a resident of Beechwood Street, and formerly stationed at the Beechwood Fire Station, said the retired pumper was not fit to be used. "I realize we have a serious problem here. But why do we always have to decide things by confrontation? We turned down I don't know how many fire stations in past years. I didn't feel safe in that particular piece of equipment. If Beechwood wants its own fire station, let's go to town meeting and say so."

Chester Magee agreed the old pumper should be retired. "That fire truck has been falling apart for the past 15 years. When the alarm sounds in Beechwood, the firemen panic. They don't know if the truck will start."

Alfred Odermatt asked Piepenbrink if he had ever requested that a new fire station be built on Beechwood. "Personally, I did not," Piepenbrink said. Odermatt also suggested the possibility of Scituate and Cohasset getting together to build a joint station.

Several residents also said they were upset that Chief Piepenbrink had not warned residents that the Beechwood Station would be closed, and that no EMT would be in the area.

"We're not concerned about the building, we're concerned about protection," Dorothy Bates said.

After who knows how many years, the Beechwood Fire Station is closed.

Health Board sparks interest in regional dump

Norwell and Hull town officials have responded favorably to a Cohasset Board of Health letter asking for reactions to the proposal of several towns joining together to purchase and operate a regional refuse dump in Cohasset, Cohasset Health Inspector Kevin O'Brien and Cohasset Health Board Chairman Marilyn Sweeney said this week.

Letters were also sent to Scituate and Hingham officials, who have not yet responded.

Unfortunately, unless the Cohasset Board of Health takes the issue to the town's October 28 Special Town Meeting for voter reaction, Cohasset's option to purchase Cohasset Heights, a 48-acre demolition dump located one third of a mile off Route 3A, will be null and void.

Chairman Sweeney said Monday afternoon it was not the health board's intention at this time to place any question regarding the dump on the special warrant.

James Tyeryar, owner of the demolition dump, is presently waiting for final Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE) approval of a refuse permit for 20 assigned acres at Cohasset Heights. He said on October 15 he will deal with six serious buyers interested in purchasing the dump. "I'd be more flexible if the town showed some real interest."

So far, the Cohasset Board of Health is the only town governmental body which has shown any interest in the dump option.

Tyeryar is aski ng $5 million for the dump. Many town officials have said, privately, they feel the figure is too high. And while the availability of Federal and State collaborative for the joint purchase

Leary gets travel funds in 11th hour

by Karin Bartow

Given the public outcry, the length of time the school committee took in changing its mind about guidance director Jack Leary's request for $800 travel funds may be criticized, but it finally did respond late Tuesday night.

When the school committee has a tie vote, the prevailing side is with the no's. The prevailing side is the only side that can move to reconsider a prior vote.

It took two weeks of letters and calls for parents, letters from colleges and universities, a one hour-and-a-quarter's fervent discussion from many of the roughly 45 parents and residents at the meeting and possibly the weight of the consequences, to make the prevailing school committee members budge.

Chairman Frank England, Patricia Walsh and Martha Gjesteby refused to move for reconsideration of travel funds voted down at the September 8 meeting for Leary's participation at the National Guidance Conference in Detroit next month. They had voted against spending the money to send Leary as President-elect of the National Association of Guidance Counselors and leader of the New England delegation, to the conference.

It wasn't until the 11th hour, literally, that they finally changed their minds.

"We're a loser . . . nobody's a winner," Fred Wood said after discussing his long association with Leary in his capacity as counselor in the school system. Wood felt that "It makes sense to me to appropriate money to send him to meetings of this nature."

Leary detailed his duties on the board of the New England Association of Guidance Counselors and as president over the next three years of the national association. His trip to the national meeting would not be funded by the regional association.

Leary reminded the committee that he had tipped them off as long ago as last February that if he received the honor of the presidence he would need some funding to carry out his duties. He was congratulated by the committee in the spring upon his election as president, but was not given an answer as to funding the necessary out-of-state travel expenses. The committee voted $2,000 at budget time for out-of-state travel, allocating $1,000 for the superintendent and $1,000 for others.

"He couldn't go to one-tenth of the schools our children are interested in for $800," Alice Riley commented. Leary had asked for letters from college admissions people to demonstrate his visability in this area and for persuasion of the importance of national conferences.

Bidding will begin at $25. The South Shore Music Circus donated the following posters to benefit the Lothrop House and its sponsoring agent, the Cohasset Historical Society:

Cleo Laine, Mitzi Gaynor, Bill Cosby, Al Hirt, Harry Chapin, Liberace, Johnny Mathis, George Burns, Connie Stevens, Eddie Arnold, Lawrence Welk Show stars (horizontal), Ferrante and Teicher, Jane Oliver, Sha Na Na, 4 Girls 4, Victor Borge, Neil Sedaka, Henny Youngman and Judy Collins.

Public Notice

During the past several weeks we have been mistakenly criticized for a new delivery system instituted by a different newspaper, in which truck drivers and paperboys and girls are apparently throwing unordered Mirrors on residents' lawns.

While we sympathize with residents' complaints, we have no control over the distribution practices of this other newspaper. Please address your complaints to the other newspaper, wherever its offices are.

The Mariner is a prepaid, mailed weekly newspaper. It is also available on Cohasset newstands.

Scouts sign-up

Boys interested in joining Cub Scouts should sign up Thursday, September 25 from 7:30-8:30 p.m. at the First Parish Meeting House on North Main Street. Boys must be eight years old or have completed the second grade.

Adults must accompany prospective Cubs. A registration fee of $10 must be paid at the time of signup.

FLAG PRESENTATION

The family of Adelaide E. Monteriro, a World War II veteran, has presented a flag to Selectmen in her memory. Selectmen said they will fly the flag over the common for a few days, and fly the flag at a later date at the Veteran's Memorial.

SPECIAL TM OCT. 28

Selectmen set the date for a Special Town Meeting to be held Tuesday, October 28 at 7:30 p.m. at the CHS auditorium. On the warrant — a spicy variety of articles sure to draw cards.

The main purpose of the meeting is to ask the town to purchase Cohasset Motors for a combination highway department/fire station which could also be utilized for the maintenance of town vehicles and the storage of school buses.

Petition articles will add flavor to the warrant, with a request to increase the Board of Selectmen by two, decrease the School Committee by one, and a Beechwood Fire Station article which will be presented to Selectmen this week, by petition, before the Friday, September 26 deadline at 4:30 p.m. for petition articles.

Yet another petition article asks the town to change the starting time for Annual Town Meeting (Saturday, at 10 a.m.) to 1 p.m.

How did it get to Chicago?

Tommy and Lisa Ohman, owners of the famous-in-Chicago Ladner Brothers Tavern which sells its own exclusive label of "Cohasset Punch," were guests of Cohasset's Kitty Howe this week as they further attempted to research how Cohasset Punch got from Cohasset to Chicago over 90 years ago.

Kitty Howe says the recipe for Cohasset Punch was concocted some time between 1912 and 1919 by Marshall Williams and Morton S. Crehore on the porch of the Crehore's home at 90 Margin Street (now called Howard Glennon Road).

Ohman said he was meeting with Massachusetts liquor distributors this week, in an attempt to bring Cohasset Punch into the area as part of his plans for national distribution.

Cohasset Punch is a 60-proof rum-based liquer which drives people up the walls in Chicago. Somehow, Historical Society President Connie Parker got a hold of a couple of bottles of the stuff, which she will serve, for a price, to guests at the Lothrop Open House this weekend.

Ford supports better business climate with tax reform bill

Theodore Ford, Democratic nominee for the Third Plymouth State Representative seat issued a statement regarding Proposition 2½ and the question of tax reform in general at a recent meeting of the League of Women Voters in Cohasset. Ford stated that he opposed 2½ as too drastic a measure which could cripple the local towns' ability to deliver needed services.

Ford's Republican opponent in the November election, Mary Jeannette Murray, is on record as favoring passage of 2½ and is a member of "Citizens for Limited Taxation" which drafted the controversial referendum question.

Ford, a trained economist, favors passage of a recently drafted tax reform bill which calls for a reduction of the total state and local tax take from the current average of 17.2% of disposable income to 15.2%, phased in over 36 months. This would bring Massachusetts taxes in line with 17 key industrial states across the nation.

According to Ford, "Competitiveness in attracting and maintaining desirable industry in Massachusetts should be the chief rationale of tax policy. A positive business climate is the key to low unemployment and economic health.

Reagan campaign workers sought

Cohasset residents have been signing up to canvass their neighborhoods for Ronald Reagan on October 4th, according to Pat Buckley, Cohasset Reagan Coordinator. The door-to-door effort is part of the Reagan-Bush Commitment '80 program.

Commitment '80 is a nationally coordinated and locally implemented program to turn out hundreds of thousands of people on October 4th to walk their neighborhoods and communities for the Republican Party and Ronald Reagan. Its objectives will include advocacy, voter identification and voter turnout. The final day of the drive will be October 14th.

Anyone who would like to participate in the drive or help in the overall campaign may contact Mrs. Buckley at 383-0304.

Foliage trip planned

The Cohasset 60 Plus Club is sponsoring a one-day bus trip to Meredith, New Hampshire to view the foliage. Reservations must be made no later than Monday, October 6. The bus will leave Town Hall Wednesday, October 15 at 9 a.m. Dinner will be held at Hart's Turkey Farm, at noon.

Re-elect Studds campaign on way

The Committee to Reelect Congressman Gerry E. Studds today announced the opening of campaign headquarters in the Great New Bedford area, on the South Shore, and on Cape Cod.

According to Stephen P. Ford, coordinator of the Studds campaign, the headquarters for the Great New Bedford area is at 7 North 6th Street, New Bedford (phone: 617-999-5865).

The South Shore office is located at 1972 Washington Street, Hanover (phone: 617-878-2898).

Ford urged all those interested in volunteering for the Studd's campaign to contact any of the three campaign headquarters. Mr. Studds, a resident of Cohasset, is seeking his fifth term as U.S. Representative from the 12th Congressional District.

Catalyst

There are a lot of questions which cannot be adequately examined in a short news item or a long news item. They require a full-scale documentary.

Not for a minute do we accept anything done by Fire Chief Charles Piepenbrink uncritically. But we were impressed with parts of the case that the chief developed over the past week, and we would like to hear the counterarguments more fully presented... but by the chief.

There are a lot of accidents on winding, twisting Beechwood Street. And there's only one primary access road to the entire area: Beechwood Street. We'd like to know more about the numbers of accidents on Beechwood Street, the number of trees felled which can tie up traffic for precious minutes. We'd like to know because there are some important and expensive issues at stake.

It is widely acknowledged that the new pumper is a high velocity engine, much faster than the old, retired pumper. But how fast can a fire engine go on Beechwood Street before it is unsafe? How fast can it go on slippery roads? In a foot of snow?

Maybe a new Beechwood Fire Station is what Cohasset voters really wanted all along. But if they did, would they every have known it had Chief Piepenbrink not closed down the Beechwood Fire Station two weeks ago? Would they have rallied together to petition Special Town Meeting for a new Beechwood Station without the catalyst, Piepenbrink?

It is quite possible that residents of the Beechwood area are more concerned about fire protection in Beechwood than the rest of the town is concerned about housing two fire trucks on a Route 3A location in a building which could also house the highway department.

We're not saying that a highway department building isn't needed. We're not saying a place to work on town vehicles is not needed. School bus storage space would also be practical.

Fireman Richard Conley said something this week that was all too true. He said: "Why do we always have to decide things by confrontation?"

We think it's because voters really do expect consultants and politicians to "take care of them" until they see their fire stations closing, severe cutbacks in their schools, the dump closed.

The first reaction is a kind of angry protest. But the second reaction is more creative. Feeling abandoned by their own town officials, these outraged residents prepare an article, campaign for it, and take it to the voters. And that action insures the survival of American democracy.

Democracy is run by an aristocracy of talent, which almost always survives only in the nick of time!

Commentary

Cohasset choruses urged to outsing Logan

By Chet Ellis

Cohasset has a new problem with which to deal. Having, over the summer, disposed neatly with the School Committee superintendent crisis, the police chief power pull, and the big buck-double backhand-Gammons Road tennis court grab, those who involve themselves with such things, now have facing them a serious case of aircraft landing pattern noise aggravation.

When Wilbur and Orville Wright lifted their newly devised collection of barrel slats and piano wire off the ground at Kitty Hawk, they never imagined that, 77 years later, the noise from the modern version of their noble contribution would interrupt Liberace six times in the second movement of the Warsaw Concerto.

Citizen reaction has been swift. For example, a well-known executive of the Cohasset Music Circus (affectionately known by its' Sohier Street neighbors as the "Las Vegas Handicap with 5000 watts added"), has been seen shaking his fist at the sky, challenging the FAA to a dogfight in the legislature, with the loser banished to the North Shore, or worse, to Cape Cod. After all, we can't have Johnny Mathis trying to outshout a 747,-now can we?

Citizen's groups, notably, those from the political side of life, have been formed to battle the aviation bureaucracy to fight for the rights of the common suburbanite, and to make as much bipartisan hay as possible.

According to some of our more outspoken townspeople, the noise battlers may be wasting their time. During interviews last week, I asked a few locals how they felt about the aircraft noise and what they thought should be done. Opinions thus gathered show a marked indifference to the noise from above. Here are a few of the choicest:

Dr. Phinea Van Hyde (local physician, sportsman, and keeper of the community secrets) — Van Hyde feels that the presence of aircraft over Cohasset creates the proper atmosphere for the ultimate realization of his lifelong dream, the development of an intercontinental airport on land he owns in Beechwood. "You can't stop progress," he says, "and besides, I need the money!"

Maxwell Santos (part time lobsterman and bait barrel philosopher) — Santos left no doubt where he stood. To quote him directly, he said "Those #†½!$?&$ airplanes can #†/!&?! and then &#†!$?# as far as I'm concerned."

Bates Lincoln Pratt (hermit, Beechwood) — "We had that problem in 1942 and again in 1973 when F. Lee Bailey used to buzz Cohasset on his way back to the Marshfield airport. Why not camouflage the town by painting the churches olive drab and tan so pilots will get confused and circle over Hingham? For planes circling at night, what ought to be done is appoint a warden for each street and when a plane is heard, everyone turns off their lights, just like we did in World War II. Why, those planes'll get so confused they'll be glad to go back to circling over Little Nahant! I'll volunteer to be the warden for Whitney Woods!"

Forget it Bates

Mrs. C. Arthur Winslow (well known tennis club groupie and self-appointed emporess of Atlantic Avenue) — "Well, frankly my deah, I just don't give a damn!"

May you get static in your stereo, Mrs. Winslow.

Pierre Le Duc (local artisan and acerbic wit) — "I don't think there's much we can do at present other than ask our elected representatives to attempt to get Massport and the FAA to modify the aircraft route to create less disturbance in Cohasset, which, I understand is being tried. In the meantime, we can all put cotton in our ears and turn up the volume at the MusicCircus. Sock it to em Liberace!"

Thanks a lot Pierre!

Health Board lives up to its rhetoric

To the Editor:

On Sept. 15, 1980, I attended the meeting of the Cohasset Board of Health at which the final draft of the new livestock regulations was to be presented.

Although the Board has, in previous public "Workshops," declared itself open to all comments, opinions, testimony, etc.; although it had repeatedly asked for written suggestions as to the actual substance and wording of any proposed changes; although it had patiently sat through hours of angry and sometimes bitter debate between two opposing factions; although it had continually stated that they were striving to be fair to the Public's needs and interests; still, I wasn't ready for the actuality of Monday night.

I wasn't ready for a Town Board that actually lived up to its rhetoric the way this Board did. I wasn't ready for a Town Board that progressed, in a few short (or long!) months, from three admittedly (on this issue) uninformed individuals to a confident, well researched, cohesive Town Board of Health.

I wasn't ready for a Town Board that was confident enough in its position to change its final draft, in public, when presented with a reasonable argument for that change. I simply was not ready for the terrific job that the Board of Health had done.

While I realize that those taking either side on these issues are too far apart to take total satisfaction from any compromise, I sincerely hope that all concerned will recognize the fine job done by our Board of Health in considering all aspects of public concern when hammering out these revisions.

I would also ask other Town committees to take note. In this ticklish and difficult situation, Marilyn Sweeney, Dr. Michael Bliss, and Lynn Buckley have demonstrated how effectively Town government can function if elected officials are willing to honestly listen to concerned citizens, to spend long dreary hours in research and discussion; and, when necessary to work as one unit to reach reasonable compromises without regard to their own personal bias.

It will, I think, be a hard act to follow.

Paula Knowles
Border St.

P.S. Nowhere above did I mention the hard research and leg work of Health Officer Kevin O'Brian. Sorry for the omission.

Station closing causes neighbors alarm

To the Editor:

We live in the Beechwood area of Cohasset. Last Friday a neighbor of ours had cause to call the fire department. She was lucky. It turned out not to be a life and death situation. Had it been such, she would have been in trouble because it took the fire department ten minutes to respond to her call.

Ten minutes is a long time when immediate help is needed. The reason it took 10 minutes to arrive was because the Beechwood Street Station (one minute from her house) had been quietly closed the week before.

In our opinion, the unannounced closing of the Beechwood Street Station is a strategic mistake. This area is growing every day and a diminishment of service is absurd. We look forward to the reopening of our local firehouse.

Editorial

A call for debate

Cohasset can't lose in the upcoming election for state representative from the Third Plymouth District...Cohasset, Hingham and Hull.

It never hurts to have your man (or woman) on the Hill be homegrown and that is the case in this election, between Republican Mary Jeanette Murray and her challenger, democrat Ted Ford. In this case, propinquity is a virtue.

With local representation assured, we would suggest that this is the time for the League of Women Voters, or some other worthy group, to sponsor a debate between the two Cohasset candidates. They are apart on the political spectrum and the voters should be apprised of who stands for what. A debate will help to achieve that understanding.

Our station is gone - our fireman is gone

By Eric Pearson

Are the lives of the families who live in the Beechwood area worth anything?

Does anyone care about our elderly who wear pacemakers or who live alone and only have a telephone to ask for help? Are the families who have health problems which can and have needed emergency assistance to be ignored and forgotten?

Every single citizen of Cohasset should be upset about the arbitrary and insulting action by the Fire Chief two weeks ago when he closed the station located in Beechwood. He did so without any warning to the families in Beechwood and in addition, did so, without even notifying the Board of Selectmen of his action.

At the Selectmen's meeting on Sept. 17, petitions were presented to the Selectmen containing over 200 signatures requesting that our station be kept open and manned for the protection of our lives and property. It is now Sept. 22, 10:30 a.m. as I write this article and our request has been ignored by both the Fire Chief and our Board of Selectmen. Our station is closed and locked up. The trained fireman is gone.

You might ask why I am personally upset. I am alive today only because Austin Studley, a trained fireman was on duty at the Beechwood station and responded within minutes to an emergency call from Brian Cogill, a police officer, and my next door neighbor, for a resuscitator to restart my heart and breathing which had stopped. I was hemorrhaging internally and the loss of blood had rendered my heart and lungs incapable of sustaining my life.

It is a matter of medical record that a fireman responding from Central or any station location on Rte. 3A would have been too late to save my life.

I reminded the Fire Chief and the Board of Selectmen of these facts at the last Town Meeting that they both were pushing foranadditional fire station on Rte. 3A. I reminded them both again at the Selectmen's meeting on Sept. 17 and again it seems that my statements have fallen on deaf ears. The requests of over 200 residents of the Beechwood area seem also to have fallen on deaf ears.

It seems to be quite a coincidence that this all happened when the Fire Chief and the Board of Selectmen are again pushing for a station on Rte. 3A. They are avoiding and ignoring the fact that the first and primary reason for the existence of a fire station is the saving of lives and not buildings. Every charter of every fire department in our country makes that fact clear.

Our State Fire Marshal, in a phone discussion I had with him last week, also reiterated the fact that the saving of lives is the first and foremost responsibility of any fire department.

Our Board of Selectmen on Sept. 17 stated that they have no control over the Fire Chief because of Chap. 48.

Nothing can be further from the truth.

The State Fire Marshal informed me that the Board of Selectmen have the responsibility of informing him of any action on the part of the Fire Chief that might endanger the lives and property of the citizens. The State Fire Marshal would take action immediately to determine if lives or property were endangered. If he found that they were, he would then take action against the Fire Chief to rectify the situation. The State Fire Marshal has this authority.

In addition, the Board of Selectmen can fire a Chief for cause, in spite of Chap. 48 and Civil Service.

Our station is closed. Our fireman is gone. We are afraid. Will you help us? The families in Beechwood will have an article in the special Town Meeting warrant asking that our fire station be rebuilt or replaced and it have the capability of housing at least one fire engine and housing at least one fireman.

Is that too much to ask for? I hope not.

Mariner out-to-lunch

To the Editor:

In the Mariner edition of Sept. 11, on page 3, there is a notice of a luncheon for senior citizens at St. Anthony's Church.

The notice was titled "Lunch at Tony's." I suppose someone was trying to be cute. I, however, was not amused. No institution of significance should be treated in such an undignified manner.

around town

☐Liz Whelan is preparing for an exciting year abroad which will begin with a cross Atlantic journey on the QEII which will take her from New York to England. She will then go to Oxford where she'll spend the academic year studying English and history at Oxford University.

The three term schedule at Oxford which allows students two six week breaks inbetween, will give Liz and fellow exchange students from Trinity College, Washington, D.D. plenty of time to travel.

Have a great year!

☐Seven delegates from the Cohasset Riding Club have been chosen to ride on the county team at the annual state 4-H Horse Show to be held on September 27 in Spencer.

The junior riders are Jen Hanlon, Theresa Horky, Catherine Smith, Julie Hoogeveen, Lisa Powers, Julie Chambers and Lori Marshall.

Their qualification was determined because of their success at 4-H county shows, detailed horse management records submitted by each girl and the safety and cleanliness of their respective stables.

☐The Seadale family of South Main Street has been busy celebrating family milestones! Anne and her sister, Mrs. Kenneth Smith of Framingham, gave their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Smith of Quincy, a 40th anniversary party last weekend with friends and family.

Their daughter Lisa was graduated from Colgate College in August, completing her degree in three years. Her major was religion with a minor in social relations. She spent a semester in Barbados working in a pentecostal church and was affiliated with the University of Miami's department of religion for a semester. She is a 1977 graduate of Noble and Greenough School in Dedham and plans to take up residence in Louisiana.

Edward and Anne's son, Edward Jr., was married in late July to Marilyn Hornburg of Kato, New York at St. Andrews Church in Hanover. A reception was held for family and friends at Hugo's.

Edward and Marilyn both returned to Springfield College where they're completing their studies in the field of recreation.

☐Another Springfield College student, freshman Erin O'Brien, is in the news too. Erin was one of only four freshman girl's soccer players to be selected to play on the team. Nice going Erin!

John Maynard, 5, told the Mariner: "School isn't all work."

☐Laurence and Rosemarie James of Buttonwood Lane have a new daughter, Melissa, born on September 4 at South Shore Hospital. Her sister is Alyson, 7. Grandparents are Norman Frederick James, Sr. of Cohasset and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Roane of Plymouth. Great grandfathers are Percival Norman James of Cohasset and Smith Roane of Plymouth.

☐On September 7 at South Shore Hospital, Francis and Katherine Distasi of Atlantic Avenue became the parents of their first child, a daughter named Alyssa. Her grandparents are Eleanor Humphreys of Cohasset, Marie Distasi and Frank Distasi, both of Fairfield, Connecticut. Joseph D'Adario also of Fairfield, Connecticut is great grandfather.

☐Bill and Marilyn Adams and Abigail, Willie and Chris have got 37 lbs. of pumpkin to carve for their jack o'lantern this fall! They held the lucky number in the drawing for the pumpkin at Sunday's Osgood square dance.

☐Joan and George McCullough were somewhat confused last Thursday night when they found their daughter Meg at Hugo's when she was supposed to be at the library studying! Meg was just greeting family and friends who were gathering there to surprise her parents on their 25th wedding anniversary.

And surprised they were! Their sons, Kevin, John and Joseph helped plan the party and kept it a secret, something their mother didn't think they could do!

Meg is in the ninth grade at Cohasset High School, Kevin recently graduated from Niagara University, New York, John is a senior at Boston College and Joseph is a freshman at Andrew College in Georgia.

☐The "Cohasset Ravers Ltd." appear to be a very select group of young men who from time to time fill T-shirts (limited edition of 12) of that name. Their purpose is a well guarded secret, but we have learned that one thing they do in style is sing along with Irish folk songs. They have been known to stop in at Jimmie's Irish Lounge in Hull for that purpose.

☐The following Cohasset residents have enrolled as members of the Class of 1984 at St. Anselm's College, in Manchester, New Hampshire:

Leslie Carroll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul F. Carroll of 69 Ledgewood Drive, is a nursing major. Mary Howley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Howley of 10 Wood Way, and former employee of the Log & Line, is a biology major.

☐F. Roy Fitzsimmons has been named Senior Vice President of finance and administration for MedTac Corporation, a company specializing in group health insurance.

He and his wife, Judith, have five children and live in Cohasset, where he is an active member of St. Anthony's Parish. He also is president of the Cohasset Jaycees and served as chairman of the organization's annual Roadrace-by-the-Sea.

☐Paul Plante's weekly Mariner is so popular around Haskell Dormitory at Tufts that Mom Marie Plante ordered a subscription for the rest of the dormitory, recently.

Now, Paul and his roommate, Doug Dillon (also of Cohasset), will be able to read their Mariner in peace.

9/19, 7:30 pm Feola enters roasting chamber

By Tanna Kasperowicz

When Marie and retired Police Chief Randolph Feola, Senior, entered the roasting chambers at Hugo's last Friday they were given a standing ovation by over 300 persons. Some said Feola balked at the door upon seeing the crowd...his eyes filling. Close friends said he had not expected a turnout of that size.

Although Feola was trumped up as the main course, in truth, just about every local "dignitary" present (and some who weren't present) got burned by roasters...who played both roaster and roastee roles.

Out of the some 150 cars which were parked in Hugo's lot...only Connie Parker of Parker Avenue was called over the loudspeaker to move her car. "I put it where the guy told me to park it," she said. "They left the key in the ignition and the windows open and they didn't get a tip from me," she pouted.

Police Officer Brian Cogill was on the Hugo's detail, Friday. Recently, Cogill "pinched" Connie on Parker Avenue...in front of her home. She has still not paid that ticket.

Father John Keohane began the roast proceeding with a strange invocation. He said: "When Archie Manning became quarterback for the New Orleans Saints, they had bumper stickers made saying: Archie Manning is a saint. Well, Randy's a saint tonight. And since he's a saint, we're going to pray for ourselves." At that point everybody prayed good and hard for themselves.

Toastmaster/Postmaster/Roastmaster Gerard Keating introduced all of the many police chiefs from neighboring towns who were in attendance: Chief Raymond Campbell of Hingham, retired Chief Robert Shannon and new Chief Donald Brooker of Hull, Chief Walter Driscoll of Scituate, Chief Peter DeStefano of Norwell, Chief Richard Nagle of Plymouth, and NEW Cohasset Police Chief John DeBassio.

At the Feola family table were the Feola sons: Police Officer Randy, Jr., and Ralph from Florida. And Feola daughters: Ruthanne Semel and Sue Feola of California. Also, Ruth Rautiala (Randy's sister) and her daughter, Hilja. And June (Randy's niece) and Kenneth Hopgood.

Chief and Mrs. Feola are awed by the appropriate centerpiece at the head table.

Also, Mrs. Feola's brothers, Ed and Homer Dyson and Homer's wife, Ann.

Keating said since Randy felt he had been left out in the cold, "Let's turn on the heat." And with that he introduced a skit, populated mostly by "The Selectmen Mice," as played by Keating, David Sweeney, Doris Golden and Clark Chatterton.

The skit, as directed by Joann Fichtner, summarized Randy's dealings with selectmen over his infamous Florida vacations...which he despised returning from. One year he even had an operation in order to vacation in the sun a little longer.

Doris Golden, who was cast as Selectman (Rep.) Mary Jeanette, smoked cigarette after cigarette and her head was a cloud of smoke throughout the five-minute presentation.

Unfortunately, Doris, who quit smoking over a year ago, is now once again hooked on cigarettes.

Skinny Laugelle's dog act was a scream...and Selectman Arthur Clark turned the tables on everyone when he rose to the mike and got Randy back for everything he did do and some things he didn't do.

Clark said: 'I'm sad (about Randy's retirement) because we're losing a true character. I'm happy because you are now entering The Golden Age. You are eligible for Medex, and you can ride on the MBTA for half fare. You can now go on a long-promised second honeymoon. At least you can hold hands."

Clark noted that Randy had at one time watered and rewatered some artifical flowers in the police department. "When they didn't grow you thought they had plant lice. Barrows finally told you they were artificial. Barrows once gave you some very expensive cigars, but you were afraid to smoke them...when you learned Louis Bailey was missing some dynamite caps."

Also, Clark said he would miss hearing Randy on the police radio, saying things like "Dickie, go down to Government Island and chase those creeps out of there" and "Jerry, check that broad walking down 3A.

"Once there were two ladies on a town committee who took offense at being called broads. I told them of a refuse facility has been talked about...O'Brien said Monday he has not yet run into any state department which knows anything about collaborative funding.

Regional refuse dump

Selectman Reno Constantinides of Hull, who responded affirmatively and verbally to the Cohasset Board's question Monday, said he felt a collaborative effort would be feasible if at least four towns participated in the purchase and operation of the Cohasset dump, and if the period of operation were to be at least for a 10-year period.

"In the meantime," Constantinides said, the legislature has expressed a desire to phase out all landfills. And DEQE is busily sending out instructions on how to operate a perfect landfill. I question what they're all doing and what they want us to do."

Constantinides noted that a recent Boston Globe editorial said the Globe was suspicious of Governor Edward King's proposal that eventually all landfill operations be privately-owned. Constantinides said he doesn't necessarily agree with King. He feels a collaborative effort could be well run.

Norwell Town Officials were unable to be reached for additional comments this week, but Norwell Mariner Editor Bucky Yardume said the town is already transferring its refuse to Braintree, and the cost is becoming prohibitive. "The town is overriding its budget."

If a private group were to buy Cohasset Heights and if at some future time Cohasset were to contract with that concern to dump refuse, the town would not pay any lesser transport or dump fee because of its proximity to the dump. But it would receive 50 cents a ton for any refuse dumped from outside of the town.

The general figure for transporting and dumping refuse is $30 a ton.

Engagement

Gjesteby - Janes

Mr. and Mrs. Arne Kjell Gjesteby of Cohasset have announced the engagement of their daughter Ingrid Anne to Mr. M. Dale Janes, son of Dr. and Mrs. A. William Janes of Longmeadow.

Miss Gjesteby graduated from Colby College with a B.A. in economics. She is presently with the First National Bank of Boston.

Mr. Janes graduated from Tufts University with a B.A. and from Boston University with a Law degree and a Masters in Business administration.

A September 1981 wedding is planned.

He moved the sun

By Lois Martin

PATCHES

He could make the sun move out of my eyes. To this day I'm not sure how he did it, turned a corner, I guess. I was only three and it was the first miracle I'd ever seen my father perform.

Up to that point he was of great importance in my life, as only a parent can be. But then when one is that young sometimes parent's love is merged with life itself. At the least, it's life giving.

Anyway I was one of four, the youngest, accused of being indulged where others hadn't been. Now I suspect if that was true, it was because I was born after the others wore the inflexibility off the strictness so that by the time I got to it, the discipline bent a bit more easily.

But to each of us the parent had a special set of memories, time alone together, unshared by others, even family members. I'm delighted to have my stock of these and I'm sure my siblings treasure theirs. Besides after the loss of a parent, those attributes which were once noted become hailed. That's just like us, isn't it....immortalize after death, not during life.

My father was a tall man with hair that was always gray. I never knew him when it wasn't. He was quiet, certainly more so than his sisters after whom I'm named, along with my mother and a great aunt.

My father and I had musical talent in common, none each. So when we rode alone together in a car, we sang without fear of snickering or remonstrances from those who believed they sang better than we did. The ditty was "Oh, Mickey Mouse is happy all the live long day; working in his garden till it's time to play." No one else has ever sung it better than we did or with so grand gusto.

And another special time was when he'd try to read the paper in the evening while supper was almost ready. And I'd sit in his lap punching the paper a bit if attention was too tough to get, until he and I'd play the catch the finger game. Wonderful, a parent's hands. Strong, sturdy, available. No loser in that sport.

And infrequently when we were trapped in a Brooksville snowstorm, we'd slide down the big road by my grandmother's house because no car could use it. We used his boyhood sled, without the steerers. He would be on the bottom. And we'd take turns sprawled on top of him, me terrified and he saying all the while, "hold on tight." I did and everything was all right.

That's really a father's job, make everything all right. We mothers have our areas of dominance and miracle working. But a father seldom fails in the eyes of a child.

When I made my first batch of biscuits, for some reason they looked kind of green. He ate them, with relish, wouldn't be dissuaded from having more. I knew he was just doing that to be nice. I remember him as just being nice.

And long before that, the day President Roosevelt died, I went to meet my father as he walked home and he was sad. I didn't know why because he didn't know Mr. Roosevelt. And, lost for conversation appropriate to the moment, I said that I guessed these were hard times. And he told me there would always be some hard times. I was sorry to hear that.

He was a math whiz. He couldn't believe I wasn't and didn't even care to be. He checked with me on that point several times...."You really like English better?" He though the apple had rolled a long way from his tree on that one.

We always had a lot of gardens, one in Ellsworth and a couple in Brooksville. We were supposed to weed or pick or whatever and we weren't excited about the prospect. They, my mother and father, said I'd change when it was my garden and I did.

But anyway we had this old truck/tractor affair which we could drive for him. And my sister and I, we'd get carried away down there in the cottage field and fairly drive the thing off into the drink with my father hollering "Whoa, Sis!" We loved that, driving the tractor and our father to a bit of distraction.

And he got back at us. If we didn't get out of bed right away for school, he'd ask if we were sick or something. And that would get us up in a hurry.

He was reserved. He loved a good laugh but didn't seek to be the cause of it. For him faith was something to be quietly and naturally exercised, no show and tell. I don't remember his ever telling me to be decent. I only know he made it seem the only way to go, a goal which would have to built into activities if I were to be able to bear both life and fruit.

He's been gone 14 years. And fortunately I've had other fine relatives to hold the torch before me. But I've never outgrown the admiration I hold for my father.

As has happened before, this last summer when we were in Maine, I heard of a man who moved near the Brooksville area who said that the finest man he ever knew in his life was from around there somewhere. That man, as it turned out, naturally was my father.

He wasn't perfect? Who said!?! I've never met anyone else who could move the sun so it wouldn't shine right in my eyes.

Skipper gridiron defeats Vineyard 25 - 12

By Rob Tis

The Skipper gridiron proved it was "for real " last week when it destroyed Martha s Vineyard, 25-12.

The game got a little out of hand in the first quarter as the Vineyard scored twice on big plays. One, a 25 yard pass play, the other a 83 yard kick off return.

Meanwhile the Skippers scored once when Joe Becker broke through the line and scampered 25 yards down the sideline to the end zone.

With last week's tough defeat lingering in the back of their heads, the Skipper defense repudiated the Vineyard offense from any other outbursts.

The offense, remembering being shut off on the second yard line four times in a row last week, seemed to explode.

Jack MeNeill broke loose and Tim Libby found him in the end zone to put the Skippers up by one in the second quarter.

In the third quarter, Joe Becker dove over the line from the second and he did it again in the fourth quarter to give him 18 points on the day and gave the Skippers the victory.

The big play of the afternoon was obviously the 43 dive which has the right halfback (Becker) going through the left side of the line in holes that were opened up by Beaver Buckley, Sandy Ayer and Jeff Lyons.

"The line played great. They are continually playing better" said a humble Joe Becker. "What really hurt us was those two big plays."

One disheartening note was that Q.B. Tim Libby broke and dislocated his thumb which will keep him out of action for a few weeks. It appears however that reserve quarterback Kevin Dooley should be able to take over the helm without a great deal of difficulty.

The Skipper momentum is now snowballing as Skippers prepare for a big Hanover team next week.

Girls' hockey to face 'bullies' alone

The girls varsity field hockey team does not have a coach this year and apparently nobody can do anything about it.

Lisa Seadale gave a good deal of her time to help out J.V. coach Claire Brady but had to leave for college this weekend.

A good deal of the organizing and/or coaching is being done by the two senior captains Heidi Brown, a hustling midfielder and Tara Diab, the teams' goalkeeper.

The Skippers are fielding a 14 member team this year. In the front line, goal scoring positions are held by Brenda Whitlow, Anne Abbruzzese, Karen Lipsett, Sally Cook, Liz Atkinson, Patty Johnson, and Kate Cowen. Joining Brown at Midfield are Karen Froio and Anne Kearney. Majoring in defense and protecting goalkeep Diab are Anne Bear, Christine Karcher, Bridgett Farren and Lisa Thornton.

The Skippers, now coachless, are 1-2 with a one to nothing win over Scituate.

The Skippers face Middleboro this week. They play on the field in front of the high school. It should be a good game and the team could use a little support from their fans.

Girls' soccer team expects successful year

This is the second year of girls soccer in Cohasset and they are already showing marked improvement. They tied an extremely tough Scituate team this week 1-1 with a goal by Amy Duncomb. Last year Scituate had an easy victory.

The girls have a new coach this year, Mr. Fallon, known to gym class students as "The Kung Fu guy."

Senior Pam Johnson, captain, not only plays, she coaches.

Apparently, the girls couldn't decide who to pick because they have 4 captains; one main captain, Pam Johnson, a competent midfielder, and three co-captains: Barbera Gurnis, Ellen Digilronamo, and Donna Chisolom, the three starting forwards.

Michell Shea, Mary O'Brian, Hannah Clinton, Pam Johnson, Buttons Wilson, Sue Darymple, Lauren Oliemiean, Katie Smazell and Vicky Keane make up the backfield as well as Amy Whittet, Tina Birman, Karen Murphy, and Janet Digilronamo.

The goal for the Skippers is divided between Jennifer Fox and Tracy Keating.

The girls face Bridgewater-Raynam and Rockland this week. It looks as if they are on the road to a big season.

Jazzercise your pounds away!

The Cohasset Recreation Department will accept registration daily, from 2:30-4:30 p.m. through Friday, September 26, for a Jazzercise Dance fitness program.

The program is designed for physical fitness attained through dance routines and studying exercises.

Area of concentration are the Cardio-Vascular system, flexibility, balance, coordination, posture, muscle toning, and endurance. All dance routines are choreographed torhythmicand popular music.

Patricia Antoine will instruct the 8 week course, which will meet in the Town Hall Auditorium Monday evenings from 7-8 p.m., beginning Friday, October 6, 1980. The fee will be $6 per person for the eight week session.

Sign up for 'the buzz' to Middleboro

TheCohasset Gridiron Club will sponsor a "Buzz Trip" to the Cohasset-Middleboro game Friday, Oct. 10.

The cost is $7 per person; this includes bus fare, game ticket and refreshments. The seats are limited to only 40 couples.

The two buses will depart from Cushing Plaza at 5:45 sharp for the 7:30 game.

Tickets can be reserved by calling 383-6637, 383-9416 or 383-0132. Help support the team and have a good time. Beats driving.

if you didn't like them you could certainly think of a lot worse things to call them than broads."

Clark also said Randy was probably the only chief, ever, who patrolled the streets with an attack dog on his lap. "And it's lucky you never had to shoot anybody...they would look pretty funny with lollypops coming our of them." (Randy stored lollypops in his shotgun barrel).

Clark offered Randy a money tree, with $120 worth of $1 bills on it. But later, Keating said "I'm going to tell you how cheap the selectmen really are...they made a big deal out of that present...but they didn't contribute one cent. Never thought I'd see the day when Arthur Clark would hand out somebody else's money...but I just saw it." The $120 represented a $1 a day for all the unpaid sick days Randy had coming.

When Clark mentioned Randy's famous black book, Randy produced it...and gasps were heard from the crowd. It can certainly be said the former chief still had everybody under control.

Randy said he was going to give the money tree to his attorney, for you can guess what purposes.

Atty. David Sweeny read an original poem to Randy, and Bob Ciciotte and Clark Chatterton presented a slide show of Randy's life...more or less. Senator Allen McKinnon presented a proclamation from the senate. And Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray read one from the house, and also presented a proclamation from Governor Edward King.

While Gerard Stanton presented Randy with a basket of tomatoes as a peace-offering. But it was later learned the tomatoes had been picked from Randy's own garden!

Dave Bernstein presented Randy with a subscription to 'Boston Magazine.' And Police Sgt. Jack Rhodes presented Randy with $500 from the Police Association.

Randy also received an $800 plus check from the testimonial committee which can be put towards the purchase of a new 18-ft. boat at cost...a deal which Eric Pearson worked out with a boat-maker in Florida.

When Randy was asked if he wished to respond to any of the above, he said: "My wife gave specific instructions to keep my mouth shut. Thank you very much. I love you very much... and God bless you all."

She sited some 50 new homes in the area. "People in West Scituate are also concerned. We don't feel we should be uncovered until something else happens. My own house would have been destroyed if I had to wait for the trucks from Central Station."

Piepenbrink said he was two men short at the station due to retirement. "The closing of the Beechwood Station makes manning the ambulance more efficient. I'm between a rock and a hard place. I also have pressure from other town boards to reduce costs."

Piepenbrink said he felt Beechwood residents were receiving good protection from Central Fire Station, as the new pumper operates at a higher velocity. "We still only have one ambulance...operating out of Central. It doesn't take many minutes for it to respond anywhere in town. Distance is a prime factor — and the distance to Beechwood has remained the same."

Residents disagreed with Piepenbrink. They noted there is only one access road to Beechwood. Trees down and flooding in Beechwood is not uncommon, residents said. They also noted that one car accident could block access for an indeterminate amount of time.

"Last week a tank truck overturned," Eric Pearson said. "Access was blocked. A Fire Station at the Cohasset Motors site on 3A will make no difference if the trees are down on Beechwood."

Selectman Chairman Arthur Clark noted that several years ago a series of hearings were held regarding a study to eliminate the Beechwood and North Cohasset Fire Stations. He said the hearings were poorly attended by residents of either area. "Town Meeting recently turned down a 3A location for a fire station. Now we have the opportunity to purchase Cohasset Motors...that will solve the problem for us."

Nancy Clapp said she felt the Beechwood Fire Station had made a life and death difference in the area in recent years.

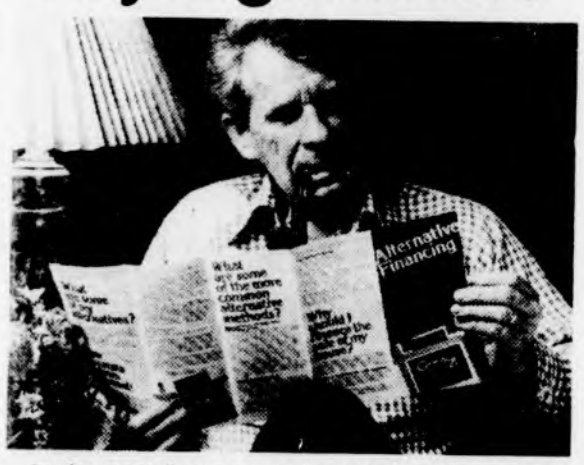
In a 15 to 20% inflation world, how do you get ahead?



In the past 5 years, real estate has been one of the few investments able to act as an equity builder. For most investors, returns for the past 5 years have greatly exceeded the pace of inflation.

So don't let inflation whittle you down to nothing. Stop in today and look at the listings available. With the substantial number of properties in inventory, we should have several that meet your needs. Do it today, before what you're worth gets any smaller.

This week's special investment opportunity is a Boatyard and Marina. It has 60 mooring, 12 floats, an upstairs rental unit, and is located in Hull. It is being offered at $137,500. Cohasset lots (scarce and valuable) are also available right now.

TWO WAYS TO GET HELP FOR YOUR DOWN AND OUT TEENAGER.

Many young people with average to above average intelligence are unmotivated, underachieving, failing students. They're down on school, down on adults, down on themselves. One way or another, they've taken themselves out of the running for an education. But they can be helped.

If you have a "down and out" teenager, there are two things you can do:

1. Contact The Center for Alternative Education. CAE is an accredited, Chapter 766-approved day school that combines a therapeutic academic curriculum with strong practical counseling. Eighty-five percent of the students who have attended CAE have gone on to complete high school.
2. Contact the Massachusetts Department of Education, Division of Special Education, for information about your specific rights and means to help under Chapter 766.

from the kitchen

By Joan Pinkham

Is there anyone who still eats apple pie for breakfast, or, like most of us, do you just grab a quick cup of coffee? A friend from the senior set recalls the hearty breakfasts served when she was a girl in Maine. "We had liver and bacon, pork chops, small steaks, fish balls, deviled kidneys and bacon, creamed chipped beef, finnan haddie. There was always oatmeal that had ripened on the back of the stove all night, served with thick cream and West Indian molasses. Homemade bread, donuts and pie — all taken for granted in those days." For a late Sunday breakfast, what could be better than Emma Schofield's

APPLE BUTTER MUFFINS

1 c. sugar
1 egg
1/2 T. melted butter
2 c. flour
1 T. baking powder
1/4 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. cinnamon
1 c. milk
1 c. finely diced fresh apples

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Combine sugar, egg and melted butter. Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and cinnamon. Add dry ingredients, milk and fresh apples. Mix only to moisten. Pour into greased muffin pans. Bake 25 min. Makes 12 large and 6 small muffins. Batter may be refrigerated and reused.

"The time has come to throw away diet pills, the Metrecal, the crash diets and a great many phobias, neuroses and guilt feelings as well." Isn't that music to your ears? It's a quotation from an article by Dr. Paul Scholten of San Francisco, who delights us by saying a moderately plump person can be in excellent health and allowed to eat anything within reason. "Our present obsession with dieting denies natural human instincts," Dr. Scholten writes. "Eating is one of the two greatest pleasures man experiences. Let us be honest, stop propagandizing falsely for dieting and liberate our patients to fully enjoy the thrice-daily pleasure of eating." With that cheerful advice, how about a slice of Ginny Whitmore's pie? It's a recipe we printed back in 1974, but is worth repeating now when we're surrounded by tomatoes for

GREEN TOMATO PIE

Pastry for double crust pie
5 medium, or 3 1/2 c. sliced green tomatoes
3/4 c. washed, seedless raisins
1 1/2 tsp. lemon rind
2 T. lemon juice
1 T. cider vinegar
1 1/2 c. sugar
1/2 tsp. salt
3 T. flour
1/2 tsp. cinnamon
1/8 tsp. ginger
1 T. white bread crumbs
Butter

Wash and cut tomatoes into quarters and slice very thin. Put into bowl. Stir in raisins, lemon rind and juice, vinegar and salt. Mix sugar with flour and spices. Sprinkle bread crumbs on bottom of pie crust. Mix sugar and flour mixture into tomatoes. Pour into pie crust and dot with butter. Lay on the top crust, crimping edges. Bake for 50 min., or longer in 350 or 375 oven.

EGG CHEESE SOUFFLE

8 slices white bread broken into small pieces
1/4 lb. cheddar cheese, grated
1 stick butter
4 eggs, beaten
2 c. milk
Salt and pepper to taste

Grease 9 x 13" pan. Layer bread and grated cheese. Drizzle melted butter over bread and cheese mixture. Pour eggs, milk and seasoning over all. Cover with foil and let sit in refrigerator overnight. Bake at 350 degrees for approximately 50 to 60 min. when ready to serve. Serve. Serves eight.

Angler's Corner

By Lindy Blaisdell

In the last three anglers corners we touched on life history, growth, size-weight, reproduction, migration, economic value, feeding habits, and fresh water adaptation of the striped bass. To conclude, here are a few historial notes and places you may expect to find stripers this fall.

As early as 1623 the Plymouth Colonists were able to feed themselves by netting stripers in Plymouth-Duxbury Bay. Hand lining, using lobster tails for bait was popular in 1635. The Pilgrims saw a decline in available stripers as well as cod and in 1639 a law was drawn up forbidding use of either fish as fertilizer for farm crops. The first public school in the New World, 1670, was built from funds generated by the sale of stripers as well as mackerel and herring.

The law establishing a size limit (16 inches from the tip of the jaw to the fork in the tail) was drawn up in 1945. In 1947 Massachusetts passed a law prohibiting the taking of striped bass by any other method other than hook and line.

Since the Dingell-Johnson Act of 1954, biologists have had funds available to study the striper. Much has been discovered yet much more about the elusive striped bass remains a mystery.

Small stripers have been caught all summer long in Duxbury Bay. Some of 20 pounds were caught along Plymouth Beach earlier. Now larger fish (to 40 pounds) are being reported along Plymouth beach at Bug Light and Brown's Banks.

The the approach of cool weather keep your lines wet in the vicinity of the glades in Scituate, Fourth Cliff at the North River, Beetle Rock of Rexhame Beach in Marshfield, High Pines along Duxbury Beach. Areas in Duxbury Bay are the channel at the north end of Clark's Island and also the channel landing up to Long Bridge. Kingston Bay channel just off Standish Shores. Plymouth Bay along the beach and at the marker before turning into the Harbor. Brown's Banks and Bug Light are always good as is the section out in front of the Plymouth power plant.

'Run for Our Dreams' handicap marathon

If you're an insomniac runner who averages between 7 and 9 minutes per mile, this is the marathon for you!

If your pace is slower, or you don't run, or if you'd needa trap of several alarms to get you out of bed at 2 a.m., you'll still be interested in the October 11-12 24-hour "Run for Our Dreams" Marathon.

Dave McGillivray of Medford, nationally known marathon runner for many charitable causes, will undertake an unprecedented marathon task for the benefit of the Wrentham State School for the Mentally Handicapped.

Dave and volunteer runners, bikers and walk-trotters, armed with as many pledges per mile as they can muster, will start out at 2 p.m. Saturday, October 11 at the school in Wrentham. Their pace will bring the finish of the 120 mile route which circles the Greater Boston-Southeastern Massachusetts area in 24 hours ending up at Schaeffer Stadium in Foxboro on Sunday, October 12 at halftime during the New England Patriots/Miami Dolphin football game.

Dave and his entourage, which will include world-class runners like Bill Rogers and Johnny Kelley, media personalities, area professional athletes, individuals of all ages, plan to run through Cohasset at approximately 2:20 a.m. to 2:50 a.m. for 4.7 miles along Rte. 3A in a southerly direction from Hingham to Scituate.

Cohasset runners, joggers, bikers, cheerers, charitable supporters, this is where you come in!

Individuals of all ages are invited to participate either by running or sponsoring a runner and are encouraged to solicit pledges for each mile they run. Those earning the greatest amount in sponsorship money will be awarded.

Maria Plante (383-9263) and Dave Campbell (383-1344) are coordinating the run for Cohasset and they will be contacting local police, selectmen, schools and civic organizations in town for support.

While runners are invited to join the run at any time and any place along the course, they must supply their own support team if they intend to run along for a great distance.

Oyster Changes

Remember way back in January when we said we'd put in your oyster ad and keep it in until it did the job?

Well, we've been doing that. And it's worked beautifully for all of us. But there's one little problem. People have not always remembered to call us when the item's been sold, the job's been found, or the carpool's been organized. Consequently, we've been informed that people have answered ads only to find they were too late.

Here's the solution. Your oyster (same rules) will be kept in for eight weeks. Then out it comes. But . . . if you still need to have the ad in, call us. We'll try to rewrite it (without additional charge) for more success for another eight weeks. So we're with you through thick and thin pianos for sale and your search for roommates. But we have to put a limit on this folks. Else we'll have a paper full of advertisements which are outdated.

Fire Chief says TM must decide station fate

(ED.'S NOTE: Fire Chief Charles Piepenbrink addressed the following remarks to Cohasset Selectmen in a letter dated Wednesday, September 17. In paragraph seven of this letter Chief Piepenbrink stated that he would reopen the Beechwood Fire Station on October 1, for a four-week period, until a reconstruction project on Clapp Road in Scituate is completed.)

To the Board of Selectmen:

In response to your request for information relative to the closing of the Beechwood Fire Station: several factors exist and will continue to exist until such time as the town responds in a positive manner to this problem. In my opinion a positive response will be one of the following:

1. Provide a facility that will house modern day fire apparatus and provide adequate and safe housing of the men and equipment at a more central location, such as what has been proposed by the Benjiman Report and again proposed by Warren Y. Kimball. This would be a consolidated facility combining the North Cohasset and Beechwood equipment.

2. Provide a facility to replace the existing structure at Beechwood, capable of housing modern day fire apparatus and providing adequate and safe quarters for the men. This would be a continuation of the present three fire station operation and disregard the information that was provided by the previously mentioned planners.

3. Close the Beechwood Fire Station and operate the men and equipment from the Central Fire Station on Elm Street. This method is in place at the moment and it is apparent that this is not looked upon with favor by many.

To resolve this problem requires a positive statement by the townspeople as to what direction they desire to go. Then and only then can the problem be resolved to the satisfaction of the majority.

Since the closing of the station at Beechwood this office has received notification from the Town of Scituate, Department of Public Works relative to the reclamation and reconstruction of Clapp Road. This work is scheduled to start on October 1 and continue for about four (4) weeks.

As a means of providing assistance to the Town of Scituate during this work it is my intention to reopen the Beechwood Fire Station until such time as this project is completed. Hopefully, at this time some expression of the Town's desires will be known relative to the problem of fire department housing.

Protection will be provided from this station by one (1) firefighter on duty and the apparatus will be a 1953 Ford truck, designated Forest II.

The apparatus that was previously in that station was removed by its owner and sold. For the Town to purchase it from the Farrar Company and make the necessary repairs would have cost between $4,000 and $5,000. An expense of this amount did not seem to me to be cost efficient.

If you have any questions regarding this subject please feel free to contact me.

Charles Piepenbrink
Chief of Fire Department

Abutter takes issue with condo proposal

To the Editor:

Can you think of a better place to construct condominiums than right smack dabe in the middle of a flood plain zone?

Contrary to belief, I have been assured, that a recently proposed construction of condominiums shall have little or no effect on the immediate residents of the area.

I am sorry to say that engineering statistics, now being considered for the actual approval of this project, do very little to erase the actual memories I have encountered over the past years as a result of flooding. You can be assured that most of the memories are not fond ones, but who knows, if this project is approved by the town boards, these memories may become reality again someday.

The land upon which these condominiums are to be constructed, presently houses the main watershed brook for the entire town. This brook, commonly known as James Brook, along with two smaller brooks which also run throughout this piece of property, carries watershed from an estimated 810 acres of land.

I have been assured that, regardless of the study done in 1955 in which the engineers hired by the town strongly suggested a replacement of the pipe for fear that it might someday collapse, there should be no immediate concern now.

How could I be so stupid, to think that this project might create future complications. According to the developer's statements, the pipe must have somehow repaired itself over the years. Even if repairs of this pipe are necessary after the completion of this project, there should be nothing to worry about because the town holds a twenty foot easement through the whole piece of land.

Expenses should not be that much more for repairs through a developed piece of land as opposed to an undeveloped piece of land. Besides, just how much of a difference would it be to replace asphalt and concrete and to re-landscape the grounds, as opposed to replacing the present gravel? What are a few more dollars to the taxpayers of this town?

The actual proposed design and layout of this complex has led me to believe that common sense has little effect on the outcome of future planning for this town. The location should not leave much to be desired. The commuter bus to Boston is only a two minute walk away, but just think if the trains should ever make a comeback, you could just walk out the back door and be practically right on one.

Once the developer has released his interest in the project by selling all eight units, a maintenance agreement, signed by all owners should be considered to maintain the entire 64,000 sq. ft. of this development, in order to prevent it from becoming a possible eyesore.

Such expenses should include land-maintenance, repair or replacement of sidewalks and driveways, snow removal, etc. Also included in this agreement should be a plan to cover repairs of the on-lot, multi-use sewerage system.

For example, if Mr. or Mrs. Jones accidently drops something in the toilet and repairs are necessary to the main system, then each owners would only be responsible for one-eighth of the total expense, regardless of the cause.

Also to be taken into consideration is the fact that if for some strange reason the property should flood, then all eight families are affected. It is always nice to have someone to share your problems with.

Town by-laws and zoning restrictions have hindered the installation of some of the luxuries commonly found in most condominium complexes. The on-site sewerage system creates a problem as far as garbage disposals go.

Right now they are a definite "no-no." But do not fret, town sewerage is a definite possibility for this area in the next ten years. For the present time there will be a fenced in area for the storage of all refuse.

Also, careful considerations have been taken for the possibility of installing washers and dryers. Just how much effect would two and half bathrooms, a washer and a kitchen have on an on-lot sewerage sytem, located in a flood area?

If for some reason the washers and dryers can not be installed then there is no worry for even though the nearest laundromat is in the next town, it is a relatively short distance away. Even though a swimming pool and tennis courts are not being considered, it should pose no problem as springtime around here may bring about a natural swimming pool to the area and the tennis courts are only a short distance away.

I suppose for a mere $90,000.00 to $105,000.00 per unit, one could not expect to get too many luxuries.

I believe I neglected to mention also that due to unfortunate circumstances, there will not be any garages to house the owner's cars, but how many people put their cars in the garage nowadays. In most cases they are only used for storage of lawn furniture, tools, lawn mowers and etc.

In conclusion I would like to add that all of the board of the town which are directly affected by this project, should carefully consider the future of the prospective owners and the effect it will have on the immediate residents, in all aspects.

Leary

Committeewoman Diane Kornet brought to the committee's attention letters from Mt. Holycke, Bowdoin, Bates, Wellesley, Tufts, Cape Cod Community College and Harvard-Radcliff that showed administrators from those schools not only know Leary well, but agree that "in actual terms of money spend, (travel) is a more effective way to give admissions people exposure."

Requests for reconsideration came from many parents in the audience and they more than once reminded the committee to listen to the wishes of the taxpayers. Barbara Spooner said, "I think that we have elected you to ensure the best possible education for our children and we look to you to give this man the opportunity to go beyond New England." "Be more flexible with our tax money when important priorities come up," said Maria Plante.

Dick Conley suggested that "You can move money around . . . the sum of $800 is not exorbitant and I think one of you should move to reconsider." School committee member Jack Landmaid said, "We can move money around . . . we should add to the $2,000 out-of-state travel figure."

England reminded those present that a reduction in out-of-state travel funds for this year's budget was in response to the 4 per cent budget cap set by the state, but in the end the committee did increase the figure by $800.

When the discussion ended, the silence from the three committee members who still refused to budge on reconsideration was heavy.

After a brief executive session the committee came out to vote its approval for a change in classification for Mary Brennock, secretary in the guidance office. The committee indicated it would again return to executive session and the press and most of the audience had gone home. It was then, however, the committee had second thoughts.

Martha Gjesteby moved for a compromise appropriation of $400 for Leary in light of the evening's proceedings and the committee's approval of a request by Streeter for $320 to send an administrative delegate to attend the CEEB (College Entrance Examination Board) meeting in New York City.

Fred Wood said, "How do you divide that?" He told the committee that he was against that idea adding, "Either you do it all or you do nothing." He also told the committee that he and other citizens at the meeting had already decided to raise the money for Leary themselves. "We are raising $800. Mr. Leary is going."

Frank England concurred with Wood's point that either they spend $800 or they spend nothing. The argument was persuasive. Ms. Gjesteby's motion was withdrawn and England moved to appropriate the full amount of $800 and it was approved by a vote of 6-0.

Sale to benefit children

The North River Chapter of Friends of the New England Home for Little Wanderers will be holding a sale of good, used children's clothing, toys, and sports equipment on Sat., Oct. 4 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. The sale will be held at the First Parish Church Hall on River St. in Norwell Center.

The group is also preparing for its annual Barn Sale Sat. October 18. For more information or to make donations for either sale, please call Marsha Silvia, 383-9395. The children in the care of the Home benefit directly from all sales, so any and all help will be greatly appreciated.

Sign up for concert series

Under the artistic direction of Harry Ellis Dickson, the Boston Symphony Orchestra performs classical and contemporary music especially selected to appeal to young people in grades 4-12. Visual accompaniment in the form of mime, dance, slides, puppets, chorus, soloists, and instrumental demonstrations are featured as well.

The series of three Saturday morning concerts will be November 8, February 7, and April 11. Bus transportation is provided from the Osgood school.

Ticket deadline is October 15. Please contact Mrs. James Mullen, 383-1993, or Mrs. David Sweeney 383-1184, as soon as possible. A limited number of tickets are available.

Nuclear pot bubbles as election day nears

By Lydia Long

Is nuclear energy safe? Is there such a thing as an effective safeguard against human error? If we cut off our nuclear option, can we ever reduce our dependence on OPEC oil? Are alternative energy sources viable alternatives? How do you feel about living near a nuclear power plant?

These questions are hardly new. But they are being raised in a new form for Cohasset residents this fall. For the first time since the Three Mile Island accident one and a half years ago, voters in eight Massachusetts senatorial and 26 representative districts will have the chance to signal their representatives as to how they feel about nuclear power.

The Third Plymouth Representative District (Cohasset, Hingham and Hull) has placed on its Nov. 4 ballot a non-binding, public policy question asking voters if they support a moritorium on nuclear plant construction and promotion of alternative energy

Who are the beneficiaries of Proposition 2½?

By Tanna Kasperowicz

On November 4 Massachusetts voters will be asked to approve or reject two laws, proposed by initiative petition, which would limit taxation within the state.

The first petition, submitted by the Citizens for Limited Taxation (CLT) is known as Proposition 2½, its main feature being that it would "cap" annual aggregate state and local property tax levies (but not tax rates) at 2½ per cent of the "full and fair cash valuation" of real and personal property taxes. The second petition, sponsored by the Massachusetts Teachers Association (MTA) would stop the 2½ per cent legislation and call upon the state to increase its financial support of the public schools.

Both petitions were rejected by the House of Representatives in May, 1980. Accordingly, both sponsors gathered additional voter signatures to cause their legislation to be placed on the 1980 state election ballot.

In Cohasset, a single 15 per cent cut in the local levy (the property tax levy and motor vehicle excise tax levy) would achieve the 2½ per cent limit which Proposition 2½, if passed, would require.

The provisions of Proposition 2½ would be applied to the 1982 property tax levies and the 1981 motor vehicle excise tax levy...the latter having already been figured into the town's budget according to Town Accountant William Signorelli. This loss would represent $310,600. This current fiscal year it would cause a loss of $155,000 in motor vehicle excise taxes.

It is presently unknown how Proposition 2½ would affect the town's mandated sewer project or entering into any future, pending state agreements.

It is thought that Proposition 2½ would have no immediate effect on state taxes or spending, other than the automobile excise tax levy.

It would not reduce or limit state taxes such as the state income tax, sales tax, business taxes, utility company excise taxes, gasoline tax or taxes on cigarettes and liquor.

Neither would it appear to put a limit on state spending for welfare or social services, or control state bureaucracy or state government.

Proposition 2½ would put a heavy hand on local spending, according to Signorelli. As of 1982 Cohasset would have to cut $889,108 from its budget. In a two-year period (Cohasset would comply with Proposition 2½ as of 1983) the town would reduce its budget by $1,309,888. That reduction must further be coupled with a further, likely, 10 or 20 per cent reduction as a result of inflation.

Proponents claim economic growth

The League of Women Voters is against Proposition 2½ and it makes no bones about it.

Thursday, October 9 it will hold a public rally at the Unitarian Church, Trueblood Hall beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The purpose of the rally is to present facts and facets regarding Proposition 2½ which will hopefully defeat the proposed law.

Will Proposition 2½ pass?

"Did you ever hear of anybody who wanted to kill Santa Claus?" Selectman Chairman Arthur Clark said, rhetorically. "It will pass," Clark lamented.

As Milton Friedman once said, "Almost nothing needs to be run by the government." Proponents of Proposition 2½ want property tax relief. They no longer want the "lion's share" of property taxes to fall on owners and users of residential property. They say high property taxes aggravate the housing problems of the state and are a factor in discouraging certain types of business development (and jobs).

Proposition 2½ proponents say a decrease in the tax burden will promote economic growth. And a study published by the Harris Economic Research Office Service in November, 1978 reveals an increase in economic growth in many Western and Southern states coupled with decrease in their relative tax burdens.

(turn to page 14)

The benefits of Proposition would accrue to the homeowner and landlord primarily in the form of reduced tax bills, and the the renter in the form of a state income tax deduction. Homeowners would also find the annual increase in their tax bills limited to 2½ per cent once the 2½ per cent cap had been reached.

Rover Ralphie roams about on mail route, no matter the weather!

Ralphie...a 13 year-old Lab/Poodle ...doesn't have many teeth in front, and these days he has to be helped onto Mailman Henry Rattenbury's motorcycle. But for the past five years this is the way Ralphie and Henry have been wending their way to the Ripley Road U.S. Post Office.

After Henry does assorted administrative work at the Post Office, Henry and Ralphie then jump into a mail truck, and begin the delivery of the Mariner (a pre-paid mailed weekly newspaper), candidates' literature, assorted bills, magazines to the residents of the Beach Street and Jerusalem Road.

Sometimes, but not often, when Ralphie sleeps a little later and Henry leaves without his partner, Ralphie will invariably "catch up" with Henry somewhere on the route, which he knows by heart.

"Sometimes I'll find him waiting for the truck on Border Street," Henry said.

(ED.'S NOTE: This news item was brought to the Mariner's attention by June Simeone, a neighbor of the Rattenburys.)

Vicky Fitzgerald, food editor of the Patriot Ledger; Phyllis Haynes, food editor of the Christian Science Monitor; and the Plymouth County vegetable expert will be in Cohasset this week to judge entries in the Harvest Festival, sponsored by the Community Garden Club of Cohasset.

Persons wishing to enter their jams, jellies, pickles, candies, vegetables, needlework, breads, flowers in a friendly competition should take their exhibits to the Unitarian Parish House Friday, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Judging will take place from 3-5 p.m. Friday and a preview party will be held Friday beginning at 6 p.m. sharp. Party donation is $3.

Saturday, October 4, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. a Farmer's Market will be open to the public at the Town Hall. Antique tables, dried arrangements, silk arrangements, boutique articles such as pillows will be offered for sale. A gourmet food tasting will be a highlighted feature, as will herbs, jams and pot pourri. Exhibits will be on display at the Unitarian Parish House all day Saturday.

Have lunch (lobster rolls and homemade beef vegetable soup and coffee) at the Congregational Church from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Homemade cheese cake is dessert.

BID AWARDS

Taken under advisement by selectmen last week were insulation bids for the Town Hall attic. Atlantic Home Insulators of Rhode Island were low bidders at $2,150. The Ed Goff Company of Cohasset was the second low bidder at $2,998.

The Ed Goff Company was awarded the contract for Town Hall storm windows at $7,255. Energy Management Systems of Boston submitted an alternative bid for magnetic storm windows at $5,990. Town Counsel advised selectmen that bid specifications would have to be readvertised in order for the board to consider magnetic windows, as specs called for aluminum windows.

OIL BID AWARD

Selectmen awarded the town's fuel oil contract to Deep Water Oil of Quincy at 83 cents a gallon. Deep Water was low bidder.

CONCRETE BID

Old Colony of Quincy, low bidder, was awarded a contract for supplying bituminous concrete to the highway department. Only two companies bid on the contract.

CENSUS FIGURE

Preliminary census figures from the Census Bureau show a housing count of 2,508 in Cohasset, and 7,170 residents. Selectmen said last week the local count shows a population of 7,750. Selectman Rocco Laugelle said the Census Bureau's figures were approximately 13 per ce... off.

Selectmen said they would argue with the Census Bureau on the preliminary figures, but since then Lt. Governor Tom O'Neill's office has announced it will discuss filing a Massachusetts suit against the Census Bureau sometime in the next few weeks.

The suit will be similar to a suit filed by Detroit recently. "Like Detroit, we feel the Census Bureau drastically undercounted our population. Like Detroit, our legal suit will be based on arguments that an undercount violates the Constitutional one man, one vote rule, since census counts determine how many Congressional seats a state has."

At stake are millions of dollars in federal aid.

DIESEL FUEL

Selectmen have approved a permit for Charles Marks of Marks Service Station to install a 4,000 capacity diesel fuel tank at his South Main Street business pending a conservation commission hearing. The property is located in wetlands. No abutters filed objections at the selectmen's hearing.

Derby sale

Cohasset parents are reminded to bring their clothing and salable items to the Derby Academy Lower School daily between the hours of 8:30 a.m. to noon. The Parents Association Sale, open to the public, will be held on Friday, October 17 and Saturday, October 18 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. All proceeds from sale will go to help finance special projects for the school.

Oktoberfest begins Oct 11th

The Community Center will sponsor its Third Annual Oktoberfest Saturday, October 11 on the green between the post office and the Center from 10 a.m. and continuing through the afternoon.

The Oktoberfest will feature omph-pah, prizes, a pumpkin contest, white elephant tables and crafts. Special features for the kids will include pony and boat rides.

A grilled lunch offering will include bratwurst, knockwurst, hot dogs, hamburgers, beer and tonic. John Kuhn is chairman of the event. For further information, please call the center from 9-12 noon daily: 383-0088.

McKinnon asks auto insurance reform

Senator Allan McKinnon, Senate Chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Insurance, was among many testifying before Commissioner Michael Sabbagh at the first in a series of public hearings to discuss proposed rate increases in Massachusetts auto insurance rates for 1981.

The insurance industry has requested a 24.5 per cent hike totaling 196 million dollars, the rating bureau has recommended a 6.2 per cent increase, and the Attorney General has called for a 9.3 per cent hike — some 75 million dollars.

McKinnon said there were a number of factors which should serve to keep 1981 rate increases to a minimum. One important reform, McKinnon said, was the combining of uninsured and underinsured coverages and the increase in mandatory bodily injury limits from 5/10 to 10/10.

"Prior to the increase in bodily injury limits, losses in the underinsured category were in large part attributable to the inadequacy of thoselimits. In addition, with motorists now required to purchase underinsured coverage, the risk will be spread and the company's processing expenses will be reduced significantly," McKinnon said.

He added that all indications show that merit rating surcharges have played a key role in the adoption of better driving habits on the part of motorists. "Second, the ongoing energy crisis has caused a substantial reduction in driving and greater adherence to gas saving speed limits...and reportedly, an increase in ridership by public transit systems."

According to McKinnon, auto theft has been on the decline. "And the impact of the new anti-theft laws should enhance that decline and be more sharply felt in 1981."

McKinnon said he firmly believes the insurance division would support efforts to increase the tort threshhold, possibly tying it to the Consumer Price Index. "This change would hopefully eliminate many frivolous suits and keep bodily injury expenses in check."

Anderson bumper stickers

Charles Lynch of 36 Sohier Street (383-1531), of the National Unity Campaign for John B. Anderson, announces that Anderson for President bumper stickers are available at his home. A donation of $1 apiece for each bumper sticker is requested to aid the Anderson campaign.

Ford breakfast Sunday

The Democratic Town Committees of Cohasset, Hingham and Hull are cosponsoring a Unity Breakfast in Cohasset on October 5. Invited guests include Democratic nominee for State Representative Theodore Ford, Congressman Gerry Studds, State Senator Allan McKinnon, State Representative Phillip Johnston, Candidates John Conwell of Hull, and Richard Doherty and Edmund Demko of Hingham.

The Unity Breakfast will kick-off Ted Ford's fall campaign and according to Cohasset Democratic Chairman Donna McGee "Ted Ford's candidacy is drawing very broad support from Democrats and Independents in all three towns."

McKinnon here Wednesday

Senator Allan R. McKinnon (D- Norfolk and Plymouth) or a member of his staff will be available to speak to Cohasset constituents Wednesday, Oct. 8 at 8 p.m. at Town Hall.

If this time is inconvenient, please call McKinnon's office at 727-8820 or write to Senator McKinnon in care of Room 321, State House, Boston, MA 02133.

Six students receive merit scholar honors

The Principal, Richard T. Streeter, of Cohasset Junior/Senior High announced today that four seniors are being commended for their outstanding performance in the twenty-sixth annual (1981) National Merit Scholarship Program.

Letters of Commendation from the school and National Merit Scholarship Corporation, which conducts the competition, will be presented to Patrick S. Duffy, Edward G. Durant, Stephen A. Saleski, and Catherine A. Smalzel.

More than one million students entered the 1981 Merit Program by taking the PSAT/NMSQT in 1979. About 33,000 of these students throughout the United States will receive a commendation for outstanding test performance.

Mr. Streeter also announced that two students, Charles M. Bliss, Jr., and Philip R. Dormitzer have been named semifinalists in the Merit program. They join some 15,000 other students nationwide who will continue in competition for Merit Scholarships.

Ford proposes regional refuse facility

Theodore Ford, Democratic nominee for State representative called for a regional approach to the problem of land fill sites (i.e. town dumps) at a meeting of Democrats in Cohasset on Sept. 26. Ford stated that the problem of dump management would receive his priority consideration if he is elected to the State legislature. Ford said that the dumps in Cohasset and Hull are in watershed areas and that the State Office of Environmental Quality Engineering is rigorously enforcing state regulations which may force the two towns to close their dumps.

Hingham officials, according to Ford, have said their dump can operate for three or four more years, however they are already looking at the possibility of constructing a very expensive incinerator which could be used to generate heat and electricity.

"State agencies are leaning on officials from Hull and Cohasset for plans that will close their dumps. Meanwhile Hingham is talking about a $5 million incinerator. The towns can save money and attain long term environmental and economic benefits with a regional centrally located solid waste plant."

Ford noted that stiff state regulations and efforts by the King administration to move dump management from the towns to the private sector were creating headaches for town officials throughout the state.

"A regional facility requires cooperation from not only the local towns, but from the State Legislature and state agencies and that's where I come into the picture," said Ford.

In anticipation of Proposition 2½

(ED.'S NOTE: The following notice was found posted by the Town Hall coffee machine. Apparently the Personnel Board has acted in anticipation of Proposition Two and a Half.)

NEW SICK LEAVE POLICY

Sickness: No excuse. We will no longer accept your doctor's statement as proof, as we believe that if you are able to go to the doctor's, you are able to come to work.

Leave of Absence: (For an Operation) We are no longer allowing this practice. We wish to discourage any thought that you may have about needing an operation. We believe that as long as you are employed here, you will need all of whatever you have and should not consider having anything removed. We hired you as you are and to have anything removed would certainly make you less than we bargained for.

Too much time is being spent in the Rest Room. In the future, we will follow the practice of going to the Rest Room in alphabeticl order. For instance, those whose names begin with "A" will go from 8 a.m. to 8:05 a.m., "B" will go from 8:05 to 8:10 a.m., and so on. If you are unable to go at your time, it will be necessary to wait until the day when your turn comes again.

Death: (Other Than Your Own) This is no excuse. There is nothing you can do for them, and we are sure that someone else in a lesser position can attend to the arrangements. However, if the funeral can be held in late afternoon, we will be glad to let you off one hour early, provided that your share of work is ahead enough to keep the job going in your absence.

Death: (Your Own) This will be accepted as an excuse, but we would like a two-week notice, as we feel it is your duty to teach someone else your job.

Editorial

Important question missing

Tuesday, October 28, we will attend a Special Town Meeting during which many important issues will be decided.

We will decide whether to have three (present number) or five selectmen. We will debate and decide the question of whether to stay with six school committeemen or to reduce that number by one. We will be asked whether we should purchase Cohasset Motors on 3-A for a multi-use town building, including stalls for two fire trucks, or whether we should construct a new Beechwood Fire Station.

And we will be asked whether it would be wiser to start Annual Town Meeting at 1 p.m. as opposed to 10 a.m. on the first Saturday in April. Assuredly, there will be a number of other, sundry questions to be answered and a few bills to be paid.

But one of the most important questions facing this community and many other communities, is not presently on this Special Town Meeting Warrant. That being...

What are we going to do about the dump?

Where are we going to go with Cohasset's most abundant products, sludge and refuse, when and if there's no where to go?

In the past several months two amazing options were offered to the Town. The Town was given an option to buy Cohasset Motors on 3-A and was also given an option to purchase Cohasset Heights, a demolition dump with a pending refuse permit, located directly off 3-A.

In the former case, Town officials called for the October Special Town Meeting to consider that option. In the later's case, Town officials, excepting the Cohasset Board of Health, more or less ignored the option.

In a phone interview early Monday morning Health Inspector Kevin O'Brien said the Town will not be informed of the status of the present sanitary landfill until approximately the date of the Special Town Meeting, where funds must be voted for a hydrology study which will determine how much longer the present facility can be used.

The present sanitary landfill is in violation of the state's sanitary code. The state has threatened to not grant the town money for the design phase of the new sewage treatment plant until sewer commissioners have found a way to dispose of the sludge — a byproduct of the new plant.

This is a direct and urgent appeal to the Cohasset Board of Selectmen and/or the Cohasset Board of Health to sponsor an article on the Special Town Meeting Warrant which would at least warn and/or allow residents to react to the possible emergency which exists regarding disposal of sludge and refuse.

The Cohasset Board of Health has, on its own, solicited interest for other towns regarding interest in collaborating to purchase and operate a regional dump. So far two towns have expressed interest: Hull and Norwell.

This is not a question which town officials can decide alone.

Town Meeting must be made aware of all considerations and alternatives.

Early release day

Thursday, October 9th, will be an EARLY RELEASE DAY in the Cohasset Public Schools. There will be no afternoon Kindergarten sessions and other students will be dismissed according to the following schedule: Junior/Senior High School, 12:20 p.m.; Deer Hill School, 12:40 p.m.; Joseph Osgood School, 1:00 p.m.

Lunch will be served in all of the schools.

This Early Release Day has been authorized by the Cohasset School Committee in order to allow the staff at the Junior/Senior High School to continue work on their self-evaluation program.

Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, Superintendent of Schools, and Dr. Richard K. Chrystal, Director of Staff and Management Development, of Quincy Public Schools will conduct an individualized education workshop for staff members at Joseph Osgood and Deer Hill Schools.

Cohasset League of Women Voters urges voter registration

Registration to vote on November 4 closes on October 7, 1980. In addition to choosing the President and candidates for state offices, the ballot will include Proposition 2½. You must be registered by October 7 or you will not be able to exercise your vote and express your preference on this important issue. Any citizen of the United States who is a Massachusetts resident and who will be 18 years old by election day may register to vote.

Registration is permanent in Massachuseets. You need register again only if you move to another city or town, or change your name. If you move within your community, notify your registrars of voters in writing.

Also, there is no waiting period to be eligible to register. Cohasset's Town Clerk's office is open Monday through Friday, 8:30-noon and 1-4:40 p.m. Special registration will be held on Saturday, October 4 from 12 noon to 8 p.m., and on Tuesday, October 7, until 10 p.m.

WHO MAY VOTE ABSENTEE?

Registered voters may vote absentee only if they will be unable to vote at the polls on election day because of absence from town during the hours the polls are open, physical disability, or religious beliefs.

You can vote absentee by mail (an absentee ballot may be sent to any address you specify including your home) or in person at town hall. You must apply in advance for either type of ballot.

To be counted, a completed ballot must be received by the time the polls close on election day. You must apply for an absentee ballot from Town Clerk. Applications do not have to be mailed; they may be hand delivered.

BALLOTS MUST BE SENT BY MAIL BOTH WAYS, however, so apply early. If you are on the town's list of permanently disabled voters, you do not need to vote in the presence of a notary; you merely sign the envelope yourself. Students' ballot envelopes may either be notorized or signed by the registrar or assistant registrar of the college or university they are attending.

ALL OTHER VOTERS must have their ballots notarized. You vote privately in the presence of a notary who may not see how you vote or discuss your choices. Massachusetts notaries may not charge for this service. Ballots must be filled out, notarized, and MAILED to Town Clerk. In order to be counted, absentee ballots must be received by the time the polls close on election day.

The Cohasset League of Women Voters urges you to be certain you and eligible family members are registered to vote on November 4.

60-plus plans fair

Cohasset 60 Plus Club's Harvest Fair will be held Thursday, Oct. 16, at the Unitarian Parish House, opening with luncheon from 11:30 to 1:30 p.m. The Fair will again feature a 10 lb. lobster, 19" color TV set, and many other prizes.

There will also be a food table, white elephant, and jewelry table.

Chairman Fred Huntwork's raffle will commence at 2 p.m.

A brief history of the Beechwood fire station

By David Wadsworth, Town Archivist

At Town Meeting on March 4, 1895, Article 21 was voted affirmatively, to raise the sum of $1,000 to purchase hooks, ladders, and truck and a suitable place to keep the same for the Beechwood district.

On April 15, 1895, John and Aaron Pratt of Beechwood deeded to the Town 2,170 square feet of land on the East side of Doane Street just north of Beechwood Street (now a part of the Beechwood Cemetery). This was the original site of the building now located on Beechwood Street.

At Town Meeting of March 2, 1896, Article 13 was voted affirmatively to raise $100 to finish the upper room of Hook and Ladder House #2 on Doane Street, and make all necessary improvements.

At Town Meeting of March 7, 1898, it was voted affirmatively to appropriate $250 for the purpose of placing a bell on Hook and Ladder House #2.

At Town Meeting of March 1, 1915, Article 56 was voted affirmatively; that a committee of five be appointed by the Moderator to look into the moving of the Beechwood Fire Station (Hook and Ladder #2) from its present location on Doane Street to some more convenient location on Beechwood St. and to donate the land on which the building was then located to the Beechwood Cemetery Association.

Not until 1931 was a suitable location found on Beechwood Street.

On January 21, 1931 the Board of Selectmen received bids from two contractors for the moving of the Fire Station from its site at Doane Street to the new location at Beechwood Street, and to remove the cement floor at the old location.

At Town Meeting of March 7, 1931, Article 10 was voted affirmatively to purchase 2 8/10 acres of land at the corner of Beechwood and Doane Streets (now the Beechwood Ball Park) for municipal and park purposes, and to move the Beechwood Fire Station onto part of the newly purchased land.

Article 23 of Town Meeting of March 12, 1932 voted affirmatively to convey the old location of the Fire Station on Doane Street to the Beechwood Cemetery Association for the sum of $1.00.

The only older Fire Station building in Cohasset is the Independence Building at Cohasset Center, once the home of the Independence Fire Company and now the property of the Cohasset Historical Society.

So there she sits in Beechwood, enshrined in the hearts of those whom she has served, in all her faded glory but still ready to serve again should the call come.

Looking for former abestosis workers

To the Editor:

When the Boston Naval Shipyard closed in 1974 many of my co-workers retired or lost their positions permanently due to the closure of the naval shore establishment in Charlestown and its Annex in South Boston.

Other Federal workers in Massachusetts, especially those in the Department of Defense, also lost their jobs or retired.

Many of these people are unaware that during their employment period they were exposed to asbestosis, a deadly disease that leads to cancer. They were exposed while working aboard ships, aircraft, in shops and warehouses.

Other people working on defense projects in Massachusetts private industry were also exposed to asbestosis.

I have important, vital information concerning asbestosis and would like to correspond with my former co-workers and other Defense workers, Federal or private, who may have been exposed to asbestosis.

☐Ed Sheehan, social studies department chairman at the high school, is a walker, but he has two sons who are seeing the country at a faster pace.

Ed and Mary Sheehan's son, Ed, Jr. (Ted), represented the New England area at noon on Sunday in Eugene, Oregon at the "National Half-Marathon" sponsored by Miller Lite Beer. "Ted" and Greg Meyers, became eligible to represent this area in a qualifying race held recently in Orleans. Ted came in second in that race.

Sunday's results, out of a field of 1,400 for the 13 mile race were, Greg Meyers, first, with a time of 1:06:21 and Ted Sheehan, fourth, in 1:07:30.

Run-offs for the Miller Half-Marathon were held all over the country. Regional winners were invited, all expenses paid, to Oregon.

Ted placed 14th in the 1980 Boston Marathon. He graduated from Harvard University last year and is presently in graduate school there studying for a teaching coaching career. In his spare time he holds two part-time jobs — one at the Bill Rogers Running Center in Quincy Market and one at a health clinic. And he runs.

The Sheehan's younger son, Don, is also a runner making a name for himself at Boston State. Both boys are looking forward to the next race on November 2 in Newport.

☐Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Tewksbury of Elm Street (Shirley Tewksbury teaches third grade at the Osgood School) are grandparents for the first time. Their grandson, Gregory Michael Menton, was born on Tuesday, September 16 at 9:12 a.m. weighing a robust 9 lbs. two-and-a-half ounces. He is the son of Meredith and Michael Menton of West Bridgewater. Mrs. Lorraine Menton of Bridgewater is grandmother.

Gregory's great grandmother is Mrs. Carrie Thompson of Cohasset who celebrated her 90th birthday on September 11.

Congratulations on all counts!

☐Perry Harris and his sister, Edie Edgerton from Newport, Rhode Island, honored their father with a surprise party on Friday night. Perry Harris, Jr., visiting the family from Florida, celebrated his 80th birthday with many local and out-of-state friends and his six grandchildren: Greg and Debbie Edgerton, Brad and Diane Edgerton, Scott Edgerton and Kristen, Perry and Jay Harris.

☐The "Dirty Dozen" tennis team (a highly respectable covey of tennis ladies) celebrated their tenth anniversary of bi-weekly "fun" matches and gourmet lunches recently with a special noontime meal (always following play) which included a large tennis racket cake.

Joan Kenny is the only Cohasset member of the original group that has played regularly at Old Colony Tennis Club in Hingham for the past decade. The other regulars from the original group are Marge Berry, Carolyn Koonce, Lynn Whipple and Gil Kilborne of Hingham and Mary Bigler of Weymouth. Their games also include six guests who frequently include Alice Sokolowski and Pat Wright from Cohasset.

They are all experienced players, from intermediate on up, who take the game seriously, but not super competitively, from April until Halloween. Their season ends with an outdoor round robin in costume.

☐Gerry Schultz is not singing the blues because of his birthday on Sunday. His surprise party included 40 candles on a "Here's to Big Blues" cake honoring the bluefish he caught. Many happy returns, Gerry!

☐Liz Wyman who teaches art at the Osgood School has two paintings hanging at the DeCordova Museum in Lincoln. One of the two pictures acquired an amusing story over the summer. It seems that the Scituate Art Center received a visit one day from the Scituate Chief of Police and the town's lawyer. A woman had called and complained about "pornographic" art in the center. When the gentlemen were shown Liz's lovely, and not-in-the-least offensive, nude (her specialty), they all had a good laugh. So did Liz!

☐A few weeks ago David Wadsworth's 18 month job as archivist for the town ended. Town personnel, office heads, clerical workers and selectmen gave him a lunch-time farewell party. It was a small celebration of the completion of the project he's been working on, as well as an expression of regret over his leaving and appreciation of his work that has made their jobs for the town easier.

In 1977 Cohasset voters authorized the addition of a new storage vault at the high school. Wadsworth's project has been the reorganization of the town's permanent and historic records and their transfer to the new vault.

Wadsworth says, "The new system for storage is not a perfect one, but a working one. The important thing is that the records are straightened out."

He feels there is still work to be done, however, the basic requirements of the project have been satisfied. There is room now in the town hall vault for storage of temporary records and a number system (archival providence) was set up so each department has its own numerical code for more efficient storage and retrival.

As a member of the Cohasset Historic Commission, Wadsworth has been doing research for the group which hopes to establish a historic district in town to preserve the old, historic buildings.

The commission was among the first to realize that town records were not organized and they have been encouraging the preservation of historic documents.

As archivist, Wadsworth has put his interest in historic preservation to good use. A new indexing system will make it possible for researchers to refer to topic index cards rather than the original books and papers.

Included in the new index are the oldest book of town meeting, from 1717 when the town was second precinct of Hingham up to the mid-1920's, and the first records of selectmen from 1883 up through 1955. Archive supplies, such as plastic folders and acid-free envelopes, have been used to keep the oldest records preserved.

"Town personnel were very cooperative and interested in the project," says Wadsworth. He notes that anyone working with town records should be aware that Chapter 66 of the General Laws of Massachusetts is very specific about maintaining organized permanent and temporary records.

While funding undertakings like this are difficult for small towns, Wadsworth feels there should continue to be someone working on records on a part-time basis.

Mrs. Piepenbrink honored

Last Friday was "Lee's Day" — Lee Piepenbrink that is. Mrs. Piepenbrink was honored at a reception held in the afternoon at Hugo's for her retirement from the Cohasset school system after 26 years service.

Teachers and friends from the schools came to pay her tribute for a long and dedicated career. Gert Young, Elinor Kennedy, Rosalind Reardon and Kaye Sulcahy, also retired, were there to wish her well. Shirley Manna, President of the Cohasset Teachers Association, presented Mrs. Piepenbrink with a Cohasset tile table and Jack Creamer, Principal of the Osgood School, spoke of her "unfailing good humor and willingness to share" when he presented her with a handbag and wallet from the group at the school.

Mrs. Florence Ayers was also at the reception. She quietly tiptoed away into retirement several years ago. Whitey (Kearin) Dunn who was president of the CTA at the time of her retirement, presented her with a tile table, belatedly marking her distinguished career.

Mrs. Piepenbrink began teaching in Cohasset in 1947 after graduating from Lesley College. She left in 1958 for five years when her son James was born, returning for another 15. She taught at the elementary level in first, second and mostly third grade. She recalled how she had 40 first graders in the first class she ever taught. At that time, Earl Chamberlain was music teacher and Florence Ayers was physical education instructor.

She worked under four principals at the Osgood School, all with different styles but with the same basic philosophy of "care and interest in the kids" — Helen Hudson, Vicki O'Quinn, Kay Mulcahy and Jack Creamer.

Mrs. Piepenbrink is enjoying her retirement which includes a part-time job at the Village Fabric Store. She says she is "Just being a housewife and loving it!" She is the wife of Cohasset Fire Chief Charles Piepenbrink. Their son, James, is a medical engineer at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Manage time to take CCC workshop course

The Community Center of Cohasset is sponsoring two workshops in the area of personal Time Management and Decision Making this fall. The Time Management workshop will include analysis of present use of time and techniques to set priorities and work more efficiently.

The Decision-Making workshop will deal with evaluating alternatives and selecting workable goals for our daily life as well as total life planning.

Participants may elect either morning or evening sessions and all are welcome to attend. The Time Management workshop is scheduled for Monday, Oct. 13, 7:30-9:30 p.m. and Oct. 14, 9:30-11:30 a.m. Decision Making and Assertiveness is Oct. 28 at 9:30-11:30 a.m. and 7:30-9:30 p.m.

The workshops will be conducted by Leslie Seabury of Hingham. Leslie is a human relations consultant and trainer with extensive experience as a classroom teacher and adult workshop leader.

Call the Center daily from 9:00-12:00 at 383-0088.

Nuclear pot

sources by the state.

In practical terms the referendum questions whether the legislature should support or move to halt the construction of Pilgrim II, Boston Edison Co.'s proposed second nuclear power installation in Plymouth. (The project, with an estimated cost of $2 billion, and $300 million already sunk into it, is awaiting US Nuclear Regulatory Commission approval.)

At the heart of the issue lies the question: does the nuclear industry's energy potential outweigh its potential risks? Opponents of the referendum say yes. While not entirely ruling out a risk factor, they argue that given our energy needs, there is no alternative but to go ahead with the production of nuclear power.

Cohasset's chief spokesman for the opposition is Murray Campbell, a member of the staff of the engineering consulting firm Stone and Webster, and head of the pro-nuclear group Voice of Energy. In a recent interview with the Mariner, Campbell argued that New England generates 60% of its electricity from oil. 80% of that oil, he said, is from OPEC, which, in light of the situation in the Middle East, can not be considered a stable source. If US imports are cut off, New England will loose more than half of its electrical power.

According to Campbell, nuclear power, which provides for 34% of its electricity generation, is the region's only feasible alternative to a dangerous dependency on foreign oil. Less than half our oil-burning sources of electrical energy can be converted to coal, he said. Domestic oil production was on the decline. Hydroelectric power accounts for only 6% of the area's total electrical output. And as for alternative energy systems, Campbell argued wind and biomass systems are prohibitively expensive, and no matter how advanced solar technology becomes, "It can never change the immutable fact that the sun's power comes to earth in a diluted state — a limited number of watts per square foot."

Robert Tis, district manager for Boston Edison in the Plymouth area and another Cohasset opponent of the referendum, summed up the opposition's stand: "What we need is a major effort towards self-reliance in energy, and to close off our nuclear option would be the biggest mistake we could make."

The residents who collected more than 200 signatures to put the question on the ballot obviously disagree. They are the Cohasset wing of REACH, the Responsible Energy Alternative Coalition of Hingham, which is itself part of a state-wide Safe Energy group.

'I have had my own reservations about the safety question. . . I have reservations about Pilgrim I, which has had to be closed repeatedly.'
- Senator Allan McKinnon

Addressing the question of cost-effectiveness, Ed Lappen, a lawyer and one of the leaders of the Cohasset group, said nuclear power is becoming an increasingly expensive option. The price of uranium quadrupled between 1972 and 1976, and by the early 1980's the cost of a 1000 megawatt plant (Pilgrim II is 1100 megawatts) is estimated to be eight times greater than in 1972. Other proponents of a moratorium site the cost of inspection, repair and refueling, saying it will amount to $7.5 million for the Vermont Yankee plant, for example, for this fall alone.

Advocates of alternative energy sources argue that energy generated from nuclear power can be matched by conservation efforts and the combined development of solar, hydroelectric and wind systems. Had we conserved 3% of our gasoline consumption, they insist, we would have saved the same amount of oil displaced by nuclear power last year.

But the biggest concern of those supporting the referendum is the question of safety. Lappen sited the accident at the nation's chief waste repository, the Hanford Reservation dump site in Washington, as one of many incidents which illustrate both the inadequacy of existing means of handling nuclear waste and the factor of human error.

One half a million gallons of high level radio active waste leaked out of containers there, seeped into the soil and threatened to contaminate underground water supplies. According to Lappen, the initial spill was not discovered for two months, and the verdict of the subsequent Atomic Energy Commission (now the NRC) was that poor management was the cause of the accident. Lappen added, "nuclear power installations will always be subject to human error because humans make errors."

Structural faults in nuclear plants are another area of concern of Cohasset people involved in the REACH cause. Robert Maki, for example, a civil engineer with the Army Corp of Engineering and formerly in charge of reviewing the structural design of reactor containment for General Dynamics, said he has been studying safety aspects of the Pilgrim I plant on his own ever since the Three Mile Island incident.

From an engineering point of view, one of his major concerns is the inadequate design of the reactor's containment dome. Given additional pressures not accounted for prior to its construction, he said, the dome's safety factor has, in effect, been reduced to one. (This means that if it was perfectly constructed with flawless material it would exactly withstand the worst conceivable accident.) According to Maki, a construction of this kind, who's use was origionally discouraged by the NRC, should have a safety factor of at least four.

"This is a perfect example of why Pilgrim I should be shut down," Maki said. "We should not gamble with peoples' safety."

Helene Lieb, another Cohasset proponent of the referendum, said that the dangers of nuclear power were not limited to the reactor plants and disposal dumps. The entire industry is inherently hazardous, she said, citing the necessary handling of radioactive substances throughout the nuclear fuel cycle, starting with the mining of uranium.

The referendum is non-binding on the one hand, and in at least one respect, mute; the federal government nor state legislatures, controls the licensing of nuclear power installations. It will, however, serve to reflect public opinion, and as the issue heats up, add light to the positions of Cohasset's representatives.

State Representative Mary Jeannette Murray said she "would not vote in favor of a moratorium at this stage of the game."

"I'm in favor of nuclear so long as we have safeguards," she said, "until there is a viable alternative. But at this point, necessity outweighs the risks."

Rep. Murrary's Democrat opponent Ted Ford takes a similar stand, if for somewhat different reasons. "I see the call for a moratorium as an extreme anti-nuclear position," he said. "Were Massachusetts to adopt a moratorium, it would be a clear negative signal to the US business and investment community which would deter future investment in the Commonwealth."

Ford does, "favor major investment in examining alternative energy technologies."

At the moment, however, "these alternative technologies cannot produce adequate cheap energy," he said. "The only choice is between nuclear and oil."

Sen. Allan McKinnon said he has been for a moratorium on nuclear plant construction ever since Three Mile Island.

"I have had my own reservations about the safety questions," he said. I have reservations about Pilgrim I, which has had to be closed repeatedly. We ought to take a hard look at (the dangers of) nuclear power before we go ahead with any more."

US Representative Gerry Studds was not available for comment, but his position has thus far been one of limited support for the nuclear industry because it is considered the only available option at this time. He is, however, an advocate of developing alternative energy sources.

Cohasset Selectman Henry Ainslie said, "I have neither taken a stand nor am involved with either campaign (for or against the referendum)." Ainslie said he had heard about the referendum but the selectmen have not as yet discussed it.

Proposition 2½

Manager, said if Proposition 2½ passes there would be a reduction of 19 per cent on town revenue, or slightly over $1 million. With the school budget running between 56 to 58 per cent of town budget, the loss to school revenues would run between $560,000 and $580,000. The closing of Osgood School, according to Raftery, would become an immediate consideration. Athletics would be severely curtailed, if not dropped all together. Other non-required courses would be eliminated.

COSTS OF 2 1/2

Selectman Chairman Arthur Clark said deciding what services the town should give up would be difficult. Signorelli noted that most of the reduction would have to take place in salaries (or personnel). He added if Town Meeting couldn't decide what services to cut, town officials would be required to make the cuts, nonetheless.

"What services would you give up?" Clark asked. "Regulatory boards (state and local boards) make the rules and regulations we have to abide by. Outside of schools, what can we absolutely live without?"

For starters, Clark threw the following up for grabs: recreation, street lighting, road reparis, harbor patrol, school transportation.

OVERRIDE

Towns would have an override provision to Proposition 2½. But, as Signorelli pointed out, a town could not arbitrarily call its own election to override Proposition 2½. Only the General Court could call for such an election. In addition, a minority (33.4 per cent) of those voting, could defeat any movement to raise the tax levy limit to a specific higher percentage.

Representative Mary Jeanette Murray feels there is an alternative to Proposition 2½ — that being "The Cohen Tax Limitation," authored by Gerald Cohen, chairman of the House Tax Committee.

"I feel Cohen's bill could be a reasonable substitution for 2½, Rep. Murray said. "Cohen's bill does restrict state government spending, which 2½ doesn't," Rep. Murray said.

In the near future, Rep. Murray said, the House will take its first vote on the Cohen bill with an eye to placing it in the State Constitution." However, she's not positive she'll like its being there. "I voted for it the first time, but if it were in the Constitution, it would have to be voted out if the recovery picture changed, upwards or downwards."

HORSESHOE TOURNAMENT

The Cohasset Recreation Department is planning to conduct a town wide, all ages, horseshoe pitching tournament.

Any resident who wishes to participate may do so by calling the Recreation Office at 383-6791, and leaving their name and phone number.

Details will be available after the registration as it will depend on how many participants enter as to exactly how the tournament will be conducted.

GUITAR LESSONS

Registrations for guitar lessons, taught by Mr. Mark Mincolla will be accepted by calling the Recreation Office at 383-6791.

Classes are open to residents, and nonresidents on a space-available basis, aged 10 thru adult. The fee for the 6 week program is $8 per person. Lessons will be offered to both beginners and intermediate level students on Tuesday evenings, at 7 and 8 p.m.

PRE-SCHOOL PLAY GROUP

Registrations for a 3 and 4 year-old play program to be held at Osgood School, Fridays, from 3-4 p.m. will be accepted by calling the Recreation Office. The program is designed for play, social interaction, and peer group relations for the pre-school child. Games and craft programs along with movement exploration and motor learning skills will be offered during the six-week session. Fee for the program is $5 per child and a 50 per cent discount for second children in the same family will be offered.

GAME TIME K-3

Registrations for a low organized game program for grades K-1, to be held from 3-4 p.m. Tuesdays, at Osgood School, and 4-5 p.m., for grades 2 and 3, will be accepted by calling the Recreation Office. The program is designed to offer the young child exposure to low organized games and activities as well as sports activities.

AFTERNOON SPORTS

A program designed for grades 4 thru 6 will be offered at Deer Hill School on Thursday afternoons, from 3-5 p.m. Team sports will be emphasized for the program content. The fee is $5 for the six-week program. Please call the Recreation Office if interested.

OTHER PROGRAMS

A few openings remain in Wednesday afternoon creative dramatics classes and Saturday morning camp craft program. Gymnastics program is currently filled. Names are being taken for a possible swim program, biking program, magic lessons, and weight training clinic. If enough interest is demonstrated, the programs will be offered.

Volunteers needed for blood program

Persons interested in serving as a volunteer on either the Board of Directors or on the Blood Program are urged to call Michael Howley, Chapter Chairman, 383-6986; or Alfred Odermatt, Secretary, 383-1283, for further information.

"The Look You Want At The Price You Want"

Coupon queen Helen Fries shares her research

By Laura Doherty

Food shopping has never been and probably never will be an especially enjoyable experience for Helen Fries; but since she began saving coupons eight months ago, she finds it bearable and, at times, almost fun.

"My dream is to reach the point where I can save 50% of my week's food bill," says Helen, her brown eyes sparkling with a determined look. "I started out at 5 per cent and now am up to 30 per cent, she adds, proudly.

Helen recommends that all couponers and refunders should have a goal. Hers is a trip South, and although husband Ron has been know to joke about their "Big trip to Hingham," even he now agrees that it would be nice to head for the sun this winter.

Her separate bank account which she set up in order to keep track of her coupon savings now contains several hundred dollars. "You can't enjoy sticking your savings in a wallet but I certainly do like taking them to the bank," she chuckles.

Her interest in couponing began with a TV talk show after which, she says, she "Devoured" two books on the subject — ASK THE COUPON QUEEN and THE 1980 GUIDE TO COUPONS AND REFUNDS. "They are my bibles and I do most everything that's recommended in them except belong to a club which would take too much time," she explains.

In addition to her family which includes two very active children, a parakeet and an ever-changing number of gerbils, Helen also teaches kindergarten full time. She estimates that she spends about four hours a week on her coupons and refunds and stresses that organization is most important.

"Don't let your family throw away anything until they ask," she emphasizes. Helen guarantees that in the average home there is at least $15 in coupons on the shelves and can't understand why more people don't take advantage of the savings.

She keeps all of her coupons filed according to the type of food such as snacks, frozen foods, beverages. Before shopping she goes over the fliers from two main stores in town, writes down what she wants including the total and the coupon costs of the items and divides up the list by store according to what will be the best buy. "I find I shop equally at both stores," she says.

Armed with an envelope full of coupons and her pocket calculator, she seeks her ultimate thrill — tripling which is when a store has an item on sale, there's a coupon for and also a refund.

I have often wondered what the supermarket cashiers think of coupons but Helen says that they have always been very helpful. Some even become excited when they see her savings and one, recently, was particularly impressed when she ended up with three items at no cost.

Helen also files all of her refunds away according to the date they are due. Evidence that she follows her own advice about organizing is one envelope already addressed and dated for January, 1982.

An additional bonus to couponing, Hel[illegible] as found, is that she "has gotten away from th[illegible] rut in meals. We've tried things we would[illegible] otherwise bought and liked them."

Children Kathy and Steven's reactions ar[illegible] They like trying new things but, say Helen, [illegible] been know to ask, "What kind of cereal do[illegible] to eat, this week?" "Often," she admits [illegible] chuckle, "this depends on what I need fo[illegible] top."

Another busy lady who has been cl[illegible] coupons "ever since I can remember" is Representatilve Mary Jeanette Murray. Often she uses her trips into Boston to separate her coupons according to due dates. She too insists that she never buys anything she won't use. "I try to be careful about buying anything unnecessary and although Phil thinks I do, I don't," she says.

Often, the attitudes of husbands to their wives couponing undergo a marked change. "I used to be embarrassed," said one husband who shops regularly with his wife, "but not anymore, when I realized that she saves 10% on the food bill."

Both customers and manufacturers are increasing their use of coupons, says one manager for a local supermarket chain. People are more conscious of the values and are trying to save money and the manufacturers realize their value for promoting their items.

So, whether you find couponing a rewarding experience or, as one well-known Cohasset Mariner editor said recently, "A plot to further subjugate housewives," it definitely appears to be here to stay.

Proponents

Fiscal autonomy powers of school committees would be repealed under Proposition 2½, although few Cohasset residents feel a real outrage over the school budget.

Authored by CLT, Proposition 2½ is also supported by the Associated Industries of Massachusetts, the Massachusetts High Technology Council, various real estate interests, homeowners and political conservatives...and the elderly. These groups are aggrieved at the failure of laws hailed as "property tax relief" measures which have failed to significantly reduce the property tax in Massachusetts.

Proponents have no doubt that Proposition 2½ will make things difficult for local government. But they also point to the over 150 cities and towns in Massachusetts in which the effective tax rate is already within the 2½ limit.

Proponents feel state political establishments have been too solicitous of bureaucracies and pressure groups with a vested interest in governmental spending.

Proposition 2½ will, proponets feel, create a ripple effect which will be a message to government to "Get the Hell out of local affairs," Jack Golden said recently.

Golden and many other Cohasset businessmen (who wish not to be quoted by name) feel if government got out of private enterprise, subsidy programs wouldn't be needed.

With the passage of Proposition 2½ there would be a need to implement a new program of state aid to meet the cuts of 2½. Opponents say 2½ would only result in a massive state tax program, requiring major changes in the state aid formulas to cities and towns. Proponents look forward to almost any change.

Responding to a recent news release from Governor Edward J. King's office last week, which stated Governor King would immediately direct the state to devise voluntary courses in family life education in public schools..one Cohasset resident said:

"The reason Massachusetts parents spend less time with their children than almost any other nation in the world is because of the economic situation in Massachusetts. Few women are working who don't need to work, to help pay taxes. Give us tax relief and mothers will stay home."

Another resident said: "Federal and state government has pumped millions and billions of dollars into projects that are worthless or outdated upon completion. It's seen on a daily basis. The time is now. The tradition on which this country was founded must be put back into practice."

Jack Golden, a businessman, echoed what many other businessmen said throughout Mariner interviews: "Last Thanksgiving my business was almost destroyed by an arsonist. By sheer determination with dedicated employees and suppliers, we were able to rebuild and reopen. We didn't receive a nickel from any state agency. I believe in a very philosophical premise — there's nothing for nothing. Government's too damn big. You couldn't run your house the way government runs government."

Mary Quessenberry of Scituate, a senior citizen, said she feels government has to be more realistic about services. She produced a letter stating that she was available for fuel assistance this year. "How did they get my name?" she asked, saying she was not interested in fuel assistance, but was interested in tax relief.

"It's a hot issue," yet another person wishing to remain nameless said. "If you itemize its effect, it will force the legislatures to look at the tax structure. And it's about time. They've let us down."

'Happy 101st birthday, Paul Pratt!'

"Happy 101st Birthday, Paul Pratt!" was celebrated by 115 Cohasset children at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library this summer.

Each child who read 10 books received a reading certificate and added a candle to the five layered cake. The enormous blue and white confection is topped with a replica of the library's gold dome and sacred cod weathervane. The cake was constructed by library volunteer, Liz Glasfeld.

Each child was encouraged by the children's librarians to read books on their reading level. Extra credits were given to those who challenged their abilities with more demanding titles.

Each child who read 20 books or more received a paperback book from a special collection donated by the Friends of the Library. These 115 children read 2260 books. Paul Pratt would have been very happy!

Participants were as follows: Lacey Andrews, P[illegible]ury, Billy Baird, Maria Bird, Liz Buckley, M[illegible]ael Cisneros, Cindy Conklin, Dan deMichele, Larry Desmond, Ann Dockary, Heather Doherty, Kerri Anglin and Alix Ash.

Also, Mark Batts, Jr., Robert Bird, Jason Cameron, Marlissa Clapp, Alison Crehan, Ellenmarie Desmond, Sara Deveney, Michael Dockray, Sandra Dunn, Caroline Arbury, Michelle Babin, Nancy Beamon and Heidi Brown.

Citizens question untimely filling of hockey post

By Karin Bartow

Cohasset High School's girls varsity field hockey players and a representative group of their parents were at the school committee meeting two weeks ago to get some straight answers on the lack of a head coach five weeks into the season.

Presenting your new field hockey coach..."Mr. D!" (Derr photo)

Ed and Sally Atkinson carried an open letter that said "The situation not only dims the enthusiasm of the girls participating, but is negligent with regard to potential injuries resulting from a lack of proper supervision and guidance."

Chairman Frank England told Atkinson, "We'll try to give you the straightest answer that we can. (This situation) has been a very great concern of ours, too."

Athletic Director Clark Chatterton reviewed the search activity over the past two weeks for a suitable head coach and as of last night, all four candidates had been eliminated. "Three didn't feel they had the experience to coach the team and the fourth wasn't qualified," he said.

In response to Susanne Dunn who questioned last minute activity on a post that had been available since July, Chatterton said, "We advertised in the Globe in July. We've advertised everywhere we can think of."

Acting Superintendent John Raftery stated that advertising had been extensive. The lack of suitable coaches is a problem everywhere according to Chatterton and he stated that he's been having trouble filling coaching positions throughout the athletic program. The high rates of pay for officiating have lured many qualified people away from coaching. In addition, Chatterton feels Cohasset's location works against the town.

Claire Brady, head coach of the junior varsity field hockey team, has been working with the varsity group and one member of the team said, "She had laryngitis from coaching two games in one day."

"For the moment," Chatterton said, "the only thing I have is one man in the system who's coached. He could provide the girls with some leadership and although he doesn't know anything about field hockey, perhaps he could help them."

England said, "Go now and call him for tomorrow!" CHS Principal Dick Streeter and England disagreed somewhat as to whether Chatterton should be getting extra help on this matter from the next administrator in the chain of command. Streeter said, "I have an athletic director who I have a great deal of confidence in and unless he requests help, I let him do his job." Streeter added, "I don't know of a field hockey coach and I don't know where I can get one."

Some members of the varsity field hockey team present at the meeting questioned salary differences between sports like field hockey and football. England explained that at each salary step they are paid for the amount of work they do. (A first step football coach earns $900 versus $700 for field hockey.)

Coaches of sports like football, requiring extra time for viewing films and night meetings, earn more money England explained, because they work more hours. Field hockey player Ann Baird told the committee, "I think we'd enjoy that!"

Tara Diab, co-captain of the team said, "We would be very happy to have someone there for discipline." Sally Atkinson said the girls should be commended for working together without a head coach since August 20. Parents also pointed out that while some people keep referring to football as the "big sport," this year 39 boys went out for football and 41 girls went out for field hockey.

Chatterton will continue to search for a head coach for the girls' field hockey team, but in the meantime, the girls plan to continue practicing and playing as they are.

Skippers held on 'til the half but it was Hanover 30-6

By Rob Tis

The Cohasset Skipper football team went into Hanover on Saturday a three touchdown underdog. Within five minutes there were lines at the telephone with people trying to reach their bookies and call off their bets.

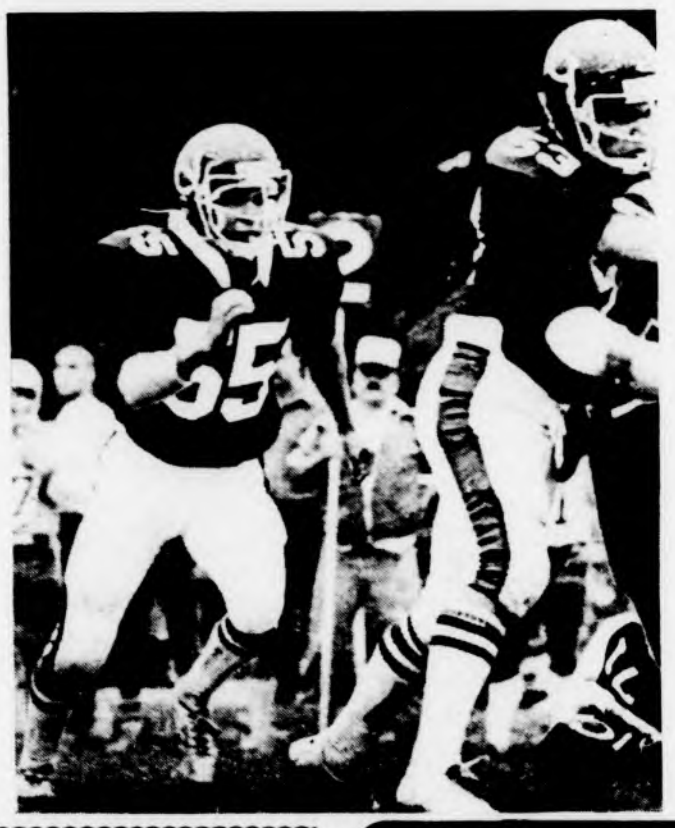
The Skipper eleven came out tough. But like last week the Skippers gave up a big play early, setting the Indians up for a quick touchdown.

Downcast and ready to give up? Not this year's Skipper team. The special teams took the field to get the kickoff with their teeth clenched. Jack McNeill in the deep position received the kickoff on his own 20, then the Skippers, like a fleet of Sherman tanks led by Paul Buckley and Mike Jones, plowed over the Indians while McNeill scampered through the holes 80 yards to the touchdown ala Billy "White Shoes" Johnson.

Sparked by McNeill's performance, the defense led by Bob Fessler got tough and held on almost till halftime.

The offense, led by Kevin Dooley, was neutralized by Hanover. The air game was not too successful and the Skippers had trouble on the ground as well.

With running backs Mike Donahue and Mark Gunville out with injuries, the starting backfield of McNeill, Joe Becker and Bob Donahue stayed in almost the entire game and that would wear anyone down to a frazzle.



The line as well played continuously with a great many taking both shifts on offense and defense, something even John Hannah would have trouble with.

I thought Jack McNeill said it best. "Our first eleven was a lot better than they were, but when they kept on sending in new teams, they just wore us out."

And wear them out they did as a guy named Marty Garrison slowly but surely broke through the Skipper line and scored three touchdowns making the final tally 30-6.

Next week the Skippers face their arch rival the Hull Pirates in what will be the biggest, baddest and most important game of the season to the team.

"We'll kill em," stated a confident and physched up Jack McNeill. The Skippers will be up for this game and hopefully so will the fans on Saturday at 1:30 at Milleken Field.

Junior Paul Buckley rushes during recent Skipper game.

Mr. D. takes over as girls' field hockey coach

By Rob Tis

Last week I said they couldn't do anything about it, so this week they did.

The varsity field hockey team has a new coach Mr. DiGirolamo, the vice-principal at CHS.

Mr. D. took over Monday after a long weeken reading his rule book. The Skippers face Scituate away Monday under the tutelege of Mr. D, who assumes the coachless team on a one game winning streak as they blanked the Vikings at East Bridgewater Friday afternoon, 2-0 in a cliff-hanger of a game.

Sally Cook scored the first goal early. Heidi Brown slammed the second one in on a penalty shot to ice the game for the Skippers.

Net person Tara Diab was awarded the shutout. From my viewpoint, it looked as if defense was the stronghold of the team with fullbacks Anne Bear, Christine Karcher, and Bridget Farren all performing admirably.

It looks like there is a good season ahead for this team and no doubt with their new coach, they will be headed in the right direction.

Tis Quiz

Register for story hour at Paul Pratt

Pre-School storyhours will begin on Thursday, Oct. 16, at 1:30 a.m. at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library.

The first program will feature bear stories. It will be highlighted by a visit from a five-foot white bear, a special friend of Martha Equi, volunteer storyteller and her children Michael, 6 and Meredith, 3. Mrs. Equi, who has taught kindergarten in Cohasset, will bring all of Mister Bear's favorite stories.

Volunteer Martha Hurtig has welcomed the children to the story-pit in the children's room weekly since the program began two years ago. Martha makes the children feel very much at home with books and in the library.

Advance registration is necessary for the six-week storyhour series. Children should be at least three and a half years old. The group will be limited to 15. Call the library (383-1348) any afternoon for more information or to register.

from the kitchen

By Joan Pinkham

"A recipe that is not shared with others will soon be forgotten, but when it is shared, it will be enjoyed by future generations." These words are found in a new cookbook prepared by members and friends of St. Christine's Parish. Not only have they shared their favorites, but months of time and thought in assembling a tempting array of ideas, information and recipes. It would make a particularly welcome gift to the bride in need of learning basic methods of cooking. Here you'll find a guide for the use of herbs, ways to use leftovers, unusual sandwiches, how to make the perfect pie and a wealth of diet information. Included among a wide array of recipes is Sue Madden's

MEAT-ZA-PIZZA

1 lb. lean ground beef
1/2 c. bread crumbs
1 tsp. salt
1/8 tsp. garlic powder
1 c. water
1/4 tsp. pepper

Mix above ingredients well and pat into bottom of 9" pie pan (used instead of crust). Then, use as topping: 6 oz. can tomato paste spread over meat and topped with:
Mozzarello cheese, shredded
1 tsp. oregano
1/3 c. Parmesan cheese, grated

Bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 40 min. Sliced peppers, mushrooms, pepperoni, etc. may also be used for topping.

'Tis said that "you can't tell a book by its cover," but whoever made this profound observation obviously didn't have cook books in mind. I knew at a glance this was to be a favorite in my collection. It's looseleaf and lies flat on the counter, has a colorful illustration that makes it easy to spot on your shelf and plastic binding, easily cleaned with a damp sponge. I'm sure it will be a best seller when it makes its debut at the annual harvest bazaar to be held at the parish hall later this season. If you are impatient for your copy, call Elsie Paradise at her Old Main St. home, or the church rectory on Rte. 3A, Marshfield Hills. Where else would you find a collection of recipes so varied that it includes Joan Jack's

HOPPEL POPPEL

1 6 oz. pkg. dehydrated hash brown potatoes
1 3/4 c. boiling water
6 slices bacon
1 med. onion
1/2 c. Swiss cheese, shredded
1/4 lb. mushrooms, sliced
1 tsp. parsley, chopped
1/2 tsp. salt, 1/4 tsp. pepper
6 eggs
1/4 c. water

Put potatoes in medium bowl and cover with boiling water. Let stand for 8 min. until water is absorbed. In a 10" skillet, cook bacon, onions and mushrooms. Add parsley and potatoes. In a small bowl, beat eggs with water. Pour over vegetables in skillet and sprinkle with cheese. Cook over low heat 8 to 10 min., until eggs are set. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

We've all been told many times never to shop when we're hungry. A trip down the supermarket aisle just before lunchtime is full of pitfalls, for that's when we find even a rubbery sponge cake appealing. So it is with cook books. It's best to read one on a full stomach when better fortified to withstand the lure of Marion Nedowski's

CRUNCHY ICE CREAM PIE

1/2 c. butter or margarine, melted
1 c. pecans, chopped
1 c. brown sugar
3 c. corn flakes
1 c. flaked coconut
1 qt. vanilla ice cream, slightly softened

Put all but ice cream in large bowl and stir until well mixed and corn flakes are crushed. Pack about 3/4 of the mixture into bottom and sides of 10" pie plate. Spoon in ice cream, packing down carefully. Scatter remaining mixture over top, pressing into ice cream slightly. Freeze several hours, or overnight, before using.

Angler's Corner

By Lindy Blaisdell

Due to a combination of failures, one a mechanical pump, the other a warning device, about 10,000 brook and brown trout were found dead recently at the Palmer Fish Hatchery. Along with the trout, 24 adult Atlantic salmon were lost. The loss of the 24 salmon leaves 84 of which an estimated 350,000 eggs will be harvested for use in the Conn. River salmon restoration project.

Half the 10,000 trout were scheduled for release this Fall. Even without the 5,000 trout, the Southeastern district will receive a Fall trout stocking of 8,000 brook trout, 2,000 brown trout, and 5,000 rainbow trout. Stocking should be completed by early October. For a complete list of stocked trout waters send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Trout List, Mass. Division of Fish and Wildlife, Westboro, MA 01581.

NEW FISH

A new tiger muskie has been introduced into several state ponds. The tiger is a sterile hybrid offspring of a cross between a northern pike and muskellunge. The new neighbors are expected to reduce the explosive stunted populations of pan fish in home waters.

The tigers came from Pennsylvania and can be expected to be from seven to 15 pounds in three years.

Don't all rush to try and catch one yet. First, they are only seven to eight inches long now and must be 28 inches before you can keep one.

Only two ponds close to Mariner territory will contain tigers. They are Cook's in Fall River and Nippenicket in Bridgewater.

CO-HO

This is the time for co-ho salmon. Salmon of 1978 stocking have been showing up and should continue to return through November in fishable numbers.

Randy Fairbanks, Division of Marine Fisheries, has high hopes for some salmon over 20 pounds. The salmon program is still called experimental and Marine Fisheries would appreciate information on any sport caught co-hos. You can send any results to me c/o Mariner or write Mass. Division of Marine Fisheries, 100 Cambridge St., Boston, MA 02202.

Some distant hogwash

By Lois Martin

You've no idea the amount of information you don't get here every week. In our posts, which we address with sobriety, we are committed to relaying news of the hometown, yours.

Thus, when we are flooded with outside information, unsolicited by us and unrelated to familiar names, streets, government and businesses, we oft wave our hands and say with hauteur "That isn't hometown news stuff!"

But along with that sniffity Yankee aloofness which preempts our entanglement with anything that's happening outside our borders, we've kept from you countless tidbits. Some would wantonly label it junk mail. I like to be certain you didn't need this kind of thing. So here's some of it.

PATCHES

— The U.S. Agriculture Department has started sending a farming column to 650 weekly newspapers. We could have it if I'd sent in that little coupon. One of the samples said food prices are going to go up this fall and winter. I considered that neither news nor new. So you don't get to read what the hog farmers said in May...Sorry.

— A 'nationally known' hypnotherapist recently hypnotized 800 people in Detroit. The goal was to stop all of them from smoking and eating. He has compiled a list of 'first' in the fields of stress management and smoking withdrawal, the news release said. I'd ask his advice here except that he'd get all upset and nervous if he ever saw the smoke in a newspaper office and it didn't say what happened to the 800 people.

— A four page publication is dedicating itself to wiping out what it believes to be widespread indecency, primarily in the commercial world. Called the "National Federation for Decency" Newsletter, its September headline charges General Foods with being the top sponsor of sex on prime-time television. It also says Sears is "pushing Playboy and porno with billing." It's caused me to take a new look at Betty Crocker and Kenmore.

— The search is on for Mrs. America 1981. One'll be chosen of course at the state level, and we're eligible, based on our views, aspirations and versatility as today's American wife. That's what the man said in his information. For an entry blank write to Bob Strebelow in Cleveland. If you win the Massachusetts title, you get to go to Las Vegas a week. That was the kicker for me. I much prefer Manchester, N.H.

— National Solar Action Week is Oct. 3-13. That already makes it look like an unstable effort, since that's 10 days instead of a week.

— I got an invitation to Boston Jubilee 350 luncheon, saluting the great cities of the world. But, as your weekly personna with a little bit of grata, my invite didn't come until the morning of the luncheon. And we've got our pride here too, you know.

— Turkey vultures have begun drifting southward ...that from the Massachusetts Audubon Society. No reason was given for the draft but the season was suspect.

— We've received our 223 page code of federal regulations for federal elections. It's the revised edition, available in our office until garbage pick-up day (Tuesday).

— And this provocative if potentially forgettable bit of philosophy from Jean Cocteau. "The speed of a runaway horse counts for nothing."

Now, perhaps you better understand why we deal strictly with Cub Scout pack meetings, church bazaars, youth football standings, local sales, the police news and your town hall doings. They count for something in a community, but I still should have mentioned that big angora cat contest they had last fall at Hynes Auditorium.

Great escape road race to Barnside

The first annual Great Escape to the Barnside Tavern Road Race to benefit the Special Olympics is scheduled Sunday, Oct. 26. The distance is 6.7 miles, open to all runners.

The charity road race will begin The Great Escape at the intersection of Rtes. 18 & 53 in Weymouth and will continue along Rte. 53 to The Barnside Tavern at Assinippi Corner in Hanover.

Entrants may pick up registration forms at either restaurant or by sending a self addressed, stamped envelope to: P.O. Box 216, Cohasset, MA 02025.

There will be $100 cash prizes as well as gift certificates in the open category. Masters and Seniors winners will receive warmup suits as well as gift certificates, redeemable at either restaurant. All finishers will receive First Annual Great Escape to Barnside T-shirts.

Auto rally theme will be nostalgia

Christopher Columbus look out! A South Shore Auto Rally 'Nostalgia '80' will be held on Columbus' birthday, Sunday, Oct. 12.

All interested parties, experienced or novice, are welcome to participate and make some great American discoveries on their own. No matter what you drive short of the Nina, Pinta or Santa Maria, it's perfect for the rally. 'Nostalgia '80' is an auto rally for everyone.

Fathers, sons, mothers and daughters are guaranteed a good time in this fun rally. The foliage should be perfect, the weather pleasant.

Details include: Date, Sunday, Oct. 12; Time, 10 a.m.; Length, two hours; Starting place, Lawson Tower, Scituate; Rally type, g immick; Purpose, fun.

Any car is welcome (driver and navigator). A small entry fee will be charged with all cars receiving a dash placque. Novice and experienced class trophies will be awarded. Pizza and refreshments will be available at the finish.

For details, contact Ed McCarthy, 545-9601 or Tom Clark, 545-2763.

Busy drama season with three productions

By Ann Fogg

The North River Community Club will present three plays this season as well as sponsor several social events to which they invite the public, according to Corresponding Secretary Gail Dunphy.

The North River Players, the drama group of the club, will present 'You Can't Take it With You,' a comedy in three acts by George S. Kaufmann and Moss Hart, on two consecutive weekends in mid-November.

'The Cheaters,' a two act comedy by Michael Jacobs, will run for two weekends the end of February and beginning of March, and a third play, not yet selected, is scheduled for two weekends the middle of May.

In addition, the Club will hold a Las Vegas Night at the River St., Norwell, Clubhouse Saturday, Oct. 18, a Sunday afternoon Christmas house tour Dec. 14, and a Spring dinner dance April 11.

The clubhouse, which club historian George Spooner says is one of the last one-room schoolhouses still standing in Plymouth County, has been used by the North River Players since before World War II.

According to club officers, it is available for rental by the day, week, or month. Any group wishing to use the building should call Sally Oberg, 837-1013.

The club, whose members represent many towns beside Norwell, is interested in new members. Gail Dunphy asks people interested in joining to call her at 659-7434.

Oyster Changes

Remember way back in January when we said we'd put in your oyster ad and keep it in until it did the job?

Well, we've been doing that. And it's worked beautifully for all of us. But there's one little problem. People have not always remembered to call us when the item's been sold, the job's been found, or the carpool's been organized. Consequently, we've been informed that people have answered ads only to find they were too late.

Here's the solution. Your oyster (same rules) will be kept in for eight weeks. Then out it comes. But . . . if you still need to have the ad in, call us. We'll try to rewrite it (without additional charge) for more success for another eight weeks. So we're with you through thick and thin pianos for sale and your search for roommates. But we have to put a limit on this folks. Else we'll have a paper full of advertisements which are outdated.

Barry Powers is hooked on politics

Hooked on Politics

Politics turns on Barry Powers of Fairoaks Lane.

He likes drama, too. And he's on the swim team at Boston College High, where he is a junior this year.

But last July he had the special pleasure of being surrounded by those people in Washington, D.C. who get into substantive issues in a serious way.

Until he saw those congressmen in action, he had little idea what the debate was all about. After watching these sober and disturbing people during the month of July, as a Congressional Page for Congressman Joseph Moakley, he was anxious to learn a great deal more.

Barry said he lived in a boarding house for pages in Washington and was paid $650 for the month. "But my living expenses were $400. And there were no activities planned for us." So he spent free time with his family's friends in nearby Annapolis.

At the urging of his father, John Powers, who used to have a few political ambitions, Barry applied to be a page during his sophomore year. And he was one of seven pages selected to serve in the house during July.

"Mostly I delivered bills. You really don't know what you're delivering. There are three office buildings and I had to know the bell system. I saw President Carter once, when he met with the Summer Olympic Athletes. I also saw Tip O'Neil, Senator Kennedy. It's just a learning experience. I got to watch Congress in action.

"I also worked in the documents room, where an Elvis Presley Day bill passed through my hands. The documents room had bills dating back to the year 200."

Moakley himself, although he appointed Barry, was pretty unavailable for any chit-chat. "I was in Moakley's office four times. I saw him once in the beginning, twice during the middle part of my stay, and at the end I said thank you."

Barry said he'd like to return to Washington for the second semester of his senior year. "Then I could graduate from Page School."

What would be significant about that?

"The President of the United States signs your diploma."

He added, "I'd kind of like to go into politics, but it's a big risk. If you don't make it, you could waste a lot of your life."

Congressman Joseph Moakley congratulates Barry Powers for a job well done last July.

Dental Dialogue

A BRACING EFFECT

Q. I need braces, but I'm worried about my teeth decaying under them.

A. Actually placing an orthodontic band on a tooth gives protection to the area it covers. However, braces do tend to collect more food debris and so extra thorough cleaning of the exposed teeth is needed to prevent decay. Daily brushing and flossing are obviously important, and the use of an oral irrigator (water pik) can be a helpful aid. Corrective braces leave the teeth, bone, and gums healthier and make oral hygiene easier in the future. So, "brace up" and you'll enjoy straighter teeth and better dental health.

This column is presented in the interest of better dental health. From the office of

2 1/2 would cut $350,000 from schools in first ye

By Tanna Kasperowicz

School committee members, School Supt. Eugene Crowell and Business Manager John Raftery attempted to keep the "scare" out of their conversation regarding the impact of Prop. 2½ (if passed) on the Cohasset Public Schools at Monday's meeting...but comments like these slipped by:

"Under Prop. 2½ we would have to eliminate $350,000 from the budget in its first year...if we are allowed to keep our share of the shrunken pot. We could be made to absorb the entire brunt under 2½." — Vice Chairman Jack Langmaid.

"Out of every four people you would reduce — the town would have to add a fifth person to the town's budget to pay for unemployment." — Supt. Crowell.

"The only over-ride procedure is by referendum on the next state-wide election ballot in November 1982." — Raftery.

The committee voted to have Supt. Crowell and Raftery examine the ramifications of Prop. 2½ on the school system, in preparation of a yet unscheduled presentation to be made by the committee before November 4 elections.

In addition, the committee will attempt to schedule a joint meeting with the advisory committee and selectmen to discuss the Town's intention with respect to sharing the burden.

It was voted to have Langmaid officially represent the school committee at the League of Women Voters' rally against Prop. 2½ this week (Thursday, October 9, 7:30 p.m. at the Unitarian Parish House on North Main Street;...but the committee agreed it would prefer to also schedule its own meeting on the tax reduction plan, and hear from the town's proponents, as well.

The committee did not take any formal stance on

TM $ requests on tenderhooks

By Tanna Kasperowicz

Proposition 2½ has a needle for every conceivable balloon, and it has been casting its ominous shadow over all money articles coming before voters at the upcoming October 28 Special Town Meeting... scheduled just seven days before November 4 elections and the "tooted" tax revolt of the Commonwealth.

Exactly how Prop. 2½, if voted, would affect any bond issues voted by this special TM is anyone's guess. But if the Commonwealth stands to lose, as predicted, $75 million in state revenues as a result of Prop. 2½'s passage through a renter income tax deduction, the Commonwealth may not be underwriting cities' and towns' bond issues so generously in the future.

At issue is the selectmen's article asking the town to purchase Cohasset Motors on 3-A for a multi-use town building, which could house two fire trucks and allow the town to close down its Beechwood Street and North Cohasset Fire Stations. The price: under $500,000.

A second article, by petition, asks the town to construct a new Beechwood Street Fire Station. The proposed funding for this article is still unknown.

Several town officials have expressed the fear that voters may vote down all special TM expenditures in anticipation of Prop. 2½.

Many residents do not appear to have made up their minds about either of the town fire station

Pirates pout after Skippe upset

By Rob Tis

For the first time since 1971, nine long years, the Cohasset Skipper football team, under the tutelage of Coach Leone, has beaten their arch rivals, the Hull Pirates. This was it, the superbowl, for no other game does Skipper team get as psyched-up for as Hull.

This victory will undoubtably linger in the minds of the players throughout the rest of their lives.

The scene was set, a perfect Autumn day. The largest crowd of the year lined Milliken Field. The Skipperschargedonto the field and took over quickly.

Not long into the first quarter the Skipper steel trap defense forced Hull to punt and who was back to receive it but Cohasset's answer to Billy "White Shoes" Johnson, Jack McNeil.

Behind some savage blocks by Miles Jones, Paul Buckley, Bob Fessler, Bud Howorth and Sandy Ayer, McNeil danced 73 yards to the T.D.

Q.B. Kevin Dooley then scampered in for the conversion and it was 8-0.

Sparked by McNeil, the defense took a tough hold and forced Hull to punt.

The Skippers took over on their own 20.

Unfortunately along with getting the ball the Skippers had some bad luck.

As Dooley faded back to pass on the 3rd down everyone seemed to be covered and with heavy pressure coming in Dooley attempted to dump the ball off to one of his backs to avoid losing yardage. But the ball went into the hands of a Hull lineman who ran it 17 yards for the touchdown.

Enraged by this turn of events, the defense stopped the conversion. In the second quarter Hull got a good drive together which ended up with a yard run by Kevin Greer for the touchdown, and it was now 12-8 Hull.

It was Cohasset's turn now and Skippers drove

School pop. down 91

The official October figures are in, and Cohasset Public Schools shows a decrease of 91 students over last year's population of 1,622. The present student population is 1,541.

The Osgood School population is down 34 students over last year, with an increase of 23 students in Grade K, a 29 student decrease in Grade 1, a five student increase in Grade 2 and a 38 student decrease in Grade 3.

School Supt. Eugene Crowell said Grade K was evidencing the "mini baby boom" that has been predicted for the middle 80's.

At Deer Hill School, Grade 4 dropped three students, Grade 5 increased by seven, and Grade 6 decreased by 16 students. The overall Deer Hill population is presently 366 students, a decrease of 12 over last year.

At CHS (Grades 7-12) there was a decrease of 81 students.

Tracks led to publishing career

By Laura Doherty

For those of you who have ever wondered if it is possible to combine specific interests into a career, Fred Gamst appears to have found the answer.

Railroading, publishing, anthropology and higher education are Fred's main interests and disparate as these fields may seem, he has been successful in all of them.

Fred's railroad career began when at the age of 18, he began unloading boxcars. "That was in 1954," he recalls, "and at $1.20 an hour, I soon decided I was on the wrong side of the box car." As soon as the recession was over, he "hired out" in engine service where he worked for six and one half years.

For an 18 year old with just a high school diploma, the pay was good even though the hours were often difficult with runs as long as 16 hours. The older personnel were "Stern taskmasters," the work challenging and little did Fred know that he would later use many of these experiences in a book he was to write on railroading.

Cohasset's week

Males over 21

The Committee of 1972 is organizing an overnight bus trip to New York City to watch Chris Keating (Postmaster Gerard Keating's son) of the Buffalo Bills play the New York Jets.

Tickets to the game (the bus leaves November 8, 12 noon and returns, hopefully, November 9 at 11:30 p.m.) cost 8,500 pennies and includes unlimited liquid refreshment on the bus, pep hats, gratuities, a gift for Chris, the bus trip and a hotel room (two persons per room excepting one or two committee members who will sleep by themselves).

At present time, it is expected 46 persons can fit on a bus. If one bus is filled, the Committee of 1972 will try to fill another bus.

Sources say "the girls" are wild they can't go and are protesting this all-male trip.

If you're a liberated female who would like to see Chris play, protest to any of the following committee members: Ed "Pumpkin" Mulvey, Rocco Laugelle, Hap Pomp, Pat McCarthy, Norm Swain, Steve Wiggy, Rob Devin, Richard Silvia or Clark Chatterton.

The above committee travelled to New York City in 1972 to watch Walter Sweeney, then of the San Diego Chargers, play the New York Giants. New York will never forget it.

State won't fund wharf

Coastal Zone Management (CZM) has turned down Cohasset's application for a grant to prepare engineering plans for the extension of Government Wharf, a pier used by commercial fishermen.

The estimated cost of the proposed pier project under the harbor master plan developed by Anderson and Nichols consultants, is $360,000.

LWV Forum—Prop. 2½

This week, the Cohasset League of Women Voters in conjunction with the Cohasset Board of Selectmen will host a forum on Proposition 2½ beginning at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, October 9 at the Unitarian Parish House.

The guest speaker will be Patricia Facey, Government Chairman of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters. Ms. Facey will explain Proposition 2½ and its affect on Cohasset and other towns around the state.

The program is open to the public. Cohasset League President Barbara Bliss urges all voters in Cohasset who are still undecided about Proposition 2½ to attend.

Street talk

Town Counsel Blake Thaxter has advised selectmen that the only method by which a road may become a public way is by acceptance by a town meeting.

Thaxter said a road could still be used as a public way without being accepted by a town meeting, and could still legally be a private way by definition.

"The problem that has arisen is that under Massachusetts General Laws it is provided that a division of a tract of land into two or more lots shall not be deemed to constitute a subdivision if, at the time when it is made, every lot within the tract so divided has frontage on a public way or a way which the clerk of the city or town certifies is maintained and used as a public way," Thaxter noted.

He added that once a town clerk has certified the use, "Then it appears the planning board has no choice to determine as to whether or not it is in fact a public way and must act accordingly."

Farmer's Market

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset's Farmer's Market was a success...with club members having raised an estimated $3,000...most of which will ultimately make its way to the Lothrop House on Summer Street in the form of further renovations.

In the exhibits part of the Market, over 100 persons received ribbons for crewel embroidery, garden produce, gardening entries, jellies and relishes. The exhibits were lovely, but we still can't understand how Sally Wood won anything with her tubular carrot entry. (??)

Junior gardeners, under the direction of Mrs. Patrick Hurley and Mrs. Gerald Doyle, took first place with their orange marmalade entry. Junior gardeners were: Cathy Gorman, Susan Johnston, Carolan Hurley, Seanna O'Leary, Katie Horn, Melissa Norhnagle and Amy Hobbs.

The League of Women Voters of Hingham and Cohasset will be sponsoring a debate between Representative Gerry E. Studds (D), and Paul Doane (R), candidates for the 12th Congressional District, October 21 at 7:30 p.m., Barnes Auditorium, Hingham Town Hall, 7 East Street.

The League will choose a panel comprised of four area residents with expertise in various fields of interest pertinent to south shore residents. Each panelist will submit one question for debate.

After the debate is completed from the panel, written questions from the audience will be submitted to the candidates for debate. This debate is open to the public and will be a prime opportunity for all south shore residents to meet with Rep. Studds and Mr. Doane.

Proposition 2½

Citizens seeking further information on Proposition 2½, the controversial tax reform referendum appearing on the November ballot, can obtain a series of booklets from the Univ. of Mass. Cooperative Extension Service.

Three booklets have been developed as part of a citizen education program, jointly sponsored by the Univ. of Mass. Cooperative Extension Service, the Center for Studies in Policy and the Public Interest, and the Citizen Involvement Training Project, Cooperative Extension Service.

Single copies of these booklets are free. Bulk copies are available at cost (Fact Book, 20 cents; Impact Statement, 15 cents; Discussion Guide, 5 cents per copy; a set of all three, 30 cents). Contact the Cooperative Extension Service Bulletin Center, Cottage A, Thatcher Way, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, MA, tel. (413) 545-2717. Copies may also be obtained at your local County Extension Office.

A new service

Suzanne Mullett, president of the Social Service League of Cohasset, Inc. announces the addition of a new service to elder residents of Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Norwell and Scituate. The Geriatric Counseling Service will offer consultation and counseling to elders and family members encountering health, social and emotional problems.

Staff members Susan La Torraca, R.N. and Carolyn Housman M.S.W. will be available at 383-0771 or 383-0821 to answer any questions and to accept referrals. They will be providing individual and team assessment, support and information.

The addition of this new service was made possible by funding awarded by South Shore Home Care Services, Inc. There will be no charge for these services during the initial year's funding period.

Candidates' Corner

Paul Barber on state rules & regs.

By Tanna Kasperowicz

The most common issue being debated, on the South Shore this week, is Proposition 2½. You'll be happy to note that Paul Barber and I didn't discuss it. Nor did we talk about nuclear energy, Question 1, 4 or 6.

Barber is a big, burly guy. Owner of Call Paul Taxi in Duxbury, he is also a former Duxbury Selectman, and was a five-year member of the Local Governor's Advisory Committee...where he learned a lot about the workings of the state. And taught the state a lot about the workings of the towns.

He likes to talk about government. He doesn't pretend to have all the answers, but he likes to get to the root of things. Wants to know where initiative petitions came from, who supported them, likes to read legislators' texts...get up in their brains. Sift things out.

I had just finished writing an editorial on Question 5...which, after talking to Representative Mary Jeanette Murray, Democratic Nominee for Representative Ted Ford (both Norfolk County) and Representative Phil Johnston, I had decided was a safe enough thing to vote for.

Basically, Question 5 says the state can't mandate any laws which it doesn't fund or we don't agree to. Barber agreed it was basically ok. But then his brain started churning, rolling, crackling and he said even if it was voted, the legislature would not be bound by any previous legislature.

Paul Barber

"The next legislature could refuse to fund anything a previous legislature voted to fund. And it could end up in court," he said. But that didn't particularly worry him. After all, it's true legislators are pretty much afraid to mandate anything for cities and towns these days.

But Barber said they still can get us — even if we vote for Question 5. They can continue to goof up our towns with rules and regulations. "They (rules and regs.) are not in the law books, they don't have the force of law, but we can be fined for not obeying them," Barber said. "And there are something like over 503 public mandates (466 directives), 37 conditions of affairs, etc., etc., etc."

"Tell me," I said.

"They (legislators) are working out of their hearts, not out of their heads." As a member of the Local Governor's Advisory Committee (LGAC), Barber said he once sat on the "Ground Fault Indicator" mandate for 18 months.

"They were going to revise the State Sanitary Code. Now you've got to remember, first of all, that municipal officials don't usually pay attention to all the notices that come in the mail. They're busy running their towns. So nobody comes to the public hearing. Nobody complains.

"After the Ground Fault Indicator mandate was written, we (LGAC) finally started to react to it. I had to trace all the problems that would've created by it. The mandate was that two convenient outlets would have to be installed in every tenant's bathroom, and the receptical would have to have a Ground Fault Indicator — every single circuit had to have that.

Apartment house owners would have had to install separate wiring and take out all walls to do it. Obviously, the cost would be passed on to the tennants.

"The intent was to make the housing safer. But the reliability of those units was questionable. It took

2nd park entrance would relieve traffic tie-ups

Senator Allan R. McKinnon (D- Norfolk and Plymouth) called a meeting Wednesday with members of the Hingham Board of Selectmen, Gil Bliss, Director of the Parks and Recreation Division of the Department of Environmental Management, and Mr. Frank Thompson of the Department of Public Works to discuss a second entrance to Wompatuck State Park.

Senator McKinnon, in his opening remarks, said that a second entrance to Wompatuck is necessary to relieve the extremely heavy traffic burden on Route 228.

He said, "Of all the congested intersections in Hingham, the one on Route 228 at Free and High Streets is the most dangerous. There are a tremendous number of youngsters and bicyclers in the area, and I am concerned for the safety of these children and motorists. A second entrance to Wompatuck, though not a complete solution to the problem, would certainly help."

Department of Environmental Management has no current plans for a second entrance, yet as a result of the meeting Mr. Bliss announced that he will immediately reactivate the Wompatuck Study Committee.

This fall and winter DEM will examine the particulars of the several possibilities for a second entrance to the park. Hingham Selectmen will appoint a Hingham member of the committee at the Massachusetts Selectmen's meeting.

Anticipating a report and recommendations of the committee by spring 1981, the Department of Public Works and the Department of Environmental Management could then begin more technical analysis of the suitable alternatives.

Ford breakfast attracts endorsements

Ted Ford increased support for his State Representative campaign at a Democratic Unity Breakfast held Sunday, October 5 at Cohasset's Greenhouse Restaurant. The event, hosted jointly by the Democratic Town Committees of Hingham, Hull, and Cohasset, featured endorsements of Ford's candidacy by State Senator Allan McKinnon (D-Weymouth) and State Representative Philip Johnston (D-Marshfield).

"Ted Ford is the person we all need in this District," said McKinnon. "He has the governmental experience necessary to get the job done in these South Shore communities. He is talking directly about the issues of transportation, tax reform, and state governmental relations as they affect the area. He knows how government works. The voters of Hingham, Hull, and Cohasset will be best served by sending Ted Ford to the State House on November 4."

Adding their support to the Ford campaign were former State Representatives William Spence and Caroline Stouffer, both Hingham Democrats. Democratic Town Committee Chairmen Greg O'Meara of Hingham, Anne Scully of Hull, and Donna McGree of Cohasset each represented contingents of leading Democrats from their towns.

The Unity Breakfast followed an evening during which Ted Ford earned the endorsement of another leading Massachusetts Democrat. Lt. Governor Thomas P. O'Neil, Jr. called for South Shore voters to support Ted Ford at a reception held for Representative Johnston at Scituate's Dreamworld on Saturday night. "I urge all residents of Hingham, Hull, and Cohasset to actively support a young man who is going to bring competent leadership to the Third Plymouth District," said the Lt. Governor.

Murray protests Con-Con

Representative Mary Jeanette Murray (R) Plymouth District stated, "The Legislature finally met in Constitutional Convention to act on the amendments abandoned early this summer. However, before it could complete action on all amendments, the Senate President declared that the Constitutional Convention would reconvene on November 12, after the elections.

"Legislators present objected vigorously, but the Senate President ignored their protests." Several adjournment motions were voted down during the Constitutional Convention."

McKinnon and Ford

Mary Jeanette, at a coffee in Hull, continued, "Among the Amendments still pending is an amendment to the constitution preventing a sitting legislature from giving itself a pay raise and limiting the amount of any raise that can be voted. Other Amendments are to limit the legislative session to seven months and one to provide for the recall of elected officials."

She added, "Many Legislators think that the majority of the public neither knows about nor really cares about state government. This apathy gives those who want to avoid voting on such things as tax cuts, the pay raise, and other controversial bills an opportunity to do so without being called to task." Murray voted against the pay raise.

Delahunt wants $65 million—over 3 years

To the Editor:

Norfolk County District Attorney William D. Delahunt this week urged the County's Congressional delegation to work for the passage of Domestic Violence Prevention legislation.

In a telegram to the Senators and Congressmen who represent his District, Delahunt stated:

"I urge you to support H.R. 2977 providing $65 million dollars over 3 years for Domestic Violence prevention projects. This funding is required for shelters, educational programs, and assistance to families under stress. We must continue to work against domestic violence. Your help is essential in gaining passage of this bill."

William D. Delahunt
District Attorney
Norfolk District
Massachusetts

(ED.'S NOTE: The measure received final approval from the House of Representatives last week, and is now in the Senate, which is expected to consider it after the general election in November.)

Cohasset Board of Health on the ball!

To Mrs. Knowles and the Townspeople of Cohasset:

The Cohasset Board of Health wishes to thank Mrs. Knowles publically for her very supportive letter in last week's Mariner. This Board has been revising its Rules and Regulations mainly to reduce redundant language covered by State Laws and to tailor local regulations to local needs.

We wish to thank all of the citizens who have attended the preliminary hearings on Horse/Livestock and Title 5 as it applies to Cohasset. In particular we would like to thank Bob & Sally Davenport of the Cohasset Riding Club for their information and Dianne Sullivan for her intensive work and information sharing.

October 15, Wednesday, we will be holding a final hearing on the Title 5 changes we have tentatively incorporated into our own Rules & Regulations. The Conservation, Planning and Sewer Boards have all had input as well as local engineers, builders and developers. We would welcome any additional comments and participation at this final hearing.

We care about Cohasset and how it develops and the effect on the health of all its citizens, we urge you to join us in making these decisions. They are important to all our futures.

Vote no on Question 2

Those of you who are looking for a striking new interpretation of equity in Massachusetts will not find that equity by voting in favor of Question 2 (Prop. 2½) on the November 4 ballot.

The central illusion of Prop. 2½ is the belief that it would project a new foundation for an equitable tax base. It provides for no such solution. Its objectives are much more limited. Briefly, it is a message. Practically, it would take approximately $75 million in state revenues from the state with its renter income tax deduction.

Local government spending would be reduced by approximately 30 per cent. In Cohasset, in this current fiscal year, town officials would have to immediately find a way to cut $155,000 out of its already voted budget, as the provisions of Prop. 2½ would apply to the 1981 motor vehicle excise tax levy.

Certainly Town Meeting would meet on the matter, but if it could not agree on what items to cut, town officials would have to cut that money in any case.

By limiting tax rates and not tax assessments under 2½, cities and towns would find it necessary to squeeze every penny possible out of their own tax base. Ultimately, the end result of Prop. 2½ is that the whole problem would be forced right back on cities and towns.

Certainly there is a problem, when a $15,000 a year resident pays the same income tax rate as a $60,000 resident; when a senior citizen pays the same tax rate on a nest egg as a millionaire pays on his stock portfolio.

The Massachusetts legislature has not voted tax reform in over 18 years. Prop. 2½ might force that issue. But the more one considers that possibility, the less unlikely it seems.

What is the answer to tax reform? Possibly the graduated income tax, which has been defeated four times in this state. Possibly a more broadened tax base.

In any case, it is our opinion that an elastic tax collection system must be developed before any major budget-slashing takes place.

Vote no on Question 3

Heralded as a "Stop Prop. 2½" measure, the initiative law proposed by the Massachusetts Teachers Association proposes to limit the annual rate of increase in state and local taxation (with certain exceptions) to the rate of increase in Massachusetts personal income during the prior calendar year.

Unlike Prop. 2½, these tax limitations would expire at the end of fiscal 1984. Its permanent provisions call for gradual state assumption of 50 per cent of public school operating costs by 1984, provided the necessary state appropriations are forthcoming.

The net result of this petition, should it pass, and should personal income remain stable or grow only at a nominal rate, could be a major state tax program in the near future.

It would also leave city councils and town meetings without the checks they now have over school appropriations under the present Tax Cap.

The MTA initiative completely ignores the principal causes of runaway local property taxation: an unreformed system of taxation, state spending mandates, state-ordained local property tax exemptions and regional government assessments.

If voted over Question 2 (Prop. 2½) it would certainly stop 2½, but its alternatives are ineffective.

Question 5—a funding resolution

Unless the courts interpret it differently, Question 5 appears to be comparatively harmless. Question 5 is a Constitutional Amendment which would limit the power of the legislature to impose certain costs on cities and towns. It would provide that any law which imposes additional costs upon two or more cities and towns by regulating the compensation, hours, status, conditions, or benefits of municipal employment would not be effective within a municipality until it accepts the law by vote or appropriation of money.

Local acceptance would not be required if the legislature either passed the law by a 2/3 vote or provided, during the same session in which the law was enacted, that additional costs would be assumed by the Commonwealth.

This amendment was originally for the Massachusetts Municipal Association in 1977 — three years after Chapter 766 — an expensive proposition for many communities — was mandated by the state.

However, since 1974 the legislature has not mandated any state program which has not been funded by the state. This amendment would have no affect on any mandates which are presently law.

Beechwood concerns

To the Editor,

As concerned residents of the Beechwood area, we are angered and disappointed that the Beechwood Fire Station has not been reopened.

Over 200 area residents petitioned the Board of Selectman to reopen the station and keep it fully manned 24 hours a day until the Oct. 28 Special Town Meeting decides whether the Beechwood Station or the proposed 3A Station will service the Beechwood area.

On September 23, 1980, at the Selectman's meeting, Chief Pipenbrink's letter to the Selectmen said the Beechwood Station would reopen, at the request of the Town of Scituate, while the construction on Clapp Road was being completed.

Over 200 residents of Cohasset could not get the station opened, but were happy that the opening was to take place.

Surprise Beechwood, the opening was to cover only a few hours per day, no nights, no weekends, leaving the Beechwood area unprotected again.

To top it all off the building inspector, in a letter dated September 30, 1980, has condemned the building for use or occupation. This condemnation has been discussed frequently in recent years. The question is why condemn it so long after the initial closing — to raise citizens' suspicions?

The list of needed repairs dates back to 1974. Perhaps the maintainance budget for the Beechwood Fire Station over the past years could have covered these needed repairs.

Editorial

And then there's the Cohen Bill

The Cohen Bill is not a referendum question. It was voted favorably in the 1980 Constitution Convention. It could be operative for fiscal and calendar years beginning on or after 7/1/81.

Authored by Gerald Cohen, chairman of the House Tax Committee, it could have a substantial effect in addressing both the problem of the burden of taxes in the state and our competitive tax status with the 17 similar industrial states with which we compete for jobs and business.

It is based on the principle that Massachusetts needs to gradually reduce its tax burden, until it enjoys a tax burden equal to the average burden in the 17 similar (competing states).

It would allow a growth in taxes much slower than the growth in personal income, allowing the Commonwealth to reduce its tax burden without crippling government services. Debt service, unfunded pension liability and changes in local and federal aid would be outside this limit.

A special fund authorized for excess state collections would require a 2/3 vote of both branches and approval by the governor. According to Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, an amendment would be offered to send this Constitutional Substitute bill back to the cities and towns if the Cohen Bill were to be affirmatively voted.

While the Cohen Bill is not a tax reform bill, coupled with a state mandate reform (Question 5) it could afford the legislature the time to consider real tax reform. The level of Massachusetts taxes is only slightly above the national average. Proponents of Prop. 2½ are angry with the way in which we collect taxes, not our levy.

A flat-rate income tax pinches voters who can't afford it, our sales tax exempts more than it taxes and our property tax makes up the difference.

Cohasset holds middle ground in state-wide survey

In the June 30 edition of the Boston Globe 60 schools, state-wide, were asked to participate in a survey. Cohasset was not one of them, but Stephen Hart, using Globe tables, compared Cohasset Schools with the 60.

Cohasset was 24th out of 61 in per student cost ($2,064); 10th in per capita income ($7,296); 8th in percentage (84 per cent) of seniors taking SATS; 7th in SAT verbal scores (459); and 11th in SAT math scores (504).

Hart further narrowed down the Globe survey, by comparing Cohasset SAT's with 13 communities who were similar, socio-economically and academically. Cohasset was 5th out of 14 in SAT verbal scores and 6th in SAT math scores in this isolated group.

"I feel very representative. We're holding middle ground, with no great discrepancies," Hart said.

☐The following CHS students have been awarded scholarships to attend the Massachusetts College of Art Saturday classes for high school students:

Seniors Bonnie Whittemore and Jane Higgins, and Junior Consuello Halloran.

Massachusetts College of Art Saturday classes are designed to serious, advanced art students in their junior and senior years.

☐John Durkin came in first and won the "low net" trophy in the fifth annual Ledge Way, Ledgewood Drive, Wood Way and Brewster Road gaslight fund-raising golf tournament on September 27. "Low gross" award went to Joe Baressi, a real golfer, who shot an 80 on the greens of the Green Harbor Golf Club in Marshfield. Durkin and others managed to do as well as they did due to a liberal handicap system for the event which was engineered and executed by Ernie Grassey, Paul Robie, Peter Whitman and Hank Mersch of the same neighborhood.

Proceeds from the golf tournament, as well as a mid-winter tennis tourney, go towards the maintenance of one gaslight lamp at the corner of Brewster Road and Route 3-A. When the aforementioned streets were laid out and housing constructed, a second gaslight and stone wall were planned for the opposite corner, but an abutting retailer protested and it was never built.

Women were invited to play, but the few who indicated they planned to join the men, backed out at the last minute. Neither they nor the other spouses of the 24 players came to watch. In fact, they were upset that the game took so long. A catered dinner followed the tournament at the American Legion Hall and they were anxious to get started.

Other awards presented at the dinner were made to Colin Studds for "closest to the pin;" Al Leung for "highest score;" Dick Stevens for "longest drive;" Pat Hurley, "best at trying to fill a water hazard with balls" and to Chip Stimlie, "most birdies — one." ☐AND DENNY WAS HIS NAME-O...The friendly book-loving dragon at the Osgood Library has a name — Denny.

Kerry Anglin, a third grader, came up with the name along with a prize winning picture of Denny in his new home, for the Grand Prize in the school's Dragon Contest.

David Zaloga won Honorable Mention for his entry. Other winners chosen by a panel of high school students under the supervision of former librarian Ronna Bingham were:

Grade One: First prize, Amy Crafts; Runners Up, Laurie Bronstein and Jamie Bruno.

Grade Two: First prize, Corey DeSantis; Runners Up, Tara Volungis and Katie Pyle; Honorable Mention: Peter Sheppard, Joseph Figueiredo, Joshua Stevenson, Philip Pratt, Rebecca Jordan, Sophie Redfield, Jacob Powell, Alstair Wood, Michael Cisneros, Matthew Lombardy, Mary Hurley, Kristin Martin, Kristin MacQuarrie, Matthew Norris, Joshua Whitman, Jennifer Plante, William Baird, Karla Kristiansen, Keri Zaloga and Allison Doherty.

Third Grade: First prize, Dudley Bryan; Runners Up, Jason Cameron and Juliana Chittick; Honorable Mention, Alexandria Donnelly, Dawn Fitzgerald, Carrie Ripley, Susan Young, Charlotte Begley and Laura Smart.

Kerri Anglin received a dictionary and a Winnie-The-Pooh book and David Zaloga received a dictionary. First prize winners received a dictionary, runners up a Peter Rabbit book plaque and certificates went to honorable mention winners.

Mr. Creamer told the students, "You are all winners just because you tried." Loreen Miller, Metco Aide in charge of the library, made the presentations. All the pictures are being displayed in the library.

Moms mucilage? ...Now just a minute!

By Lois Martin

"I have a gnawing feeling," said Thomas Murphy, chairman of General Motors Corp., "that American society today is coming unglued, simply because the essential mucilage of the family is evaporating."

Do you get it? Did you understand what Tom said? He was speaking at the (Roy) Menninger Foundation's convocation on "Work and the Family: An American Dilemma." And the upshot has been nearly unanimously reflected from the point of view of the men attending, that unless Mother goes back home, her family's had it.

They never said that. They spoke around corners about women who work when they should be wifing and mothering. But they despaired, the men attending, of the old fashioned homemaker, "the role that most of our mothers and our wives filled to perfection," as almost being extinct.

Some of the reports given of the conference frankly sound like a poorly veiled whining session. The men, quoted in last week's Boston Globe, never manage to say women should be home with their families. But they do suggest that because we aren't, everything's awful.

These are important men. They've attained high positions. I suspect many of them are also parents. And I note they've not allowed themselves to be limited by the fact that they've reproduced. Some of the great men will now even be honored in a sperm bank. But that's not because they were great parents. Rather it's because they achieved in other fields. We can hope they made it to the school Thanksgiving play when young John was the turkey and his teeth were out. We don't doubt for a minute that they got to at least one open house a year and a school conference when Johnny slipped in his algebra. And we know he drove late at night to pick him up from his dishwashing job at the fast food place.

In short, we don't doubt the quality of a man's fatherhood simply because he's working outside the home.

And I'm not sure that a woman's motherhood has failed because she's accepted an outside job.

The conclusion at the conference, save for the expressions from Ann Landers, were not that society was changing by virtue of mother's employment, but that the family is deteriorating because of it.

Let me stop right here and tell you something. I know that in this subject I'm tackling something with which I'm not completely at peace. You know why, don't you? I'm a woman, a working mother. And one characteristic which we all share whether we're working or not is the implication, no matter how subtle, that we're not doing what we should be doing. Guilt, our flag, is often flying at full mast in our lives. If we work, we shouldn't be. If we don't, we should be. That's part of the heritage which the constructive women's movement is fighting.

But being more objective, one might say that good men always put their families as a top priority. And so do good women. Personally I've concluded that I don't necessarily serve my children best by waiting to serve them literally, whenever they ring my buzzer. I know that having had those three boys may be the best I've ever done, but it simply isn't all I can or want to do. You see I find no reason to be limited because of reproduction either.

True, I held off working "outside the home" until the last one was in first grade. Then I took part time work. Before that, though, I did take jobs which let me out of the house to teach a couple evenings a week. I needed that. I like to think my students did too.

Anyway I keep hearing in that Menninger convocation a partially stifled whimper of someone who's been left and wishes Mother would come back. It isn't that he fears for his life, but that he fears his life won't be the same without her.

I can't speak for other mothers. But I can speak of what I've seen in other mothers. Those who have chosen to stay home are carrying that warm loving torch for their families. They are probably doing a lot of volunteering and more baking and cleaning. Having been home a lot myself, I know they are as interested in being good mothers but they might also not mind realizing they are not limited to being mothers if they choose to do additional things. Women are capable creatures, as we know. They are making up their own minds about how they wish to care for and about their families. Apparently, for the likes of Tom — busy all day with General Motors, it is more convenient if the wife/mother doesn't tie herself down with interests other than himself and the children.

Even working mothers bake, you know. We're not doing as much of it as we like sometimes. But I'm still vacuuming more than I want to. And the closets still make me wish I had a magic wand to wave over them. Staying home wouldn't make of me a nifty housekeeper. I want the house clean with the least amount of my dedication at cleaning. The rest of my family joins me in that sentiment only they don't feel guilty when it's dirty.

I sure don't do much clever arts and crafts. I never did. True, when I didn't work outside I would spend time trying to make a gorgeous wreath until I'd get so mad at the mess and my lack of elan in crafts that I cursed the project and wanted to burn pine cones instead of spraying them. Now I buy a gorgeous wreath at my church fair. And I can still bake well enough to donate something for cooked goods.

The thing is, you see, the women I know are mothers first. Families first, husbands and children. Now if Tom Murphy is saying we can't be good mothers unless we stay home all day, he's got one big argument on his hand. We'll want to know if that also weeds out bridge, lunches, volunteer work for his company. And we'll want to know if that means that men have to give up their outside work and interests in order to be good fathers.

I've always held that if we adults have children, they are our first obligation. Not the only one, mind you, but our first. Nothing has changed that. But I've noticed that as they grow older the boys weren't teasing for me to visit school with them, go to movies with them, or plan double dates. There are, as we've said so often, ages and stages.

And I haven't the foggiest idea if I'm a worse mother than my mother or grandmother was because I have an outside job. I know they had their strengths and their weaknesses. So do my children and I. And most grandmothers today clearly aren't living the same lives their grandmothers did.

And be sure of this, Tom and Roy. Though we may not be doing what all people want us to do, we are first and foremost mothers. Just because we aren't the homemaker your mother was doesn't mean we're not darn good ones, whether we work full time at it or not.

The truth is that today mother is far more than mucilage.

Obituaries

Muriel Briggs

Muriel Creighton (Fiendel) Briggs, 76, died September 29 in South Shore Hospital, Weymouth.

Born in New Germany, Nova Scotia, she had lived in Norwood before moving to Cohasset eight years ago. She attended New Germany schools and graduated from Athol High School. She was a past Eastern Star Worthy Matron.

Wife of the late Homer Burton Briggs, she is survived by two sons, Homer Burton Briggs, Jr. of Long Island, N.Y. and Robert Creighton Briggs of Nashua, N.H. Also, a sister, Katherine C. Fox of Rialton California, and four grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted at Sparrell Funeral Home. She was buried in North Leverett Cemetery, Leverett.

Grace Wigmore

Grace Anne (Murphy) Wigmore, wife of Stephen Francis Wigmore, of 32 Ash Street died October 1 at the age of 43. She leaves a son, Thomas William, of Cohasset; a sister, Mary Stafford of Burke, Virginia; and her parents, Thomas J. and Grace C. (Meldon) Murphy of Milton.

A funeral was held Saturday from the Sparrell Funeral Home, followed by a Mass of Christian Burial in St. Anthony's Church.

Holt, Rinehart and Winston, is an industrial ethnology on the locomotive engineer. "I could have written it 10 years ago but I wanted to work out a model on how to present it to the nonrailroader," says Fred. Interestingly, there is only one other book like it and both authors worked on the same railroad.

I had originally planned to interview Fred as a college professor and graduate. Dean at UMass - Boston with a hobby in railroading but quickly redirected my questions when he emphasized that his interest was "not a hobby but a social field such as the study or urban communities or tribal communities in Africa." Not much of a hobby, that.

In the rail world, the locomotive engineer is usually referred to as a hoghead, a word derived from a particular kind of locomotive called a hog. Fred's book provides a vivid account of an occupational role in an industrial setting which is largely closed to public view. "Most people think an engineeer just gets on a train and goes but it's much more complex," Fred points out.

One of the admirable qualities about Fred's works is the positive way in which he uses his wide field of experiences. While working for the railroad, he attended the University of California at Los Angeles, in his spare time. At first, Fred thought he would remain a railroader with a degree in Anthropology but his experiences at the university widened his horizons and having graduated with highest honors he went on for his Ph.D. from the University of California at Berkeley.

As a result of his university experiences, Fred is a strong advocate of public higher education. "The exposure and choices are there," he emphasizes, "and if they weren't, I wouldn't be where I am today." Now, well into his seventh book, Fred views publishing as a necessary service in his work as a college professor.

"The university has always developed and preserved knowledge as well as taught it."

His book on the Qemant, a peasant society in Ethiopia, is used all over the world. While doing the field work on this book, Fred also did a pilot study on the Ethiopian railroad, "a busman's holiday," he calls it.

Through the years, Fred has kept up to date with

BEECHWOOD FIRE STATION UPDATE

In a letter to Fire Chief Charles Piepenbrink and the board of selectmen, dated September 30, 1980, Building Inspector James Litchfield reiterated his concern over the delapidated condition of the Beechwood Fire Station, recommending that the Beechwood Station not be used or occupied until remedial action is taken.

Litchfield also provided correspondence dated August 16, 1974 and March 7, 1977 in which he provides detailed summaries of inspections done on both the Beechwood and North Cohasset Fire Stations.

In 1977, both stations were found to be in deplorable condition.

Early in September Chief Piepenbrink closed the Beechwood Fire Station, saying a shortage of men made it difficult to station a shift at Beechwood, and in any case, the new pumper did not fit into the station.

Residents reacted to the closing of the station by inserting a petition article on the October 28, Special Town Meeting Warrant asking residents to vote affirmatively for a new bond for the construction of a new Beechwood Fire Station.

Joan Brown, a member of the Beechwood Fire Station Steering Committee for a new fire station, said a large meeting of Beechwood residents was held last Thursday regarding the status of the station.

Ms. Brown said residents are particularly concerned that while Chief Piepenbrink said he would man the Beechwood Fire Station as a means of providing assistance to the Town of Scituate while reconstruction of Clapp Road was being accomplished. "The station has been open only a few hours a day. It continues to be unmanned in the evening. The station appears to be manned only during prime construction hours on Clapp Road in Scituate," Ms. Brown added.

Ms. Brown said an open public meeting would be held sometime before the October 28 Special Town Meeting where residents of the Beechwood Street area hope to attract the attention and gain the support of other town residents for a new Beechwood Fire Station.

South Shore Art Center Gallery opens Friday

The South Shore Art Center Gallery announces the opening Friday, October 17 of an exciting selection of recent acrylic paintings by abstract expressionist, Rosalind Farbush. Reception hours are from 6 to 8 p.m. when the public is invited to meet the artist.

The Center's Gallery is located at 103 Ripley Road in Cohasset. The show is on exhibit in the Invitational Gallery from October 13 through November 8, 1980.

Farbush is well-known in the Boston area. She studied at the Museum School of Fine Arts and currently teaches at the School of the Museum. During the Jubilee 350 she showed in the Copley Society's Boston Show and was awarded "Most Original." The Copley also chose her to participate in their 50th anniversary celebration.

Fifty top artists were selected to represent the 50 years of the Society. Recently, Farbush showed in the Copley's All New England Show at the Federal Reserve Bank, Boston, and at the Boston Center of the Arts sponsored by the Boston Visual Artists Union.

She has been a consistent award winner at local art's organizations. This past summer she won first prize at the Duxbury Art Association.

Brockton Art Center, Nashua Arts and Science Center, Watson Gallery, and Tufts Library are only a few of the many places that Farbush has exhibited. She is currently in the Copley's exhibition, Great Cities.

"I am really interested in painting everything, life around me," says Farbush. The dynamic colors and energetic shapes work together to capture the unique life of all her subject matter whether it be local or from her many travels. The public is invited to share this impressive collection of new work.

Oktober Fest happens this week

The Community Center of Cohasset will host the third annual Oktoberfest Saturday, Oct. 11 from 10 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. The rain date is Monday, oct. 13. The day will include festivities for all ages.

The Shriners' Band will perform in the morning and the Cohasset High Jazz Band will perform in the afternoon. Games, pony rides and boat rides on the Common will highlight the day for the children. Refreshments include, soda, hot dogs, knockwurst, bratwurst, sauerkraut, and cotton candy. Beer will also be served for adults.

Flea Market and crafts tables are available on the Common. Call 383-0088 to reserve space.

changes in railroading and continues to do research and consulting on railroad operations for railroad companies. He also keeps up his 20 year collection of railroad terminology.

To Fred, the railroad is "the only civilized way to travel" and he never misses the opportunity to chat with operating personnel on his various trips. His wife, Marilou, assists him in his work. Daughter, Nicole, to whom The Hoghead is dedicated, has always been very train conscious. At one point when most of her friends were talking about becoming ballerinas, Nicole wanted to be a locomotive enginner.

Fred is pleased that his book has been well received both by his brother railroaders and by management. He says that the railroaders he corresponds with all over the United States, Canada and overseas are "like an enormous list of relatives" and often he will receive various packages containing train schedules, spikes and even a piece of polished tie.

The future for railroad transportation, according to Fred, will continue to grow especially as it becomes more apparent that it is more energy efficient. He notes that many countries now use electric railroad in order to avoid a reliance on petroleum.

Cohasset could, he continued, open up its commuter line which at one time operated by electricity on a double track. He noted that grade crossings would be a problem which would have to be overcome but said that the Braintree line was built on the same oldrailroad right of way.

The town's railroad has had an interesting history which, he continued, included its use by such famous people as Thoreau. The sag in the town parking lot is from the turntable pit which was used to turn the trains — Cohasset being at the end of the line.

There aren't many fathers who can read a book they wrote to a daughter. Fred and Nicole Gamst, 11, talk about railroading days. (Derr photo)

Cohasset Dramatic Club presents 'Sly Fox'

By Diane Gallagher

"O rare Ben Johnson" is his epitaph in Westminister Abbey.

And rare indeed is the production of Sly Fox that is being produced by the Cohasset Dramatic Club for the last weekend in October.

Ben Jonson wrote Volpone in a mere five weeks and it was performed at the Globe Theatre in 1607. The same year it was received with "love & acceptance" at both Oxford and Cambridge. Jonson dedicated the play to "The two most notable and most equal sisters, the famous Universities."

Sly Fox is the successful adaptation of "Volpone" that opened in Boston at the Wilbur Theatre in 1976. Larry Gelbert is responsible for the adaptation. He changed the time and place from the 17th-century Venice to San Francisco of the 1880's, which gives a perfect atmosphere for the bawdy and boisterous play which will delight South Shore audiences on October 30, 31 and November 1.

Sly Fox is the first production of the prestigious Cohasset Dramatic Club which is celebrating its 60th year in continuous operation.

And just to keep the figures continuous, the director, Harry Heineman will be celebrating his sixty years (in continuous operation) during the run of this play.

"I feel this play is something you can really sink your teeth into," Heineman said in his Scituate home. "Comedy calls for more inventiveness on the part of the director; you must also have sharp actors that can pick up on the nuances that occur throughout this wacky comedy."

Heineman, born in Birmingham, Alabama, moved east fifteen years ago after living in Ohio.While living in Belmont, he was Sakini in Teahouse of the August Moon. He wrote the book and lyrics for a musical comedy Nothing So Important. I have a dozen more in the trunk.

"Delicious is what I would call this play. It is fascinating to see how the different actors use their skills to interpret their lines to bring out a funny gesture, a funny move, a funny thought. Comedy is harder to play than straight drama. Timing must be precise and the actors must be comfortable with silences. Listening and reacting to funny lines is a most difficult skill to acquire but is absolutely necessary to the life of the comic play." Heineman said.

Having come from a rehearsal of Sly Fox which will be presented in the Cohasset Town Hall on Oct. 30, 31 and Nov. 1, I would say that the large cast of seventeen are well on their way to creating a most enjoyable evening of hard laughs for all to enjoy. Tickets are available at the door. Curtain at 8 p.m.

For those of you who wish to know what the play is about we give you a quote from the first printed edition of the play:

"Volpone, childless, rich feigns sick, despairs,
Offers his state to hopes of several heirs,
Lies languishing; his Parasite receives
Presents of all, assures, deludes; then weaves
Other cross-plots, which ope' themselves, are told
New tricks for safety, are sought; they thrive:
when, bold,
Each tempts the other again, and all are sold."

Flo Kelley of Cohasset, production manager, Jane Marshall, stage secretary, of Cohasset can arrange for group sales. Come & laugh!

Paul Barber

18 months of rewriting, consulting with the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering and the Department of Communities and Development to get that mandate down to reasonableness. They also wanted every unit inspected...101 other things...which would have required more building inspectors, more housing inspectors...more expense to the towns."

What else?

"Well, sometime after 1975 the state made a rule that every town should have a full-time veterans' agent, whether it needed it or not. And there for awhile (the following was rescinded) the state required plumbing inspectors to be Civil Service, establishing a minimum pay grade under Civil Service. This was mandated whether or not the town had anybody else under Civil Service. This one employee was going to have to take the CS exam."

Barber, and many of us, worry that the proliferation of political experimentation may result in the inadvertent creation and release of virulent new political organisms against which cities and towns will have no natural defenses.

I think it's true what Barber says. I think he would watch out for us.

CO-HO SALMON

Friday's rain did little to motivate returning Co-Ho. They remain in the estuary with only a few working their way into the North River.

A Co-Ho check station has been set up at Mary's on the North River. All salmon caught should be reported there. The station will be operated by a Marine Fisheries worker on Saturday and Sunday til further notice. Information gathered will help render a decision to expand or curtail the program.

A new hatchery complex at East Sandwich will play host to both the Co-Ho and Sea-Run trout programs.

The hatchery should provide a home for over 100,000 young salmon yearly. Marine Fisheries have over 100,000 salmon now, ready to be released next spring. This year's returning adults are a result of a 45,000 smolt stocking in 1978. The 1979 stocking was way down so next year's returns will not be great. Marine Fisheries plan to supplement next year's eggs with eggs from New Hampshire to increase numbers stocked in 1982 and caught in 1984.

TUNA

A public hearing will be held at Wampatuck State Park, Oct. 16, at 7 p.m. relative to existing state regulations managing the purse seine fisheries for the Atlantic blue fin tuna.

EELING

Under a new state regulation eeling in fresh water will be allowed by permit only.

Applications for 15 permits must reach Fish & Wildlife by Feb. 1, 1981. Cost will be $15 to eel inland waters open to public fishing. Daily logs will be required. For information contact Mass. Division of Fish & Wildlife, 100 Cambridge St., Boston, MA 02202.

FALL FISHING

Start your fall fishing now. This is the best time to qualify for the state's sports fishing awards program.

Fish exceeding a minimum weight or size limit in 19 catagories could win a special bronze pin embossed with species and weight of your catch.

Applications are available at most bait and tackle shops or through the Div. of Fish & Wildlife.

Some of this year's leaders are L. M. Bass, 11 lbs. 2 oz., S.M. Bass 5 lbs. 14 oz., Bluegill 1 lb., 5 oz., Pickerel, 6 lbs., 10 oz.

SS Voke offers alternatives

Guidance directors and high school counselors in the South Shore Regional District met at South Shore Vocational Technical High School on the alternative occupational program at South Shore and discussed state-mandated basic skills assessment programs in the six town area.

The alternative occupational program is designed to equip students with trade skills enabling them to obtain entry level postions in the world of work. Students are enrolled in academic courses in their local high schools and receive skill training at Vo-Tech from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Their school day at the local high school ususally has a later starting time than those of their classmates.

There are still openings in the courses ottered, viz. auto body, automotive, carpentry, electrical and welding.

Two groups of students can especially benefit. One group consists of those students who definitely aren't planning to continue their education and will be entering the work force on graduation. The other would be the juniors and seniors planning to continue educations. The latter group can benefit because they will be prepared to obtain higher paying summer jobs to help finance educations.

The students receive two Carnegie units of credit for the full year program which are credited pro rata at the end of each quarter. Admission is open at the beginning of each quarter. This allows students lacking credits an opportunity to obtain them.

Students or parents interested in this program should contact the guidance departments at the local high schools or at South Shore Vocational Technical High School iln Hanover.

All six towns in the region are administering basic skills assessment tests to all 8th grade students this year. South Shore will be testing all ninth grade students. Testing will be conducted on reading, writing and math skills.

Assessments will demonstrate the student's strengths and weaknesses, allowing adjustment of the student's program of studies to incorporate special programming to improve skills assessed as weak. In the Fall of 1981, assessments will be done in the areas of listening and speaking. Students will be retested periodically until they meet the local norms in each of these areas.

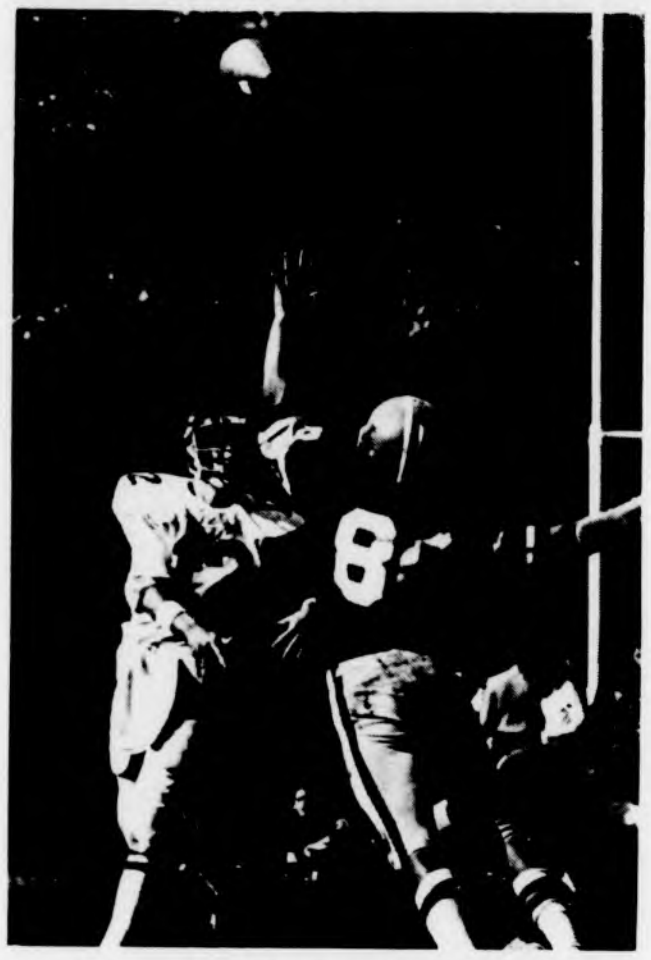
downfield on the shoulders of running backs Jack McNeil, Joe Becker, and Bob Donahue. They made it to the Hull 5 yard line where Dooley faded back and found end Bob Meers open in the end zone.



Junior Kevin Dooley passes and connects despite a screen attempt by Pirates.

The score now 14-12, the Skippers would not yield. After the half, they regained the ball from Hull and the Skippers had another sterling drive which this time ended when Dooley found Joe Becker open for a 35 yard TD play.

The men in blue would not let Hull do anything on defense and regained possession for yet another long drive in the fourth quarter.

Joe Becker ran this one in from the two yard line.

Bob Donahue booted the ball through the uprights for the extra point, but it was called back on a holding call so Bob moved back 10 yards and put it through again, putting the Skippers up by 15.

Hull took the kick off and with roughly five minutes left to play, the Pirates tried everything from onside kicks to double reverse fullback long bombs, but thanks to gutsy backfield hitting by Tom (Booda) Standford and Joe Becker, they only managed 1 touchdown.

As the seconds ticked away, the crowd went wild as the scoreboard read Home 27, Visitors 18.

The Skippers are now 1 and 1 in league play and are tied for 3rd place in the South Shore league.

This, although, does not really matter. The main thing is they beat the Hull Pirates.

Scores above average

Stephen Hart, assistant to the superintendent, told a happy school committee this week there has been a steady increase in test scores over the years. "In all areas students are above the national average. I'm pleased with the results."

While test scores are satisfying, Hart said various grade levels show need of improvement, i.e., more curriculum skills should be taught in Grade K and Grade 1.

Grade 2 students scored very high as a group, but Hart said this was to be expected. "Unfortunately, after a year of tremendous growth, scores begin to level off. I expect a leveling off in Grade 3."

Grade 3 students need to work on spelling. Hart said this school year he and Supt. Crowell will devise a unified spelling program throughout lower grade levels. He suspected this was because of variations in materials used.

Grade 4 needs to work on listening skills. Supt. Crowell said lower test scores in this area at the Grade 4 level is not unusual. "In this grade techniques of testing changes. Now instructions are based on written, not verbal, directives."

Cohasset Communication Councils

The COHASSET COMMUNICATION COUNCILS are representative groups of parents who meet regularly with the principals of the three schools and who serve as liaison between the schools and the community. If parents have questions about what is going on at any of the schools, they may have them answered either by asking a member of the council or by attending a council meeting.

Individual councils meet monthly to exchange ideas, make suggestions, and discuss school programs and problems. These meetings are open and parents are invited to attend. In addition to these regular meetings, there are open houses in the fall and an evening meeting in the spring.

The Steering Committee, which is made up of three members from each council, coordinates between the individual councils. It meets in the Superintendent's office at 9:30 a.m. on the third Thursday of the month. Parents are invited to attend these meetings. Members of the school staff frequently address the meetings.

Recreational Department plans and events

HORSESHOE TOURNAMENT

The Cohasset Recreation Department is planning to conduct a Town wide, all ages, horseshoe pitching tournament.

Any resident who wishes to participate may do so by calling the Recreation office at 383-6791, and leaving their name and phone number.

Details will be available aftger the registration as it will depend on how many participants enter as to exactly how the tournament will be conducted.

COUPON SWAP BOX

The Cohasset Recreation Department has placed a coupon swap box in the lobby of the Town Hall. Individuals may drop off, take, or ideally, swap coupons of varying types. For instance, you may have a need for a specific coupon, if so drop off coupons that you are not going to use, and take those that you desire from the box. Anyone who has extra coupons that they do not plan to use, may leave them in the swap box for others who may use them.

YOUTH JOB OPPORTUNITY PROGRAM

During the past few months the Recreation Department through its Job Opportunity Program, has placed approximately 30 Cohasset youth on part-time, intermittent jobs.

In a continuing effort to place youth on jobs of all types, the department is asking any businesses or individuals who have a need for part-time workers to call the Recreation Office at 383-6791 to file their worker requests.

Once a job is filed with the department, you will be given names of individuals who have applied for jobs that fall under the guidelines of your request. From these names you may select any individual(s) whom you feel will best suit your needs. All compensations will be worked out between the employer and emplovee.

Likewise, Cohasset youths seeking some form of part-time employment may also call the Recreation Office for a job application. Upon completion of the application you will be placed on file as a candidate for possible job referral.

Property Tax Relief

When will your State Senator stop talking and do something about it?

When Paul Barber is YOUR State Senator . . . and not before

Because my opponent consistently votes against property tax relief. He votes to impose costly state programs on cities and towns. He votes for unlimited school committee spending, the largest portion of your local tax bill. And, just two months ago he refused to let YOU vote to reduce property taxes.

Paul Barber Demands Property Tax Relief!

As a Duxbury Selectman and President of the Massachusetts Selectmen's Association Paul advised and counselled the legislature and Governors Dukakis and King to ease the tax burden on homeowners.

He knows that property taxes must be cut.
He knows that our tax system must be reformed.
He will lead YOUR fight.

Coach appointments

Gino DiGirolamo, assistant CHS principal, has been appointed Girls' Varsity Field Hockey Coach at the top, pro-rated stipend of $1,500.

Other coaching appointments by the school committee were as follows: Clare Brady, J.V. Field Hockey; Thomas Burnell, Varsity Ice Hockey; Judy Henry, Gymnastics; John O'Brien, Junior High Football; Clare Brady, 8th Grade Girls' Basketball; William Fallon, Varsity Girls' Basketball; and Richard Graham, J.V. Hockey.

Schools need volunteers

Osgood library desperately needs some parent volunteers to help return books to the shelves, catalogue new materials and help maintain an organized room so that the children can realize and utilize the new facility. Volunteers are needed Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday mornings (9-11) on a weekly, bi-weekly or monthly schedule. Call the school (383-6117) or Martha Equi (383-0461).

At Deer Hill: Help is needed! In spite of a fantastic staff, which apparently is not super human, volunteers are still needed for the library, cafeteria, science program, for bulletin boards and in the I.M.S. math program. If you can help in any of these, or any other, areas please call Anne Bowdoin at 383-9205 or the school at 383-6115.

Deer Hill School plans sports equipment sale

The Deer Hill School Communications Council is organizing a used sports equipment sale during the October 11 Community Center OKTOBERFEST from 9:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. Here is your chance to turn over outgrown sports equipment for profit (70 per cent to you and 30 per cent to the Communications Council for artistic programs) and at the same time, pick up some new gear for your family's sporting adventures.

All sports items (with the exception of bikes) may be consigned to the Communications Council, such as skiis, boots, poles, sleds, tennis, paddle or squash rackets, baseball gloves or bats, roller, hockey or figure skates, etc.

Equipment to be sold should be brought to the Town Hall from 3:00 to 6:00 p.m. on Friday, October 10, or from 8:00 to 9:00 a.m. on Saturday, October 11. (No items will be accepted for consignment after 9:00 a.m. on Saturday).

All items to be consigned to the Council should be conspicuously priced and marked, including the owner's name. A 30 per cent commission from the sale of any item will be donated, from the proceeds, to the Communication Council.

Oyster Changes

Remember way back in January when we said we'd put in your oyster ad and keep it in until it did the job?

Well, we've been doing that. And it's worked beautifully for all of us. But there's one little problem. People have not always remembered to call us when the item's been sold, the job's been found, or the carpool's been organized. Consequently, we've been informed that people have answered ads only to find they were too late.

Here's the solution. Your oyster (same rules) will be kept in for eight weeks. Then out it comes. But . . . if you still need to have the ad in, call us. We'll try to rewrite it (without additional charge) for more success for another eight weeks. So we're with you through thick and thin pianos for sale and your search for roommates. But we have to put a limit on this folks. Else we'll have a paper full of advertisements which are outdated.

Question 3 on the ballot (the Massachusetts Teachers' Associations) or Question 5 (see Editorials, this week). But members said they would prefer to be well-informed on both tax reduction questions and the Constitutional Amendment (Question 5) before their pending public meeting.

Supt. Crowell said while the initial impact of Prop. 2½ on Cohasset Public Schools could be as drastic as reducing 18 teachers from the budget (at an average of $20,000-per teacher), he felt more realistic alternatives could be presented.

"Instead of eliminating complete programs, we should try to work for consolidation. We should prioritize, and then talk about sections which could be cut."

Langmaid suggested that making cuts at the elementary school level could be easy. "We could eliminate one teacher in each grade. CHS would be harder. But we could eliminate the number of courses a student could take, although we don't have a lot of underpopulated courses. We'd have to control the number of classes a student could take, i.e. a student couldn't take six majors..maybe not even five majors."

Crowell said he and Raftery would prioritize as the committee suggested, and provide a wide range of alternatives.

Committee Member Patricia Walsh suggested that the easiest way to increase class size would be to have teachers instruct at their contract maximums (number of students in a class).

Near the end of the discussion, Crowell lamented: "$366,000 can't be reached by snipping."

A simulated Proposition 2 1/2

1. Current 1980 Property Tax Levy	$4,966,597
2. Proposed Tax Limit - 2½% of Proposed Equalized Valuation for 1980 (Multiply $184,700,000 by .025)	$4,617,500
3. Reduction in Property Tax Levy on account of Proposition 2½ (Subtract Line 1 minus line 2)	$ 349,097
4. 62% Reduction in Motor Vehicle Excise Levy on account of Proposition 2½ (Multiply $505,573 by .62)	$ 313,455
5. Total Reduction in Local Tax Levies on account of Proposition 2½ (Add lines 3 and 4)	$ 662,552
6. School portion of current FY/80 tax rate (from your Assessor's School Tax Rate Recapitulation for FY/80, Part I, Line 7)	55.3%
7. Cut in FY/80 School Budget as a result of full impact of Proposition 2½ (Multiply line 5 by line 6, then divide by 100)	$ 366,391
8. Current FY/80 School Budget	$3,794,475
9. Percent cut in FY/80 School Budget as a result of full impact of Proposition 2½ (Divide line 7 by line 8, then multiply by 100)	9.66%

Photographers' field trip

An exciting field trip for photographers of all levels will be held on Saturday, October 18 with Peter Anderson, former Time/Life photographer. Enrollments must be made now through the South Shore Art Center, 103 Ripley Road in Cohasset in order to attend.

The Field Trip on the 18th will be to a South Shore location where Anderson will instruct and aid the photographers in seeing new potential in a familiar setting. The other half of this exciting event will be held on the following Saturday, ctober 25 when the group will meet from 2-4 p.m. at the Center headquarters to show their work and receive both an instructor and group critique. The Center's darkroom will be available for photographers in black and white to process their work if they do not have a darkroom; this is included in the class fee.

Further information is available by telephoning 383-9548 Monday through Friday between 12-4 p.m. Registration with fee must be made before October 16.

Country dance

Friday, October 17 St. Anthony's Sociables will present an evening of country dancing at its Harvest Square Dance, beginning at 8 p.m. at Town Hall. The public is invited to join in the evening of country dancing, prizes and surprises. The price: $3 per person. Sociable members will pay $2.50.

Tickets will be offered for sale at St. Anthony's after Masses, October 11 and 12. Or contact the following committee members: June and Lou Simeone at 383-1545, Mary and Henry Brennock at 383-1518, Pat and Don Beamon at 383-9264 or Helen and Ed Mulhern at 383-1509.

The race for rep-see how they run

Rep. Murray takes her directive from the people

By Tanna Kasperowicz

A Murray opponent recently said he felt the problems of the district were beyond the abilities of a former Girl Scout leader to fathom. It's the kind of jab Rep. Murray (R-Hingham, Cohasset, Hull) has learned to weather.

Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray

Rep. Murray, who is seeking her third term as state representative, has a long listing of both civic and governmental committees on which, almost all, she has risen to become chairman, president.

While many politicians reach a point where they drop the fact they were a Past Chief Den Mother of Cub Scouts, Past Leader and Secretary of Girl Scouts for 18 years...not Rep. Murray. Those were her roots and she's proud of them.

As a three-term Cohasset Selectman, Rep. Murray feels if there's one thing she knows, it's local, district issues and people. She also feels the pinch of the tax burden. "Many taxpayers forget that legislators are taxpayers, too."

While she feels the violent overthrow of government is inevitable when people have no other way to change their collective luck, she doesn't believe in violent overthrows. While there are some measures of Prop. 2½ she likes, she feels as a total package it would hurt the towns she serves. She's against it.

Ford feels a rep. should take a tough stand

By Tanna Kasperowicz

The most striking difference between Ted Ford, Democratic nominee for state representative, and Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, may well be the different avenues they traveled to this November 4, election day contest.

Ted Ford graduated from Cohasset High School and George Washington University, taking graduate studies in economics from AU in Connecticut. From 1973-79 he was a professional diplomat, acting as economic counselor to the Upper Volta African Embassy.

In Ethiopia Ford handled sensitive negotiations in an effort to release six American hostages kidnapped by Ethiopian terrorists. As economic counselor to that embassy, he was responsible for monitoring more than $100 million of U.S. trade and economic assistance.

Rep. Murray has her roots in local government. She was a three-term Cohasset Selectman, and was active in Little League, Cub Scouts, Girl Scouts.

Ford is 31, single and dating. He and his sister, Colette, live on Jerusalem Road — the Ford's

Town department heads to submit —15% budgets

The advisory committee voted last week to have Town department heads submit, by Oct. 20, budgets reflecting a minus 15 per cent reduction, in anticipation of the passage of Prop. 2½ on Nov. 4.

The committee joined the school committee in a consensus vote to oppose the law. But like a snake, Prop. 2½ is not without its charm...for town officials, included.

The school committee has already come up with suggested areas where cuts could be made, but several school committee members said they would not physically vote on any cuts unless Prop. 2½ became a fact. Osgood School could be closed... personnel could be reduced. Programs could be cut. Lots of could-bes.

Likewise, the advisory committee, as did the school committee, suggested that cuts could be spread out among a number of departments. Some departments might be cut more than 15 per cent, others less. Some, not at all.

Town Accountant William Signorelli's Prop. 2½ figures show a total estimated loss of revenue for fiscal 1982 as $1,138,878; the decrease in special articles in fiscal 1982 as being $876,480.

The total reductions in budgetary appropriations for fiscal 1982 would be $542,979 for schools and $333,501 for the town, which includes the elimination of special articles. (See complete chart inside). However, a town meeting could vote a different proposition.

Committee member Ozzie Ingram, the advisory committee's liaison to the meeting of the Association of Finance Committees and the Mass. Municipal Association (both groups have voted in opposition to Prop. 2½) said the general impression of people in touch with the State House is that "It's (Prop. 2½) going to pass. Our only hope seems to be that the margin voting for it be kept small enough so the legislature can be induced to amend it."

Ingram added: "If it passes closely enough, the Town might be able to over-ride it (Prop. 2½) at the 1981 spring town meeting. Although there are no exemptions written into the bill, it's likely there would be some provision for minimum manning contracts, etc.

"I came away with the feeling this is the ultimate mandate. It puts a complete dead hand on town development from there on" (its passage), Ingram said.

He added he felt Prop. 2½ would also be an invitation for unorganized town officials to jump into any ready union boat. "It's certainly a message, but it comes through in specifics."

William Signorelli, town accountant, said an immediate problem the town would have to face would be funding unemployment. With anticipated layoffs, as a result of Prop. 2½, the $30,000 reserved for compensation would not be sufficient. He added later that additional unemployment funds could be provided from the Town's surplus funds.

Khlee family pleases Cohasset friends

By Karin Bartow

A little over a year ago, Vath Khlee, a farmer, his wife Saban, and their children Vanny, Phally, Phalla, Bun-ny, Et and Chien, refugees from war torn Cambodia, arrived in the United States. The South Shore Baptist Church of Hingham converted their compassion for the displaced people of Southeast Asia into a commitment to sponsor the resettlement of this family.

The Khlees' home for the past year has been here in Cohasset on Hill Street. The family expanded over the year to include the Khlees' oldest daughter and her husband Phian and Juan Kling, and in June, their daughter Lena, and the Khlees' new son, Wauna.

Several weeks ago they moved from two different locations in Cohasset to a new home in South Weymouth. The Baptist Church purchased the house, which comfortably accommodates the family of 12, and rents it to them at an affordable price. They are near several church families and within walking distance to the elementary school and bicycling distance to the men's jobs.

The move to Weymouth has gone well. While it is not in their culture to all live under one roof, the two families have blended together harmoniously.

Cohasset's Week

Healy on the left.

Cohasset's Healy

Boston Globe political columnist and associate editor, Robert L. Healy of Cohasset, left, opened the Gallery of Homes of the South Shore Fall Seminar Series with a discussion of "The Economic Outlook After the Election."

President Alexander Rutledge welcomed him to the Gallery's Marshfield Educational ter. Mr. Healy, an award-winning journalist, conducts seminars on presidential politics at Harvard University's Kennedy Institute of Politics. He has also been a visiting professor at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. Mr. Healy has covered every presidential campaign since 1956.

Contest, of sorts

A special, special prize will be offered to the first person who can tell the Mariner what "Sweetest Day," October 18, means. All responses must be written, signed, and dated, with the exact hour of response recorded. Drop at Cohasset Colonial Pharmacy.

Keep-well clinics

A Keep-Well Clinic has been scheduled from 10-12 a.m., October 22 at Harborview, Elm Street. Two additional clinics have been planned for the near future. Notification will appear in the Mariner, or call the Social Service League office at 383-0771 for further information.

Through November, the Social Service League will be conducting a telephone survey to residents of Cohasset, in order to determine what additional services the League might add to services already offered.

An everyday flag

If Prop. 2½ passes there may be a whole lot more fund-raisings for everything in Cohasset. But last week Clark Chatterton presented selectmen with the results of a fund raising he held, personally, to raise funds for a flag which fits the Town's flag pole.

Clark sold hundreds and hundreds of hats to Cohasset residents. "A lot of people purchased the Cohasset hats to send to their children, who live elsewhere." Clark gave special thanks to Ed Mulvey, of Pilgrim Cooperative Bank, Selectman Rocco Laugelle (who caused the fund raiser to happen by expressing his dismay at the Town's not having a proper size flag for its pole) and all of you.

Foxy invitation

The Cohasset Dramatic Club cordially invites the Cohasset 60 Plus Club to a performance of A Sly Fox, Cohasset Town Hall, October 30. Curtain at 8 p.m. The shuttle bus will be available. Call Katherine McGrath for details.

Candidates' night

Wednesday, October 29 beginning at 7:30 p.m. the Cohasset and Hingham League of Women Voters will sponsor a combined Candidates' Night at the Hingham Town Hall. Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray and Ted Ford, Democratic nominee, won't debate, but you'll have a chance to ask them important questions.

The same group is sponsoring a debate between Representative Gerry Studds (D) and Paul Doane (R), candidates for the 12th Congressional District, Oct. 21 at 7:30 p.m., Barnes Auditorium, Hingham Town Hall.

Beechwood Coalition

At its meeting last week the advisory committee heard outBeechwood Street and area residents Joan Brown and Roy Fitzsimmons regarding a petition article on the October 28 Special Town Meeting Warrant for a new Beechwood Fire Station.

The committee suggested that petitioners offer as their motion on the article a request for funding plans and specifications for the new station. The committee took no vote on the petition article.

Murray responds to Ford flyer

Late last week, Ted Ford flyers were passed out directly before a Cohasset League of Women Voters' public rally against Prop. 2½. A portion of the flyer questioned Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray's position on Prop. 2½. Her response to much of the Ford flyer appears herein.

Ford said: "Rep. Murray's contradictory statements on Prop. 2½ are baffling. She tells one camp she's in favor of the bill and another camp she is opposed.

FORD FLYER

FORD CLAIMS — July 10, 1978, Murray voted for Prop. 2½.

MURRAY RESPONDS — It was a late-filed bill. The bill itself never came to the floor. The only question before us was whether to discharge it from Ways and Means. I voted affirmatively to discharge it.

FORD CLAIMS — April 9, 1979, Murray voted against Prop. 2½.

MURRAY RESPONDS — Roll Call #91 of April 9, 1979 was not a 2½ proposition for cities and towns, but rather a 4 per cent cap on municipal budgets. We all voted against it because much of the language in it was unconstitutional. Ultimately, I voted for it (when the language got straightened out). This bill was sent to a Committee on Conference and I voted favorably on the Conference report for a 4 per cent cap with the 2/3rds over-ride of Town Meeting.

FORD CLAIMS — June 25, 1980 — Murray voted for Prop. 2½.

MURRAY RESPONDS — This vote on 5269 had nothing to do with Prop. 2½. It was the State Cap, it would have given back considerable money to cities and towns, but it had nothing to do with cities and towns. I voted favorably on the State Cap.

I am on record, Roll Call #120 taken on May 6, against placing the present 22 referendum question on the ballot.

Two years ago when Citizens for Limited Taxation proposed a bill for property tax relief, I supported that proposal. But there are several major differences between the 1978 proposal and the present, controversial 2½.

I am a co-sponsor of H5016 called the "Responsible Limit." There were two amendments on June 24, 1980 to substitute H5016 (Responsible Limit) for the original Cohen Bill, H6558, which was before the legislature on that day. I voted favorably on these two amendments in Roll Calls #230 and 231.

There were several problems with the Cohen Bill and it was redrafted and substituted in the Constitutional Convention. I voted for the Cohen Bill on September 18, 1980 and it was passed, 172 Yes, 9 No.

Murray urges voters to study ballot

State Representative Mary Jeanette Murray (R) 3rd Plymouth District has urged voters to read all Nov. 4th referendum questions.

Mary Jeanette, at a recent organization meeting said, "Everyone is discussing 2½, but there are other important questions before us on the ballot."

Murray, who represents Cohasset, Hingham, and Hull continued, "Question #5 asks the voters to discontinue mandated programs, unless paid for by the State. No more mandates should be placed on the cities and towns. To have the state pick up the costs of future mandated programs simply means we taxpayers are paying out of the other pocket! I feel the time has come to stop spending at all levels."

Murray said we should all be knowledgeable about every question which will be before us on Nov. 4th.

"I have consistently voted against costly mandated programs. Also, I have sponsored bills for voters to approve or disapprove mandated programs on the cities and towns."

Mary Jeanette voted against the legislative pay raise. She said, "Question #4 gives the voter an opportunity to repeal the law which increased the salaries of legislators and constitutional officers. This question has been placed on the ballot through an Initiative Petition."

Rep. Murray is a member of the Pay Raise Repeal Committee.

3-A roadblock to be removed

Senator Allan McKinnon (D- Norfolk and Plymouth) announced this week that a major roadblock in the long effort to synchronize the traffic lights along Route 3A will shortly be removed.

Senator McKinnon said that currently the Federal Highway Administration is prohibited from releasing the necessary funds to complete the synchronization project due to a federal freeze in spending.

McKinnon said he had been notified by an official of the Mass. Department of Public Works that within the next two weeks notification would be forthcoming from the federal government.

"Once the money is released, bids will go out, and I have been assured that the work will be done early next spring," McKinnon said. "I have been disappointed by the deal, but the successful acquisition of federal money will save the Commonwealth's taxpayers hundreds of thousands of dollars," he said.

Senator McKinnon further stated that he was gratified by the state DPW's firm commitment to install the sophisticated system necessary to synchronize the traffic lights along Route 3A and looked forward to the smoother traffic flow, increased pedestrian and driver safety and gas savings which should result when the system is fully operational.

Lottery game to support the arts

On Tuesday, Oct. 14, the Commonwealth of Massachusetts became the first state in the nation with a lottery game specifically designed to support the arts. The game is administered by the Mass. State Lottery Commission, but unlike other lottery games the net revenues from the Arts Lottery will be utilized to support a variety of arts organizations and activities at the local level.

The purchase of a $5 ticket makes the player eligible for four consecutive weekly drawings and the opportunity to win $200,000 or one of several smaller prizes. In Cohasset, tickets will be sold at the A&P, Stop and Shop, Curtis Compact, The Ground Round, Cohasset News Company, Central Market and Cushing Plaza Pharmacy.

The Board of Selectmen of Cohasset have appointed an Arts Council to administer the funds realized from the sale of Arts Lottery tickets for local arts organizations and projects. Serving on this local council are: Barbara Gurnis, Jean Armine, Denise Ripley, Charles Wheelwright and John Packard.

Saying hello again

Marie and the Johnston kids have been back in Cohasset for some time now. We waved to them in passing several times...talked briefly at the Post Office one day several weeks ago.

In this edition of the Mariner Fran Johnston tells us he is also coming home...for good. But according to the dates he gave us in a second note, he is home even as you are reading this. So much for Saudi mail.

We read this last Saudi letter with not a little sadness...because we've all enjoyed his letters so much. Over the past year teachers have clipped his letters for students to read. Sometimes Fran sent along funny pictures of camels doing the crazy things camels do, gave us recipes for camel soup Louie Bravo went crazy trying to order it); made us laugh, cry, reflect, wonder at a whole different life he, Marie and the kids were experiencing.

This last letter is a poem...alight refraction, a primer for living.

Not today, Fran. Not this weekend. Unpack your saddle bags first...jump into a milkshake at the Strawberry Parfait, grab a hotdog at the Log, get the Line on things.

Your first back-in-the-states assignment: tell us how we looked from over there. Did it appear that we ever had anything definite in view?

SS Council on 2½

To the Editor:

Members of the Inter-Agency Council of the South Shore, an association of individuals from over forty agencies and organizations serving the community voted recently to oppose the passage of proposition 2½, but strongly favored tax reform in the Commonwealth.

These individuals speaking for themselves have indicated that the consequences of a drastic cut in taxes would not be a responsible action if public services are to be continued by the State and municipalities.

Among the suggestions made, according to Richard Conant, Council President, would be to institute a more comprehensive graduated income tax and relieve the public dependancy upon the more regressive property tax.

In a background session, it was pointed out that the property tax has a historical basis that goes back to early New England settlers and that as a modern measure it does not tax equitably the assets of individuals and corporations.

In equalizing the property tax rate, as proposed in "2½," the greatest benefits will be to business and industry rather than to the average homeowner.

Mariner Saudi correspondent returns home

By Fran Johnston

Well folks, this will be my final report from Saudi Arabia.

After considerable thought, I have decided to return to good old Cohasset to enjoy the pleasures of my family.

It really was not that much of a decision as I knew fairly well when I left Cohasset last month that I would not enjoy being separated from the family after being together for over 12 years.

There is a very lonely feeling coming into an empty villa each night and hearing the ghosts of past evenings of laughter and good times and realize that they are just memories.

This has been a rich and rewarding year for the whole family. From Marie organizing the first needlepoint class in northeastern Saudi to Jeff conversing in fluent Arabic with the National Guard soldier to Susan winning the hearts (and me chewing fingernails) of all the young Arab boys.

It was an experience.

I think one of the most important aspects and benefits of our living here was the maturing of the whole family. We became so much closer and really talked to each other. I don't think anyone of us would give up that gift which we received.

Another important realization was how to enjoy nature in its most primitive form. When all the worldly goods are absent, you would be surprised at how beautiful a sunset can be or how far you can look to sea.

Walking along the beach long after dark and watching fish jump out of the water and camels heading back to their lair brought us back to a sense of complacency which we had forgotten in that busy, mechanical world back there.

After saying the above though, I look towards the northeast and see the black clouds from Abadan and Bushehr, Iran and realize we aren't that far from the modern world.

We are about 120 miles from the front lines of the war. We can see flashes from the oil refineries late at night. We talk to each other to check on the latest news from the BBC or Voice of America.

It is funny that we have no fear of being in danger from a stray missile or overzealous pilot. I think we slip into that mode of feeling that it couldn't happen to us. I am sure you have experienced the same feeling when you hear of someone being or having an accident: thinking it could happen to them but not me.... Due to the present situation, we have been restricted in that we can not use the power or sail boats, no fishing or swimming allowed until further notice. Needless to say, we watch a lot of movies and betamax to pass the time.

Two of the ships that were at Ras Al Mishab last week were just reported to have been shelled by someone up in the area of Al Faw, Iraq. This is the area of heavy fighting and near to the oil refineries. I feel that we will see a reduced amount of vessels coming this way until there is some type of peace between the two countries.

Onto happier things. Had an outstanding month's vacation during your heat wave. To me, it was a little chilly but I made the most of it. The only thing is you must do something about the water temperature at Sandy Beach. Tooooo cold. I guess I will just have to adjust to it next summer.

I think that I over ate during this period though. From breakfast at the Log & Line to lunch at the Red Lion to dinner at The Greenhouse to a snack at the Strawberry Parfait, it was great. How nice it was to sit and have a nice cool one knowing that there was actually alcohol in the drink and not just plain apple juice or wine that I had made five days ago.

Did I tell you about the recipe I have for British tea? Make this drink, usually by the gallons, let it sit for 28 days and then drink very carefully. Guaranteed to knock you off your feet after two....And with just tea-bags!!!!

Cool weather is back with us (that is below 100 degrees). We have had heavy fog in the mornings for the past few days. The temperature should drop another twenty degrees at night by the time I leave here. This is really the best time of year in Saudi Arabia.

We are fast approaching the religious period of Eid Al Adha and Hajj which starts about 18-19 October (depending on the observance of the moon). This is the time of mass movement to Mecca, the Holy City. Hundreds of thousands of people flock from all the Moslem countries to Mecca to participate in the services.

Well, it's time to go and pack the saddle bags for the long trip. It is a task that I shall relish with joy. The old saying is so true and everyone who has ever moved says it each time..."How did we collect so much stuff in such a short time?" Know anyone who would like to buy 10 pounds of Saudi sea-shells? How about four pounds of quartz stones? Real Cheap?

New town planning committee asked

By Gilbert Tower

When the Cohasset wastewater treatment plant is built there will have to be a pipe laid under ground from Jacob's Meadow through the town center parking lot. The natural route for that pipe will be the road bed of the Penn Central Railroad up to a point near the treatment plant.

When the wastewater treatment plant is built there will also have to be a new road to provide access to it. There has been talk about starting that road from North Main St. and crossing the railroad bed.

That location for the access road would encounter a hurdle in crossing the railroad bed. Some negotiation with the trustee of the Penn Central Railroad would be necessary. An access road would be facilitated if it were laid out to cross the railroad bed.

It is therefore recommended that the treatment plant be approached from the other side. That would cooperate with another idea which is to extend Chief Justice Cushing Highway from Hingham, cross the Rosano triangular lot, where loam and gravel are now piled, then cross King St. and go down along the side of Sanctuary Pond to connect with the railroad land coming up from the center.

That proposed new road would lead from Hingham into the center of Cohasset and eventually continue to North Scituate, with a branch down Elm St. to Scituate beach. It would be part of the road system of the state. Probably the state would contribute toward the cost. It would provide access to the treatment plant from King St. instead of from North Main St.

Some town planning is needed to make a layout for this proposed road. A new town committee to plan this new access road is now needed. The Planning Board can not do it. Wanted are a few men interested in the town to form a town planning committee. The work involved would not be burdensome and would be interesting. If some men would express their willingness to devote a little time on town planning the selectmen would no doubt be glad to appoint them.

The former railroad bed would provide a natural site for a wastewater pipe and for a road. It would not be wide enough, so that some more filling would be needed, but the present railroad bed would be worth being paid for by the town. How much money the town would be justified in paying to Penn Central Railroad for the road bed would depend upon some town planning. That is why the new committee is recommended.

When the town acquires the railroad land it will probably open up some new house lots, the value of which will contribute toward what the town has to pay for the railroad bed. Some town planning will permit calculating how much money the town would be justified in paying for the railroad land.

Khlees

Family life is unified and they are pooling their resources and encouraging one another with English.

They have left behind, however, a big hole in the community that helped make their first year in this country as nourishing and successful as it was. There is a feeling of emptiness among the children, their families and the many adults and professionals who cared deeply for all of them.

"They brought out something special in people, good things in people," says Carol Martin. Her daughter, Kristin, was a first grade classmate of Bun, Et and Chien. Kristin's own spontaneity of affection was typical of the response they evoked in people of all ages. "One day," Mrs. Martin recalls, "Et walked into class and Kristin ran up and gave her a big hug and kiss." Kristin who has kept a scrapbook of her new friends, says, "They were very special."

The core of the sustenance was the South Shore Baptist Church. The Church's response to the family's needs went, and continues to go, well beyond the basic requirements like housing, clothing, schooling and health care.

Initially they gave them protection. They worked toward acceptance from the community and independence for the family. They have been thoughtful to the smallest details, like teaching the children birthday party etiquette, to baking holiday cookies and making gifts, to just being there. And yet, they have not patronized a proud family with their own cultural responses to life.

Carol Zimmerman and her husband Charles, have been close at hand in Cohasset. Ginnie Delaney describes Mrs. Zimmermann as "The shining star of this whole thing." Mrs. Delaney rented a small apartment in her home to the Church for the Khlees. "Carol would worry constantly to make sure they had proper clothing and medicine.

"She wrote a beautiful letter to the neighbors introducing the family when they moved here." The Zimmermanns provided room in their own home when the Klings arrived last Spring. Mrs. Zimmermann was up early and flying kites with the children on the day of Phlan and Juan's arrival.

"She was like a fairy god mother," said Faith Bowker.

The team of Church workers including Cindy Norton of Norwell, Sandie Spartas of Hanover, Sally Hess and Ruth and Carlton Reardon of Hingham, still tutor the family in English three times a week and conduct a playgroup which involves them in fun projects which reinforce their English and other concepts they need to learn.

They will be teaching Juan the Massachusetts drivers manual soon, and a group have begun working with Vath and Juan on money and budgets. The next project is to have them learn to receive bills and write checks.

John Callas of Hingham has consistently taken Vath shopping and to the bank every week. They sometimes go to Chinatown in Boston.

With emphasis placed on the family gaining independence, Mrs. Zimmermann said recently with some pride, "Their need for us is, what it was a year ago."

Vath and his son-in-law Juan, both have good jobs at the South Shore Industrial Center which is only a four mile bike ride from their home. Vath worked last year at the Greenhouse Restaurant and now is employed by a chemical company. Juan who works for Spencer Press, has already received a raise and can work overtime.

The older children are progressing in school. Chien is in third grade and Et and Bun are both in the second grade, but in different classes this year. Phalla attends public kindergarten in the afternoons. The Church is pleased with the reaction and acceptance from their new school since as Mrs. Zimmermann put it, "They came from something special (at Osgood School)."

Both Saban and her daughter Phlan, have thriving young babies. Everyone's health and spirits are good. There are smiles where a year ago there was somberness. "They have had a year to catch their breath. They don't have to adjust to things foreign now. They can progress forward," Mrs. Zimmermann said.

What will the election of Ted Ford mean to Cohasset?

"Cohasset is a town of tradition. It has a unique history and character which should be preserved. Cohasset is much the same as it was when I was growing up here. I hope that my grandchildren will enjoy the same Cohasset that I know today.

"Cohasset has a reputation for being well-managed. Its fiscal base is strong and my feeling is that most residents want to keep Cohasset more or less just the way it is today. My first priority as a State Representative will be to promote the interests of my constituents and to help them protect Cohasset's traditions.

"As a little boy growing up in Cohasset, I felt that I knew everyone. People in Cohasset are close to one another. Now that I've moved back to Cohasset, after serving my country for seven years in the Foreign Service, I see how little Cohasset has changed and how much I like it just the way it is.

"I am running for State Representative because I think that I can do a better job. I feel that I know Cohasset, and that Cohasset people know me. As a State Representative, I will do the best job I can for the people of Cohasset."

former family home until Ted recently purchased it from his family. He says he's returning to his roots. His biggest problem is voter recognition — people don't know him. Colette Ford has taken a year's leave of absence from her job as a high school guidance counselor at North Phoenix High School in Arizona to help Ted in his quest for state office.

Ted Ford proved in the primary that he's a hard worker. He came out of the Democratic primary with a convincing win, and two pairs of worn-out shoes.

Calling himself a fiscal conservative, not unlike Rep. Murray, he's for tax reform. But he's strongly against Prop. 2½ as a way to achieve tax reform. "Politically, the state legislature can't allow Boston and Lynn to go bankrupt. District formula favors the cities.

"Last June I came out for the Cohen bill and I've been talking about it ever since," Ford said. He feels however, that Rep. Murray, up until recently, has waivered on it.

Ford said "Even High Technology has come out in favor of the Cohen Bill. Everybody's realizing 2½ would be a nightmare."

He also feels he's taken some "tough" stands, early-on in his campaign. He's pro safeguards for nuclear energy and he's pro conservation efforts to reduce our dependency on nuclear energy.

"Rep. Murray's stance is and continues to be, whatever the voters want. A legislator should take leadership, take positions on tough issues. In the energy issues in particular you have to take a leadership role...it takes 18 years to develop high technology (to implement nuclear or alternative programs).

As state representative, Ford would not offer constituents preferred treatment. "Special interest groups affect the tax rate. When an official interferes to get a favorite nephew promoted in a police department, all the rest of the department lose morale."

Ford, a year short of being 25 years younger than Rep. Murray, feels Rep. Murray represents an older style of politician and politics. "I feel the call of the next two decades needs vision and planning. There are so many subjects — economics, technology, and planning areas which need a person with a broad, comprehensive view."

Binding arbitration, with police and fire departments, should remain, according to Ford. He feels the Dunlop Commission, which hears contract disputes and makes final decisions on the same, is equitable and fair. "Without it (the Dunlop Commission) we would probably have to create something like it."

Ford doesn't like Rep. Murray's voting record. "In five key energy issue votes, she voted against any restrictions in nuclear energy safeguards." Neither does he find favor with her votes on court reform, or Civil Service reform. "She has a very contradictory voting record. Her best record is her attendance record. She's like the student who shows up to school but gets all C minuses."

Neither does Ford respect her votes on partisan issues. "She votes with the Democratic leadership on rules." He finds that to be inconsistent. "She delivers votes to the Democratic leadership and sells her vote for constituents. Has she delivered the goods?

"Airplane routes over Hull have been being negotiated for six years. She was in the dark about it until August. Nothing's been done on Pemberton Pier in Hull while she was in office. She denounces government. She says get the government off our backs. She gets the mark on that because the government fouls up so often. But to simply denounce government doesn't offer an alternative rationale. It's (government) a positive tool. It's the center of our Democracy — it's the glue holding us together."

Ford also feels Rep. Murray did nothing to help in regionally centralizing a sewer treatment plant. "Rep. Murray missed the boat. The new sewer treatment plant will cost towns millions of dollars."

And he is equally concerned about the lack of planning for a regional refuse facility. "She hasn't taken the leadership. Regional plans should focus at the state level. Federal and state grants are available."

Ford sees the key issues of this particular campaign as reducing the tax burden, providing effective commuter transportation to Boston, a comprehensive program on energy, land-planning and regional economic planning.

Stories

The Paul Pratt Memorial Library will give an after-school story hour for elementary school children on Tuesday, Oct. 21 at 3:15.

Children's Librarian, Marilyn Pope, will tell two Halloween stories, "They'll Never Find You Now," from an Alfred Hitchcock anthology; the second story will be announced at the program.

Around Town

Cohasset residents Sarah DeLima, David Barrett, and Cohasset Dramatic Club member Alice Duffy will appear in the New North Church (1 Lincoln Street, Hingham) production of "Blithe Spirit." Shows will be held Oct. 17 & 18, Oct. 24 & 25 and Sunday, Oct. 26 — curtain's at 8 p.m. Tickets are available at the Hingham Square Bookshop or Bookport. Reserved seats can be had by calling 749-3970.

Mike Prendergast, son of Shirley and Gene Prendergast of North Main Street, won the 21st Annual Southeastern Amateur Championship at Thorny Lea Golf Club in Brockton last weekend.

In his first championship, Mike won the three-part trophy with a score of 75 at Easton Country Club, 73 at Marshfield Country Club and 74 at Thorny Lea, for a total score of 222. In addition to the trophy, he also won a custom tailored jacket and a merchandise certificate.

Golf has been a large part of Mike's life and this championship verifies his stature as a first-rate player.

Skippers trampled by Sachems

By Rob Tis

The Skippers faced a very big and very powerful football team Friday night, the Middleboro Sachems — last year's super bowl champs. The score — Middleboro 40, Cohasset 8.

The Sachems are led by a running back named Mike Day who runs like an Olympic sprinter and breaks tackles like a tank.

The Skippers found this out right away because on the second play of the game Day out raced the Skippers 51 yards to the touchdown.

In the past the Skippers had trouble containing a big play now and again. This was evident as Middleboro backs scored touchdowns on 51, 88, 61, 41 and 65-yard runs. Only one touchdown was scored on a viable drive.

Cohasset did have its bright spots. Joe Becker carried 17 times and gained 66 yards. Also in the fourth quarter the Skippers drove into the Sachem territory. Kevin Dooley faded back and found Bob Meers in the end zone for the Skipper's lone touchdown.

It looks as if Middleboro will run away with the league once again. The Skippers have nothing to be ashamed of with their 40-8 loss. They played tough ball and proved that for their size and number they're one of the best teams around.

It also shows that Middleboro should never have dropped their football team into the South Shore League.

Cross-country team suffers 1st loss

By Rob Tis

The Cohasset cross country team's undefeated season was shattered this week by Duxbury. The Skippers only managed to place two in the top 10: Chris McNabb 8th and Mike Ellis 10th.

The Skippers are now 5-1 and hoping to capture second place in the South Shore League behind the unbeatable Duxbury cross country team.

This year's team is a young one. The two captains Ellis and McNabb, are juniors and the rest of the team, except for Mike Glosteld, are either juniors or sophomores. This includes Paul Johnson, Jaimie Replogle, Steve Bowen, Mark Brown, Charlie Tebbets, and Paul Dormitzer.

Linsley 3rd in Bonnie Bell

By Michael Ellis

While everyone else was raking leaves on Columbus Day, Sarah Linsley was exhibiting her running prowess in the Bonnie Bell 10K road race.

This Cohasset runner polished off some of the nation's best road racers by streaking to third place behind such world renowned athletes as first-place finisher Patti Lyons-Catalano and Gillian Adams.

Lyons-Catalano, American record-holder for five miles and the marathon, set a new record in this race, hardly letting the ink dry from Jan Merrill's record at 10K last week.

Gillian Adams, hailing from England, is also a world class road racer winning the Avon International Marathon last spring.

Linsley, after finishing 13th last year, has been on a rampage. Woman's winner of the Cohasset Road Race by the Sea along with sister Kristen, Sarah has been training extensively for months in hope of cracking the ranks of world class runners found in the Bonnie Bell 10K race.

Congratulations to Sarah for reaching a personal goal, and let's all hope she stays on top!

Gearing up for Halloween? No, Kristine Jackson, 8, is cheering on the Skippers at a recent grid-iron game. (Derr photo)

Basketball registration

Registrations for both girls' and boys', Grades 4, 5, and 6, Basketball Clinic, will be held at the Recreation Office, first floor, Town Hall, on Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 21 and 22, from 2:30-4 p.m.

The fee for the eight week program is $5 per child with a 50% discount for second or subsequent children from the same family. The girls' program will be from 3:20-5 p.m., Wednesdays, beginning Wednesday, Nov. 5, at the Deer Hill School. The boys' program will meet Tuesdays at Deer Hill, 3:20-5 p.m., beginning Tuesday, Nov. 4.

Frank Deacon will instruct both programs designed to offer not only playing experience, but basic skill and technique instruction. This program is an ideal supplement to the Saturday afternoon basketball league, which will be conducted this winter.

AFTERNOON SPORTS PROGRAM

A few more children Grades 4, 5, and 6, are needed to fill the afternoon sports program class. Registrations will be accepted by calling the Cohasset Recreation Department at 383-6791.

The program will be held Thursday afternoons, at the Deer Hill School gym, and consist of team sports and games, from 3:30-5 p.m. The fee is $5 per person, with a 50 per cent discount for second or subsequent children in a family.

Coastline Council to discuss 2½

Proposition 2½ and how it may affect children's services will be the topic of discussion at the Coastline Council for Children's annual meeting on Thursday Oct. 16 at the Lutheran Church in Hingham.

John Brouder of Greater Boston Legal Services will be the guest speaker on Proposition 2½, providing the Council with information on the possible consequences of the tax reform measure. The Council will conduct its business meeting from 7:30-8:30 p.m. and then will introduce the guest speaker.

The Council for Children is particularly concerned about the impact that Question 2 may have on children's services. Many of the services that children receive are wholly or partially funded by city and town tax revenues. Schools are the most obvious example.

Area school officials are split on this issue, but recently the Hingham School Committee decided to disseminate information on the issue out of its concern for impact on its schools. They expect that the teaching account would have to absorb most of the reductions, resulting in elementary pupil:teacher ratios of 38:1. Presently, the ratio is 24:1.

Additional cuts are predicted for library services, equipment purchases, and in the industrial arts, music, foreign language, home economics, and classes both for advanced placement classes and classes for low ability students.

A flea market for kids—neat idea!

The Cohasset Community Center will sponsor a flea market especially for children's items on Saturday, Oct. 25, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Items to be sold will include everything from booties to cribs, children's clothing, sports equipment, uniforms, toys for children of all ages, from infants to teens.

Table space will be available for a $10 fee. Space must be reserved by Monday Oct. 20.

After [illegible] the fee will be $12. For reservations please call the center at 383-0088. Checks should be made payable to the Community Center Nursery School. Those who rent table space will be requested to donate one item (of your choice) to the nursery school table.

Proceeds from the flea market will benefit the programs of the Nursery School. Donations for the nursery school table are also most welcome from the public. If you have items to donate they may be brought to the center weekday mornings from 9 to 12 noon.

Barber and McKinnon debate district issues

By Nancy Burns

For the first time in many years voters will have a clear choice when electing a state senator Nov. 4.

And it's not just the party affiliation either. There are clear philosophical differences between candidates incumbent Allan McKinnon and challenger Paul Barber on several issues including Proposition 2½, home rule, and state mandated programs.

Those positions were outlined recently at a Marshfield-Duxbury and Scituate Leagues of Women Voters candidate debate held in Scituate Town Library.

STATE SENATOR

Republican Paul Barber of Duxbury and incumbent state Sen. Allan McKinnon, D-Weymouth, teed off in debate on opposite sides of the Prop. 2½ question.

Barber, a former Duxbury Selectman said he favors Prop. 2½ because "the legislature will have to address tax reform."

McKinnon on the other hand said he hopes it doesn't pass. "I feel it's the worst proposal I've seen in 10 years on the hill."

Barber agreed the law wasn't well written but contended it would force the legislature into refining it. "If it passes it sends a message."

In his 10 minute opening remark McKinnon told the audience of more than 50 people he'd worked hard on legislation which created incentives and loan programs for business development in the state.

In a surprising move McKinnon said he favored development of mixed income housing in communities. As an aside he added he wasn't certain he "should say this in Scituate" referring to the almost 10 year long battle over low-moderate income housing in town.

"All communities have to accept some responsibility for building housing units." In the future the state faces a need of 70,000 to 80,000 more housing units — people have to live somewhere, said McKinnon.

Barber talked of increasing state interference and said, "For too long the state has interfered when not needed and refused to do so when (it) can."

There is a clear need to shift state revenue away from the property owner, according to Barber who said state spending has doubled since 1973.

"An evening with Ingersoll"

"An Evening With Ingersoll" a dramatic portrayal of one of America's greatest orators and free thinkers, Col. Robert Green Ingersoll, will be presented at the First Parish Meeting House on the Cohasset Common, Nov. 6, beginning at 8 p.m. Lecturing to overflow audiences across the United States in the latter part of the 19th century, Ingersoll was acclaimed as the "Shakespeare of oratory" for his wit and brilliance.

In this drama, Roger Greeley, a Unitarian Universalist minister from Kalamazoo, Michigan, has skillfully composed some of Ingersoll's most eloquent speeches into a delightful two-hour, one-man show.

He begins by coming onstage partially made up to give some background material as he "becomes" Ingersoll. Greeley then launches into a range of speeches moving from a nominating speech for James Blaine of Maine for President given at the Republican Convention in 1876 to a eulogy offered at the time of his brother's death, to some very amusing responses offered at various press conferences.

Tickets for the drama at $2.50 each are now on sale at the office of the First Parish in Cohasset, 23 North Main Street, 383-1100 or may be obtained through contacting any of the churches in the South Shore Cluster.

Obituaries

John F. James

John Francis James, 80, a lifelong resident of Cohasset, a retired truck driver of the Cohasset Highway Department, died Oct. 7 at Massachusetts General Hospital.

He was educated in Cohasset and graduated from Boston College High School. He worked for the Town of Cohasset for 30 years.

Husband of the late Alice E. (Enos) James, he leaves a daughter, Mrs. Patricia Ann Dilser of Ohio; a brother, Donald T. James of Roxbury; a sister, Mrs. Walter J. (Isabel) Sullivan of Springfield and four grandchildren.

A funeral Mass was celebrated Saturday in St. Anthony's Church. Burial was in Woodside Cemetery.

Engagements

Callahan —DeGiacomo

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert J. Callahan of Standish Circle, Wellesley, announce the engagement of their daughter, Lynne Margaret, to Mark Guy DeGiacomo, son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. DeGiacomo of Cohasset and Boston.

Mr. DeGiacomo is a graduate of Cohasset High School and Boston College. He is currently attending Suffolk University Law School.

Miss Callahan is a graduate of Mount Holyoke College and is in her second year at Suffolk University Law School.

A September 1981 wedding is planned.

Drawing workshop

A special two-Saturday Drawing Workshop with noted area artist Rosalind Farbush will take place at the South Shore Art Center on 103 Ripley Road, Cohasset on Saturday, Oct. 18 and Saturday, Oct. 25. Enrollment must be made in advance in order to attend. The Workshop is for beginning or intermediate and advanced students who will draw from still life or the clothed model using pen and ink or brush and ink washes.

Ms. Farbush teaches at the School of the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston and privately in addition to workshops at the Art Center. An exhibit of her recent paintings will be on view at the Art Center beginning Oct. 18.

Don't ask

For as long as anyone can remember, we've asked the State House Politicians to lower our taxes, reduce state spending, and give government back to the cities and towns.

What has all our asking done?

State government is still spending and taxing with reckless abandon. The legislature has forced more costly programs on our cities and towns than ever before.

One thing is clear. . .asking just doesn't work.

Demand !

Paul Barber says:

"For ten years my opponent has followed the Beacon Hill Bosses' policies of runaway taxing and spending.
I will use my government experience to free the cities and towns from state government oppression.
I will continue to lead YOUR fight to win local government control for YOUR local problems."

Send the leader YOUR leaders chose to the State Senate

SCHEDULE I
REVISED COMPUTATION OF REVENUE DECREASE
Fiscal 1982, 1983

Fiscal 1981 tax levy	$5,616,788
2½% of equalized valuation ($184,700,000)	4,617,500
Property tax loss	999,288
Motor Vehicle Excise Revenue estimated $500,000 x loss percentage of 62.12	310,600
Total estimated loss of revenue	$1,309,888

The Referendum petition requires a reduction of 15% of the levy if the levy is in excess of 15% of the 2½ limit.
This 15% reduction is required until the levy limit of 2½ is obtained.
Computation of reduction in revenue fiscal 1982:

15% of levy equals (5,616,788)	842,518
Motor vehicle excise taxes 478,000 x 62%	296,360
Reduction	$1,138,878

Fiscal 1983 Revenue decrease will increase by $171,010 above the fiscal 1982 amount of $1,138,878
